Luke 21:34-36—“But take heed to yourselves, lest your souls be weighed down with self-indulgence, and drunkenness, or the anxieties of this life, and that day come on you suddenly, like a falling trap; for it will come on all dwellers on the face of the whole earth. But beware of slumbering; and every moment pray that you may be fully strengthened to escape from all these coming evils, and to take your stand in the presence of the Son of Man” (Weymouth New Testament).

An article by Zina Rakhamilova titled “When Rape Is a Weapon of War, the World Cannot Stay Silent” was posted at jpost.com on July 16, 2025. Following is the article.

Nearly 22 months have passed since Hamas invaded Israel on October 7, 2023. While it may feel as though much has happened since then, and many Israelis have emotionally compartmentalized the trauma, more and more horrifying details continue to emerge about the depravity and brutality of that day.

A powerful new report compiled by “The Dinah Project” over the past year and a half offers some of the clearest, most undeniable evidence yet that Hamas systematically used sexual violence as a weapon of war. The details are deeply disturbing.

The report draws on testimonies from survivors of the Nova music festival, released hostages, and others who lived through the massacre. It presents evidence that rape, sexual humiliation, and genital mutilation were not random or isolated acts. They were coordinated and deliberate tactics of terror.

Twenty-seven first responders (along with morgue attendants at the IDF’s Shura base) testified to finding bodies with unmistakable signs of rape, mutilation, and what they called “sexual staging” – supported by forensic photographs and documentation.

Perhaps most chilling are the videos, intercepted communications, and recovered photos that show victims being sexually violated, some while still alive. This evidence was collected with legal standards in mind, ensuring it could be admissible in court, even when victims cannot speak for themselves.

Women were found tied to trees and poles, partially or fully naked, raped, mutilated, and executed. One woman was discovered with her underwear stuffed in her mouth and a gunshot wound to the head.

Others, including children, were publicly violated and paraded – their bodies weaponized to inflict psychological terror. In one documented case, the corpse of a woman was raped in front of other hostages. The abuse continued even after captives were dragged into Gaza.

The report includes testimonials from 15 released hostages. Nearly all of them (including men) described forced nudity, sexual harassment, verbal abuse, and threats of forced marriage. The cases span six locations, including the Nova festival grounds, Route 232, Kibbutz Re'im, Nir Oz, and Kfar Aza.

The international community chose inaction

- Negotiating with terrorists is never a good idea – It rewards and incentivizes their brutality.
- But Israel faces a terrible moral dilemma – To bring our loved ones home, we must engage with those who committed these atrocities.

The international community, however, had a choice. And it chose inaction.

The Gaza hostage crisis, and the use of mass sexual violence, must serve as a precedent-setting moment for how the world responds to such crimes. The victims of October 7 included citizens from 35 different countries. Hostages were taken from 25 of them. At the very least, nations whose citizens were taken captive should have acted as if those people had been abducted on their own soil.

It is no longer enough to issue condemnations. The international system must evolve to meet the scale of these crimes, especially when they are ongoing.

More than 300 international legal experts have classified Hamas's actions as war crimes, crimes against humanity, and potentially even genocide.

- The legal basis is clear – hostage taking, the murder of civilians, torture, and the use of rape as a weapon of war are explicitly prohibited under international law.
- These are not acts of war gone awry.
- They are systematic crimes, prosecutable under the principle of universal jurisdiction.

- States have both the right and the duty to act, even when such crimes occur outside their borders.

So why, with dozens of their citizens taken captive, did nations (France, Thailand, Argentina, the U.S. and Germany) do very little to force Hamas's hand?

New standards are needed

It is time to invoke the Responsibility to Protect (R2P), not as an academic principle – but as a binding moral and legal obligation.

Under R2P, when a governing body fails to protect civilians from mass atrocities (or worse, perpetuates them), the international community must take “timely and decisive” action.

Though Hamas is not a state, it is a de facto governing body with effective control over a population and territory from which these crimes were launched. There is not legal or moral reason R2P should not apply.

In addition, countries that harbor or fund Hamas (such as Qatar, which hosts its leaders, or Iran, which arms and bankrolls it) bear international responsibility. If the world fails to hold these state actors accountable, it sets a devastating precedent – that mass rape, torture, and hostage taking can be outsourced to proxies without consequence.

To prevent future atrocities, the international community must establish new standards including the following.

- Automatic multilateral investigations into mass hostage taking and sexual violence in conflict, with legal and diplomatic consequences for obstruction.
- Concrete consequences for state sponsors of terror – including sanctions, suspensions from international bodies, and prosecution in international courts.
- A binding international protocol for hostage recovery when multiple countries' citizens are involved.
- An expanded R2P mandate that includes non-state actors with territorial control, like Hamas.
- This is not about Israel. This is not about Palestine.
- It is about what the world does when civilians are burned alive, when children are kidnapped, and when rape is used as a weapon of mass terror.
- It is a tests of whether international law has force, or whether it collapses when politically inconvenient.

Legal experts are wanting action. They are calling for the following.

- Calling for a stronger international response.
- Calling for a UN-led working group on hostage taking.
- Calling for a special envoy for hostage affairs.
- Calling for updates to global treaties.
- Calling for an annual summit of world leaders to build a long-term strategy for preventing and responding to such crimes.

Terror organizations across the world are watching. They are not only studying what Hamas did, they are watching to see what the world lets them get away with.

This is not just about protecting Israeli or Jewish lives – it’s about setting a universal standard that no human being, anywhere, can be used as leverage for terror.

If the world fails to act, October 7 won’t just be a tragedy – it will be a blueprint.

An article by Margot Cleveland titled “Memo Reveals D.C. Judges Are Pre-Deposed Against Trump Administration” was posted at thefederalist.com on July 16, 2025. Following are excerpts of the article.

Summary: The Trump Administration has been doing its part, but the lower courts remain rabid in their attack on the rule of law.

During the week of March 11, 2025, members of the Judiciary Conference met in Washington, D.C., for the first of its two regular meetings. As the U.S. Court’s webpage explains: “The Judicial Conference of the United States is the national policymaking body for the federal courts.”

The Judicial Conference (approximately 30 judges) consists of the following.

- Chief Justice Roberts is the presiding officer of the Judicial Conference.
- Membership is comprised of the chief judge of each judicial circuit.
- The chief judge of the Court of International Trade.
- One district judge from each regional judicial circuit.

Donald Trump is not merely the president: He is a Defendant in scores of lawsuits, including multiple cases in the D.C. District Court.

Federal judge James Boasberg advised Chief Justice John Roberts and some two dozen other judges that his D.C. colleagues were concerned “that the Administration would disregard rulings of federal courts leading to a constitutional crisis,” according to a memorandum obtained exclusively by The Federalist.

- That Judge Boasberg and his fellow D.C. District Court judges would discuss how a named Defendant in numerous pending lawsuits might respond to an adverse ruling is shocking.
- Equally outrageous is those judges’ clear disregard for the presumption of regularity – a presumption that requires a court to presume public officials properly discharged their official duties.

Judge Boasberg's comments reveal he and his colleagues hold an anti-Trump bias, for the Trump Administration had complied with every court order to date (and since for that matter). The D.C. District Court judges' "concern" also went counter to the normal presumption courts hold – one that presumes public officials properly discharged their official duties. Apparently, that presumption does not apply to the current president – at least if you are litigating in D.C.

And what is both troubling and ironic is that only a few days later, Judge Boasberg (in a case which he completely lacked jurisdiction, as the Supreme Court would later confirm), entered a lawless order commanding the Trump Administration to halt removals to El Salvador.

So, one of the judges concerned about Trump following the law, ignored the law.

Recently released emails related to the case before Judge Boasberg confirm the Trump Administration's intent was and remains to obey all court orders – even those lawless ones.

However, a side conversation at the group's most recent meeting revealed a disturbing detail – the predisposition of supposedly unbiased judges against the Trump Administration.

The Trump Administration has been doing its part, but the lower courts remain rabid in their attack on the rule of law – and now we know that at least some judges are likewise flouting their obligation to remain impartial or recuse from the case when they aren't.

An article by Jay Busbee titled "MLB All-Star Game 2025: Why Is the All-Star Game Back in Atlanta? Next Question [Baseball Is Ignoring That the Relocation Ever Happened]" was posted at sports.yahoo.com on July 14, 2025. Following are excerpts of the article.

Summary of the article: Four years ago, MLB moved its All-Star Game from Georgia. Now, as the game is set to return to Atlanta, baseball is ignoring that the relocation ever happened.

The game was removed from Atlanta in 2021 over Georgia's then-new voting rights law. Since the law is still very much intact, why is the All-Star Game back in Atlanta in 2025?

Three months before the 2021 All-Star Game was scheduled to be played at Truist Park, MLB commissioner Rob Manfred pulled the game from Atlanta and awarded it instead to Denver.

At the time, Manfred said: “I have decided that the best way to demonstrate our values as a sport is by relocating this year’s All-Star Game and MLB Draft. Major League Baseball fundamentally supports voting rights for all Americans and opposes restrictions to the ballot box.”

Georgia Governor Brian Kemp blasted MLB’s move at the time as a “knee-jerk decision” and added in a statement that “cancel culture and woke political activists are coming for every aspect of your life, sports included. If the left doesn’t agree with you, facts and the truth do not matter.”

When Manfred announced at the owners’ meeting in November 2023 that the All-Star Game would return to Atlanta in 2025, Kemp gave a statement that was a bit of victory celebration: “Georgia’s voting laws haven’t changed, but its good to see the MLB’s misguided understanding of them has. We look forward to welcoming the All-Star Game to Georgia.”

Isaiah 55:6-11—“Seek you the Lord while He may be found, call upon Him while He is near. Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts; let him return to the Lord, and He will have mercy on him; and to our God, for He will abundantly pardon. ‘For My thoughts are not your thoughts, nor are your ways My ways,’ says the Lord. For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are My ways higher than your ways, and My thoughts than your thoughts. For as the rain comes down, and the snow from heaven, and do not return there, but water the earth, and make it bring forth and bud, that it may give seed to the sower and bread to the eater, so shall My word by that goes forth from My mouth; it shall not return to Me void, but it shall accomplish what I please, and it shall prosper in the thing for which I sent it.”
