Luke 21:34-36—“But take heed to yourselves, lest your souls be weighed down with self-indulgence, and drunkenness, or the anxieties of this life, and that day come on you suddenly, like a falling trap; for it will come on all dwellers on the face of the whole earth. But beware of slumbering; and every moment pray that you may be fully strengthened to escape from all these coming evils, and to take you stand in the presence of the Son of Man” (Weymouth New Testament).

An article by Yonah Jeremy Bob titled “One Thing Is Stopping Israel From Entering Rafah, and It’s Not Hamas” was posted at jpost.com on March 28, 2024. Following are excerpts of the article.

There have been plans for months for where to evacuate the 1.4 million Palestinian civilians from Rafah for whenever the IDF would invade it.

To insider followers of the Israeli defense establishment, this was why the fight between Israel and the U.S. over the evacuation always seemed somewhat artificial and potentially more connected to other issues.

But it turns out there are some real sticking points: food, tents, and medical field hospitals.

Israel and the IDF had detailed plans for evacuating the civilians: Al-Mawasi on the coast, to designated parts of Khan Yunis that have already been cleared of Hamas, and to parts of central Gaza that have already been cleared of Hamas.

The plans include specific safe corridors which have also been mapped out.

And the IDF moved most of the 1.2 million Palestinian civilians out of Gaza City mostly successfully, so it has managed a mass evacuation already – in addition to smaller but sizable mass evacuations from Khan Yunis and parts of central Gaza.

Also, Israel and the IDF were willing to stagger the invasion of Rafah into stages to make sure that most of the civilians left before major fighting took place.

The fighting in Rafah is also not a huge impediment for the IDF. Hamas's battalions there (whether they have 4,000 fighters as previously said, or 8,000 as Strategic Affairs Minister Ron Dermer said this week) are viewed as much weaker than those of Gaza City and Khan Yunis, who the IDF has already thoroughly taken apart.

Preparing for evacuated Gazans will be harder than fighting Hamas

But IDF sources have now admitted that they had not fully taken into account that moving civilians from Rafah is completely different from the other evacuations – in terms of food, tents and medical field hospitals.

Military sources have admitted that if evacuating 1.2 million Palestinians from northern Gaza took 1-2 weeks (depending on how one measures things), evacuating 1.4 million civilians from Rafah to much less hospitable and prepared areas will take many, many more (translate: 1-2 months).

As long as Hamas is not ready to cut another interim deal with Israel to release more hostages, there is no real option for Jerusalem other than to go into Rafah in some way, and U.S. resistance is likely to recede.

Whether the U.S. will continue to back Israel as any Rafah operation plays out will then depend on the results: Do civilians make it out alive and are they able to continue to stay alive once moved, or not?

An article by Seth J. Frantzman titled “Invading Rafah: The Lessons IDF Should Take From Northern Gaza” was posted at jpost.com on March 28, 2024. Following is the article.

As Israel looks towards a future operation in Rafah, the battle will be overshadowed by lessons learned from other parts of the Gaza operation over the last five months. The grand maneuver in Gaza began five months ago on October 27, so there is a lot of information that commanders can glean from what they have already seen in the battle against Hamas.

There are essentially three phases of war in Gaza that will provide a backdrop for the Rafah operation.

- Phase one was the ground maneuver from October 27 to November 24.

This was the highest intensity phase of the war, and came in the wake of intense bombing of Gaza in the first weeks following the Hamas massacre of October 7.

This part of the war also received a lot of international attention, with accusations that it was too widespread, led to a lot of destruction, and also caused civilian casualties.

The battle for northern Gaza was led by two large IDF divisions (the 36th and the 162nd). When northern Gaza was mostly taken, 12 Hamas battalions had been defeated. The battles in the north involved tanks and APCs churning up roads and urban fighting in places like Shejaia, Shati and Jabalya.

Most civilians had been asked to evacuate in October, so there weren't many civilians in those areas when the tanks went in. The people returned though, in January and February, so that by March some 300,000 people were in northern Gaza and Hamas had returned with them.

- The second phase occurred in December and January with the operations in Khan Yunis.

The Khan Yunis battle was led by the 98th Division and its legendary commander Brig.-Gen. Dan Goldfus. This was a more focused battle involving more commandos. Civilians were also warned to leave before troops entered and then the troops moved slowly, neighborhood by neighborhood, to try to find tunnels and defeat Hamas. At least four more Hamas battalions were defeated here.

- The last phase that provides information for the battle in Rafah is the recent phase – which has seen precision raids into areas such as Shati, Zaytun and Shifa.

These areas were already taken by the IDF in November and December, so it meant returning to clear the areas again.

Some commentators claim that the IDF purposely let Hamas return to these areas to then catch them by surprise later. At Shifa, for instance, around a thousand terrorists returned to the hospital and the IDF raided the place with surprise, without telling people first.

What tactics will be used in Rafah?

Which IDF tactic will be used in Rafah? The 36th Division (which played such a key role in October and November) was moved to northern Israel in January. It is conducting a training program this week with battalion and brigade commanders. It is focused on the North.

The IDF said this week: “As part of the program, the commanders delved into professional content and the operational and strategic plans for the northern framework. The program, led by the 36th Division, included professional lectures and learning from the division’s combat lessons in the Gaza Strip, with specific adjustments for the challenges of the northern area.”

The U.S. wants a slow, phased, precision campaign in Rafah. A statement released by the U.S. Department of Defense following a meeting between Defense Secretary Lloyd Austin and Israeli Defense Minister Yoav Gallant said: “Regarding Rafah, a significant portion of the meeting focused on Israel’s concept of operations in that city, with Austin expressing that the United States’ goal is to help Israel find an alternative to a full-scale military operation that could potentially endanger the city’s civilian population, according to one senior defense official familiar with the meeting.”

The U.S. officials then discussed a plan that involves “sequence and a phasing of activities.”

It is not always easy to understand the coded language of military speak.

- “Alternative to full-scale military operation” sounds like precision raids by special forces and commandos.
- “Phasing” and “sequence” sounds like a slow maneuver, moving street by street with lots of time for civilians to move from one area to another – perhaps even moving civilians back and forth as parts of the city are taken.

It’s hard to know if any of this borrows from U.S. experience in backing operations in Raqqa in 2017 or Mosul in 2016, or in battles for Fallujah in 2004 and Ramadi in 2006.

Are there positive lessons to be learned from all those battles?

It would appear the levels of destruction in Raqqa and Mosul would be not accepted if Israel were to do the same in Rafah. Things were a bit easier for the Iraqis in Mosul because they had established IDP camps to move people to behind their lines. Israel does not want to do the same. This leaves more complex challenges regarding civilians in Rafah.

The overall issue in Rafah will be timing.

The U.S. is sending personnel and ships to build a temporary pier off the coast of Gaza. However, that will not be completed until mid- or late April. Concerns about humanitarian aid entering Gaza will overshadow the operation.

This is because most aid is not being delivered via Rafah, and thus Hamas is allowed to hijack the aid. Around 250 trucks enter Rafah each day, with another 30 or so entering northern Gaza. The goal will be to shift this movement of trucks and aid in such a way that it meets the needs of the civilians who will need to be moved during any campaign in Rafah. Even a “phased” campaign would require phases of moving 50,000 civilians and meeting their aid needs.

The last challenge will be to make the Rafah battle worth it.

Hamas will want to move out of Rafah as it moved out of northern Gaza – infiltrating the central camps area or other areas of Gaza, so that it can then return to Rafah. Hamas calculates that Israel does not have time on its side and that all Hamas has to do is “persevere” for another few months and it will win (when Israel will not accomplish its objectives).

Toward that end, Hamas leader Ismail Haniyeh went to Iran this week and bragged about how Hamas is winning the war. Hamas calculated winning differently than Israel.

- Hamas “wins” if there is more civilian suffering and if it can maintain its presence.

Israel talks about Hamas “battalions” but Hamas does not mind reducing its battalions and dispersing them into plain-clothes mafia-like groups of men who can control Gaza without needing to carry arms at all times. This is the Hamas model going back to its foundation in the 1980s.

Defeating this will require a lot more than just a phased precision operation going after the operatives that Hamas chooses to leave behind in Rafah.

Looking back to April 2023, an article by Sam Faddis titled “Wonder Where All These Illegal Immigrants Are Going to Live? Your Spare Bedroom Apparently” was posted at andmagazine.substack.com on April 18, 2023. Following is the article.

Most Americans have probably wondered (ever since Joe Biden erased our southern border) where all these illegal immigrants were going to go. Sure Joe flies them at taxpayer expense all over the country in the dead of night, but what then? Where are they all going to live?

We finally have the answer. In our spare bedroom apparently. Joe wants you to take them in. With great fanfare [in January 2023], the State Department has now kicked off the Welcome

Corps. [A press release by Secretary of State Antony J. Blinken titled “Launch of Welcome Corps – Private Sponsorship of Refugees” was posted at state.gov on January 19, 2023.]

The website said: “The Department of State, in collaboration with the Department of Health and Human Services, is pleased to announce the creation of the Welcome Corps – a new private sponsorship program that empowers everyday Americans to play a leading role in welcoming refugees arriving through the U.S. Refugee Admissions Program (USRAP) and supporting their resettlement and integration as they build new lives in the United States. Over the past year, the American people have extended an extraordinary welcoming hand to our Afghan allies, Ukrainians displaced by war, and Venezuelans and others fleeing violence and oppression. The Welcome Corps will build on Americans’ generosity of spirit by creating a durable program for Americans in communities across the country to privately sponsor refugees from around the world. The Welcome Corps is the boldest innovation in refugee resettlement in four decades.”

The website continued: “In the first phase of the program, private sponsors participating in the Welcome Corps will be matched with refugees whose cases are already approved for resettlement under the USRAP. The Department of State will begin facilitating matches between private sponsors and refugees arriving within the first six months of 2023.”

The idea that Joe is going to let millions of people walk across the southern border and then ask you to take them in (as if you were adopting a pet from a shelter) may sound like the plot of a Saturday Night Live skit. When you consider it in context, however, it seems completely consistent with this administration’s policy.

The average American believes and expects that our government is at least nominally attempting to control the flow of migrants into this country. That is not even arguably true. In fact, it is not the explicit, formal policy of the United States government to ensure the orderly movement of huge numbers of people into this country. We are not trying to stop them and failing. We bringing them here.

The website said: “The Biden-Harris Administration is committed to safe, orderly, and humane migration around the world – including the United States. In the very first days of the Administration (through a series of migration and protection-focused executive orders), President Biden established the framework for the United States to recommit to work collaboratively with governments, civil society, international organizations, and other partners to support humane migration, address the root causes of irregular migration, collaboratively manage migration in the region, rebuild the U.S. Refugee Admissions Program and other legal pathways for protection and migration, restore faith in the U.S. immigration system, include and integrate new U.S. citizens into civic life, protect child migrants, and supply family unity.”

That is now the formal policy of the United States government. We are focused on making sure that migration into this country occurs, and we are providing the necessary resources to make sure that it is as efficient as possible.

To this end, the United States via the United Nations has established what amounts to a conveyor belt of camps across Central America to allow migrants to move north in large numbers to our southern border. This is happening with the direct involvement of the Department of Homeland Security. DHS Secretary Mayorkas just visited camps in Panama as part of an ongoing effort by the Biden administration to double the capacity of the existing infrastructure.

Biden does not want to stop the flow of migrants. He wants to increase it.

The migrants are not wandering north only on foot. They are being moved in luxury buses like you might take on a tour. They are bused from camp to camp in vast numbers. Again, the bill for this is paid by United Nations outfits financed by the United States government.

Just to ensure migrants don't get lost, the Red Cross helps them.

- They hand out maps and guides.
- They show the routes to take.
- They show where all the camps are located.
- They provide detailed instructions on how to get across the U.S. border.

You are paying for those too.

Michael Yon: "This is an invasion caused by the U.S. government."

In two short years, we have gone from securing our border to using the resources of the American people to move literally millions of undocumented individuals into this country – in clear violation of our laws and contrary to the wishes of the vast majority of Americans. We are flooding this country with illegal immigrants not just from Central America, but from at least 140 nations around the globe.

And, now when all these millions of people get here, Joe wants you to take them in and support them. You might need bunk beds in that spare bedroom.

Isaiah 55:6-11—“Seek you the Lord while He may be found, call upon Him while He is near. Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts; let him return to the Lord, and He will have mercy on him; and to our God, for He will abundantly pardon. ‘For My thoughts are not your thoughts, nor are your ways My ways,’ says the Lord. For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are My ways higher than your ways, and My thoughts than your thoughts. For as the rain comes down, and the snow from heaven, and do not return there, but water the earth, and make it bring forth and bud, that it may give seed to the sower and bread to the eater, so shall My word by that goes forth from My mouth; it shall not return to Me void, but it shall accomplish what I please, and it shall prosper in the thing for which I sent it.”
