Luke 21:34-36—“But take heed to yourselves, lest your souls be weighed down with self-indulgence, and drunkenness, or the anxieties of this life, and that day come on you suddenly, like a falling trap; for it will come on all dwellers on the face of the whole earth. But beware of slumbering; and every moment pray that you may be fully strengthened to escape from all these coming evils, and to take your stand in the presence of the Son of Man” (Weymouth New Testament).

“Eye on the World” comment: Because the layout technician of this publication left on a family trip, this edition was completed on May 5—meaning it does not have the latest news items.

“Eye on the World” comment: The following headlines involve articles, which are considered international. The articles were not posted, but the headlines give the essence of the story.

In his 1989 farewell address, President Ronald Reagan worried whether we were doing a good enough job teaching our own children what it means to be American. He longed for what he called an "informed patriotism."

This sentiment was echoed over 30 years later by President Trump, who in his own farewell address warned that our "loss of confidence in ourselves" was not just a worry, but our greatest danger.

“No nation can long thrive,” President Trump said, “that loses faith in its own values, history and heroes—for these are the very sources of our unity and our vitality.”

It’s bad enough to lose one’s faith, which at least holds forth the possibility of recovering it.

- But what if we give up and abandon altogether the teaching of our children the true and inspiring story of America?
- What will become of our youngest Americans who are starting off with a blank slate about what our country means and stands for?
- What exactly are we doing if we are not teaching them about their country’s values, history and heroes?

The alarming answer is, in our nation today, there are far too many classrooms where our children and grandchildren are not learning about the positive revolution in human affairs set in motion by our Founders, or how later leaders like Abraham Lincoln, Frederick Douglass and Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. called upon the wisdom and vision of the Founders to defeat the evil injustices of slavery and segregation.

Instead, many are learning that our Founders were altogether sinful men unworthy of statues or even praise. The historic achievements of Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln, Douglass and King are being shelved in favor of the false and destructive narrative that we are a systemically racist and ultimately irredeemable nation.

Even worse—and at an alarming pace—students are being subjected to the radical concept known as critical race theory, which pits them against one another on the basis of race and gender under the guise of achieving “equity.” Not only is this extreme ideology deeply divisive and harmful, but it rejects America’s most defining principle—that as individuals we are all created equal by God.

This is not a formula for building a more perfect Union.

A great nation cannot survive if its citizens are taught to hold their own country in contempt. Our Founders knew that people are not perfect—that is why they created an ingenious constitutional system of checks and balances. But that system also requires strong civic engagement by citizens who understand and defend the values and traditions that make America special.

Critical race theory is a deliberate means to sow division and cripple our nation from within—one brainwashed and resentful student at a time. And while foreign adversaries like China and Russia surely work to inflame our divisions, we are doing this to ourselves.

Whether or not we can defeat this ascendant anti-Americanism is perhaps the most important cultural challenge of our lifetime, and fortunately a growing number of courageous parents, grandparents and teachers understand the stakes and have begun to speak out and push back.

The brave and patriotic parents and educators we have seen defend America’s founding principles fill us with optimism, confidence and hope. It is truly inspiring to see.

They just need the encouragement and support necessary to be successful.

By focusing on this issue, we have the opportunity to create an entirely new, diverse coalition of voters for these values—one built upon a genuine love for our nation and our children.

The creation of President Trump's Advisory 1776 Commission offered real promise, as it sought a return to a truthful, patriotic education worthy of an exceptional nation. But, signaling his capitulation to the far-Left of his party, President Biden canceled and disbanded the 1776 Commission just hours after his inauguration.

Now, patriotic Americans at the state and local level must lead the way. That means pressuring candidates and elected officials to clarify their positions, making patriotic education a defining issue in elections up and down the ballot this year and beyond. An important new tool for making this a reality is The 1776 Pledge to Save Our Schools just released by 1776 Action. Aside from affirming where candidates and officials stand on a set of core beliefs—that our Founding Fathers were great Americans who deserve to be honored as heroes, for example—the pledge includes four specific commitments for public K-12 education.

They include the following.

- Restoring honest, patriotic education that cultivates in our children a profound love for our country.
- Promoting a curriculum that teaches that all children are created equal, have equal moral value under God, our Constitution and the law, and are members of a national community united by our founding principles.
- Prohibiting any curriculum that pits students against one another on the basis of race or sex.
- Preventing schools from politicizing education by prohibiting any curriculum that requires students to protest and lobby during or after school.

It is true that President Biden and his congressional allies are working hard to impose a new federally-funded, federally-defined curriculum for civics and history, but education remains primarily a state and local issue—and rightly so.

And while it may seem difficult to make an impact in Washington, D.C., you may be surprised by how powerful your voice can be in your own school district or state capital.

By focusing on this issue, we have the opportunity to create an entirely new, diverse coalition of voters for these values—one built upon a genuine love for our nation and our children.

Critics often deride our push for truthful, patriotic education by claiming that we don't want to have "difficult conversations" about troubling aspects of our history. They're wrong. Our children and grandchildren should understand the full picture—our fundamental values, our greatest achievements, and the long struggles to overcome injustice as well.

In doing so, they will learn the story of a brave and vibrant people. They will learn the stories of amazing men and women of every color and background who, for almost 250 years, have together fought, argued and strived to build a more perfect union.

It's now up to us to choose—will we prepare our youngest generation to write the next exciting chapter in the great American story?

If so, we must act now, before it's too late.

An article by Jerry Newcombe titled "Humanizing the Victims of Abortion" was posted at townhall.com on May 2, 2021. Following is the article.

One of the great blessings of the United States is that written into our national birth certificate, the Declaration of Independence, is the acknowledgement that we are endowed by our Creator with the right to life.

But the right to life is under assault today through the widespread practice of abortion—and has been for decades.

Amazingly, through the years, there have been a few that actually survived an abortion attempt. In a previous piece, I mentioned the existence of about 300 or so survivors of abortion in modern America, including Claire Culwell. She has now written her story in a powerful newly-released book, Survivor. Christian apologist Josh McDowell says of the book, "It's a story of beauty, pain, regret, redemption, and encouragement."

I have had the privilege to interview Claire Culwell for a television segment for D. James Kennedy Ministries and my radio program. What follows is her story, based on what she said in those interviews and what she writes in her book.

Claire was adopted and grew up in a godly home in Austin, Texas, surrounded by Christian love. As far as she was concerned, abortion had zero impact on her—until she was about 20 and learned the background of her birth. She notes, "I never imagined that I would meet my birth mother and find out that I survived something that was literally meant to take my life."

Her birth mother (Tonya) says that her own family life had been very difficult, with little love in the household. So she sought attention outside the home. At age 13, Tonya eagerly welcomed the fickle affection of a boy whom she described as a "young, good-looking jock cowboy."

Soon she was pregnant. Tonya shares, "The most frightening day of my life was to tell my mother, and so I got up the courage and I told her. It didn't go well, you know. Here come the beatings, the telling me how worthless I was, how horrible I was, I was going to ruin the [family] name." And so on.

Tonya's mother forcibly took her to an abortion clinic to take care of the problem—against her will.

When it was over, says Tonya: "I remember going in that bathroom and just crying, just throwing up, you know. I'll never forget turning my head and seeing my baby and just staring at that canister . . . So in my mind I thought, 'With my mom's help, I just murdered my baby.'"

But as a couple of weeks passed, Tonya realized she still was somehow pregnant.

Now Claire's grandmother was really mad. They returned to the abortion clinic to find out how this could be. Claire says the clinic told her birth mother and grandmother that the "abortion had been successful on one baby, but they didn't know there were two; and so I had survived my birth mother's abortion."

Claire's grandmother didn't take well this news that there were twins—and only one had been aborted. But at that point it was too late to abort Claire. The pregnancy was too far along.

"And so I was delivered at 30 weeks," observes Claire, "and I weighed 3 lbs. 2 oz. I was ten weeks premature, and I had a dislocated hip, club feet. My visible signs are my every day reminder of being a twin. But miraculously the abortion instruments never touched my body." Thankfully, she was placed in a wonderful home. Today Claire is married, has children, and enjoys a wonderful life.

When Claire first learned of the circumstances of her birth, she was shocked. But she chose to forgive her birth mom, Tonya.

Later, they even got to speak at some pro-life venues together. Both Claire and Tonya, writes Claire in her book Survivor, are indeed survivors of abortion, and "by Christ alone" has their story been redeemed: "Death had tried to drive us apart, but love brought us together."

Claire adds, "God uses things that were meant for evil and turns them into things that are beautiful and fruitful, like he did with me. Bad things have been transformed into beautiful things in my life."

She told the D. James Kennedy Ministries television audience, "I share my story because I want to put a face and a name and a story with the unborn child, and I saw how abortion hurt my birth mother, and it has hurt and wronged so many women that regret their abortion. And so I believe that abortion takes the life of a human being just like me and just like you."

Life is a precious gift. Just as America's founders recognized that the Lord has granted us the right to life, may America once again cherish the God-given right to life. I know of one happy survivor in America who cherishes that right.

An article by Matthew R.J. Brodsky titled "When Everything Is Racist, There's No Room for Reason" was posted at newsweek.com on April 22, 2021. Following is the article.

Progressives today demand a profound remaking of the country. In their regressive Orwellian worldview, anti-Americanism is the new patriotism. In their version of American democracy, big tech thought police substitute for the real police now being defunded in communities across America. A free corporate media, presenting multiple sides of an issue and allowing for an open exchange of ideas on opinion pages, has given way to mob- and media-approved narratives and calls to silence and banish all dissent to the outer rim.

One result of these patterns is the Left's distortion of any discussion about the relationship between the issues of border security, immigration and voter integrity.

"Demographic change is the key to the Democratic Party's political ambitions," Fox News host Tucker Carlson observed during his show on Monday, April 12. "In order to win and maintain power, Democrats plan to change the population of the country."

The crux of Carlson's argument, backed up by evidence he cited, is that Democrats want open borders, no caps on immigrations and blanket amnesty for illegal aliens, thereby "importing a brand-new electorate" that they count on to vote Democratic. In the process, these policies dilute the vote of American citizens.

Democrats' own words have made Carlson's point obvious for some time. The commentator pointed to articles in The New York Times and quoted Democratic politicians, including Julian Castro and then-candidate Kamala Harris, who managed to say the typically quiet part out loud.

There are other clear examples of Democrats demanding policies that benefit them electorally. Last year in the height of the presidential campaign, many Democrats called for D.C. and Puerto Rico to be recognized as states. Apparently, when they dug a little deeper, they discovered that Puerto Rico might be too competitive as a state in elections, unlike D.C. which would be a solid blue state. While the House recently passed legislation for D.C. statehood, Democratic talk of Puerto Rican statehood has all but vanished.

Nevertheless, Carlson's comments set off the precise firestorm the Fox News host had anticipated, along with another round of hysterical calls to cancel his show. As is the new norm, the force of these calls can only gain purchase if they cast the issue as one of racism, rather than "a voting rights question," as Carlson explained.

This is the unfortunate place our country is in today. For the Left, the connective tissue that runs through every issue is the noxious claim of "systemic racism." It takes on many forms, such as critical race theory, intersectionality and the accusation that everything is a relic of the Jim Crow era. There is no debate or defense because the accusation is designed to skip the trial and move straight to sentencing. If it's a symbol it is torn down. If it's a person they are deplatformed, silenced, fired and doxed by the Twitterati. If it's a business or corporation it will be listed in The New York Times.

It's no surprise that calls for Carlson's firing came from the usual woke mob. But even the Anti-Defamation League (ADL), an organization that should have a solid handle on what racism is, decided to insert itself in the middle of a legitimate debate about immigration. It forcefully came down in favor of cancel culture by sending a letter of condemnation to Fox News demanding Carlson's termination.

The letter referred to Carlson's monologue as a "full-on embrace" and "open-ended endorsement of white supremacist ideology." Despite writing, "we believe in dialogue and giving people a chance to redeem themselves," the ADL concluded that “this is not legitimate political discourse.” This letter marks the ADL’s unfortunate transformation into just another arm of the ever-expanding progressive Left. After all, the ADL and the progressive wing it parrots aren’t merely trying to cancel Tucker Carlson. Their goal is to quash the debate on immigration entirely.

Despite these efforts, the relationship between the issues of border security, immigration and voting integrity is plain for all to see. There is nothing anti-Semitic or racist about pointing out how Democrats have focused on welcoming legal or illegal immigrants from countries that they believe will be ideological allies, and not from countries that tend to be more conservative. And despite the progressive attempt to label all points of disagreement as racist, a much stronger example of racism comes from those who refuse to see people as individuals and instead only as members of racial, ethnic and religious voting blocs.

Anti-Semitism is a real and growing threat. But the elected officials who most consistently attempt to brandish their anti-Semitism and anti-Zionism through legislation and as a part of their political platform are Democrats, who are being led by their progressive wing. At the same time, dramatic changes being forced on the American people today by Democratic policies touch all parts of everyday life. Paranoia, instability and fear is the well from which racism springs. In this context, we need more dialogue, not less.

The harnessing of individual grievances and woke ideologies for the Left’s perpetual expansion of political power constitutes a poison pill for the American political body. A real debate over immigration and voting rights is necessary. Panning everything as racist and silencing dissenting voices, at a time when too few politicians demonstrate courage, seems about as far away as one can get from what America’s Founders intended.

An article by Dominick Reuter titled “1 in 5 Electric Vehicle Owners in California Switched Back to Gas Because Charging Their Cars Is a Hassle, New Research Shows” was posted at businessinsider.com on April 30, 2021. Following is the article.

In roughly three minutes, you can fill the gas tank of a Ford Mustang and have enough range to go about 300 miles with its V8 engine.

But for the electric Mustang Mach-E, an hour plugged into a household outlet gave Bloomberg automotive analyst Kevin Tynan just three miles of range.

“Overnight, we’re looking at 36 miles of range,” he told Insider. “Before I gave it back to Ford, because I wanted to give it back full, I drove it to the office and plugged in at the charger we have there.”

Standard home outlets generally put out about 120 volts of power at what electric vehicle aficionados call “Level 1” charging, while the high-powered specialty connections offer 240 volts of power and are known as “Level 2.” By comparison, Tesla’s “Superchargers,” which can fully charge its cars in a little over an hour, offer 480 volts of direct current.

That difference is night and day, according to a new study published in the journal Nature Energy by University of California Davis researchers Scott Hardman and Gil Tal that surveyed Californians who purchased an electric vehicle between 2012 and 2018.

Roughly one in five plug-in electric vehicle (PEV) owners switched back to owning gas-powered cars, in large part because charging the batteries was a pain in the . . . trunk, the researchers found.

Of those who switched, over 70% lacked access to Level 2 charging at home, and slightly fewer than that lacked Level 2 connections at their workplace.

“If you don’t have a Level 2, it’s almost impossible,” said Tynan, who has tested a wide range of makes and models of PEVs over the years for his research.

Even with the faster charging, a Chevy Bolt he tested still needed nearly six hours to top its range back up to 300 miles from nearly empty—something that takes him just minutes at the pump with his family SUV.

Public charging stations may look like the electric version of the gas station, but nearly two-thirds of PEV drivers in the survey said they didn’t use them. Exactly why they didn’t use the public stalls was not specified.

EVs have come a long way in recent years in terms of range, safety, comfort, and tech features, but Hardman and Tal note that very little has changed in terms of how they are recharged.

The researchers warned that this trend could make it harder to achieve electric vehicle sales targets in California and other countries, and the growth of the market overall.

“It should not be assumed that once a consumer purchases a PEV they will continue owning one,” Hardman and Tal wrote. “What is clear is that this could slow PEV market growth and make reaching 100% PEV sales more difficult.”

Fixing the charging issue will require more participation from automakers, who have yet to find a profitable way of producing electric cars. Even Tesla, easily the leader in the category, was only able to eke out a first-quarter profit by selling energy credits and bitcoin.

“For all those legacy automakers, that profit and loss piece does matter. And that’s why you’re getting this half effort on electrification,” Tynan said.

An article by Mousumi Som titled "What Are the Blood Clots Associated With the Johnson & Johnson Covid-19 Vaccine? 4 Questions Answered" was posted at theconversation.com on May 3, 2021. Following are excerpts of the article.

Two vaccines—the Johnson & Johnson vaccine in the U.S. and the Astra-Zeneca vaccine in Europe—have been linked to an increased chance of a rare type of blood clot. Researchers are investigating what causes these clots and are starting to propose some answers. Dr. Mousumi Som, a professor of medicine at Oklahoma State University, explains what these rare clots are and how they are forming after people get vaccinated.

1. What are the blood clots?

A small number of people in the U.S. have developed dangerous blood clots after receiving the Johnson & Johnson vaccine. The clots have mostly been occurring in people's brains and, paradoxically, are associated with low platelet counts.

Normally, platelets help a person stop bleeding when they get injured. If you get a cut or have an injury, the body responds by sending platelets which act as a temporary patch. The patch attracts other platelets and they stick together to stop blood loss. Since platelets normally help the clotting process, this combination of low platelets and extreme clotting makes these clots medically unusual.

These specific types of clots—called cerebral venous sinus thrombosis—although rare, affect around two to five people per million per year and are potentially life-threatening without treatment. Vaccines aren't normally a trigger for this kind of clot.

2. Who is having these clots?

As of April 24, 2021, out of the 8 million people vaccinated with the Johnson & Johnson vaccine in the U.S., about 16 people have developed these blood clots. The clots occurred from six to 13 days after immunization, and the majority were in women between the ages of 18 and 48.

On April 26, 2021, news reports indicated that at least one man had developed a clot. The man is in his 30s and was hospitalized from a clot in his leg about two weeks after receiving the Johnson & Johnson vaccine.

Health officials in Europe have also reported that the AstraZeneca vaccine—a Covid-19 vaccine authorized and approved in Europe but not in the U.S.—has caused about 200 cases of low-platelet clotting. Importantly, both the Johnson & Johnson vaccine and the AstraZeneca vaccine use a type of harmless virus called an adenovirus to deliver instructions to the human body on how to build an immune response to Covid-19. This is called a viral vector vaccine.

The fact that the both vaccines use a viral vector and both are associated with blood clots has led many health experts to think that the clotting issues of the two vaccines may share the same mechanism.

3. Why are women getting more clots than men?

At this point, doctors still don't know what makes women more susceptible than men, nor what puts a person at risk for these clots. These clots can occur, though rarely, in people who don't get a vaccine. Scientists know that women are three times more likely to develop this type of clot without receiving the vaccine. Many researchers think this is because of birth control or other hormonal replacements that women take.

4. Why might the vaccines be causing blood clots?

Researchers believe that this specific low-platelet clotting is similar to a reaction some individuals get when they receive a blood thinner called heparin, called heparin-induced thrombocytopenia.

Doctors sometimes use heparin to thin a person's blood in the case of a heart attack or a blood clot when blood flow needs to be reestablished. But some people experience the opposite reaction, and their blood ends up clotting more instead. This happens because the body triggers an unwanted immune response after receiving heparin.

In these patients, heparin attaches to a product released from platelets called platelet factor 4. When this happens, the immune system considers the combined platelet factor 4 and heparin a problem, so it creates antibodies in response. These antibodies attach to the heparin and platelet factor 4 complex, and the body—which now thinks it needs to repair an injury—causes more clotting while using up even more platelets. This results in the low platelet count seen in these patients.

When doctors have looked at the blood of patients who developed clots after receiving the Johnson & Johnson or AstraZeneca vaccine, it looked very similar to the blood of people who have the low-platelet clotting reaction to heparin. This has led scientists and doctors to believe that the same process might be leading to these clots caused by the two vaccines.

An article by Doug Lynn titled "The Great Reset: An Ancient Faith Continuously Renamed" was posted at theburningplatform.com on May 3, 2021. Following are excerpts of the article.

- The welfare of humanity is always the alibi of tyrants—Albert Camus.
  - Those who can make you believe absurdities, can make you commit atrocities—Voltaire.

The writings of antiquity claim Mankind's desire to unite the world began six millennia ago on the plains of Shinar, starting with the Tower of Babel. That may be true. But, in any event, and whether or not history rhymes or repeats, be assured of this: Nothing is new under the sun.

80-year cycles

Grand events have cycled throughout history. In America, they seem to climax around every 80 years. For example, eight decades ago the nation was soon to enter the Second World War. Going back another 80 years, the country was on the brink of the U.S. Civil War, and a little more than 80 years before that was The Revolutionary War.

In recent decades, however, the birth pains of conflict have paired to modern technological progress—including advancements in global communications, banking, and warfare. These innovations, in turn, have delivered new creations of collective centralization; to wit, the emergence of international financial and political institutions, the League of Nations after World War I, the United Nations after World War II, and the emergence of the global panopticon in the wake of 911 and the ensuing War on Terror.

Now, as if right on schedule, it appears another historic climax has arrived. Except, this time, the events appear to be manifesting more along the lines of great purges like The French Revolution, Russia under Stalin, or Pol Pot in Cambodia.

Global scientific dictatorship

There can be no denying covid is being leveraged to establish a global scientific dictatorship. And, toward that end, the technocrats are utilizing Marxist dialectics. This is why the captive corporate news media alternates their headlines between covid hysteria and over-hyped racial agitation. Divide and conquer. Order out of chaos.

The modern mass media today is owned by a handful of corporations and under the control of a few billionaires. Media narratives are propagated in order to further the interests of these elites. This is accomplished by using deception to manufacture consent within entire populations. The false narratives form beliefs in the minds of people who, in faith, act upon the lies. And the acts of the believers, they believe, will save them from the societal “unclean” and dangerous “terrorists.”

The end result is not much different than the witch doctors of old casting spells and directing their tribes through fear and superstition.

Three-step process

My June 2020 article entitled “Coincidence Theorists See All Donut and No Holes in the Coronation of The Cult,” discussed how a Global Rite of Initiation occurred during the Spring of 2020 under the guise of Flatten the Curve, and societal lockdowns, as follows:

- Isolation for Purification (suspension of the normal ways / surrender / sacrifice / masking / trauma)
- The Transition (the old self dies, descending into a state of liminality / fever dream / void in the middle / blank canvas)
- Integration into the New Reality (or Resurrection to the New Normal)

As discussed in that article, the word “Corona” actually means “crown” and the Luciferian powers-that-be are playing a “cosmic chess match” whereby . . . they want people to choose—and those who refuse to fall with them would, as a result, suffer societal ostracization, economic isolation, starvation, and death.

The Vaccine-Deniers would then occupy the lowest caste of the New World Order. They would be the new Untouchables.

The greater good

In a previous article entitled “The Lies Of The Borg Are The Glue That Binds,” this blogger identified the actual danger hidden within the Covid Trojan Horse.

- In the precepts of Marxism, there is, undeniably, a fanatically religious aspect to “The Greater Good” complete with its own morality and law.
- The Greater Good of course, being the survival of The Collective.
- But even that is a lie. Look to all of the purges throughout history to see how The Greater Good has always been primarily about the survival of the Queen Bees in the hive.

Since the fall of man there have been thugs seeking power in order to demand their gods be worshipped—or to be worshipped as deities themselves. This has been true since the first tribes in Africa, through the pharaohs of Egypt, to the dynasties of Asia, and the Roman Caesars.

It’s no different now.

The new faith, like the old faiths, simply distills down to man worship. And what is Marxism if not fealty to The Collective? And what is “The State,” if not a collective of humans? And do not utopian dreams always spring from the minds of men?

It has been so from the time of the first lie.

Actions of the collective

And, once again, self-appointed gods have obtained power through deception. But, this time, their control is global. The modern financial wizards have centralized power through the usury of fractional-reserve banking and, over the decades, have consolidated their authority over transnational corporations and “sovereign” governments alike. And, yes, they certainly own the handful of corporations comprising the mainstream media today.

In October 2019, just weeks before the first covid-19 deaths were reported in China, the “Event 201” plandemic exercise was held in New York City. The event was sponsored by the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation, John Hopkins University, and the World Economic Forum (WEF).

Since that time, billionaire Bill Gates, the founder of a software conglomerate, has been on the news every week promoting various healthcare initiatives. Gates first urged more covid testing before quickly transitioning into a fairly successful global Vaccination Passport salesman. John Hopkins University posted all of the Orwellian covid maps that terrorized the internet over the previous year, and the founder of the WEF, Klaus Schwab, is the grand wizard behind the communistic Great Reset.

It is these same billionaires and organizations that subsidize the Centers for Disease Control (CDC) and the World Health Organization (WHO) in order to enforce their whims upon entire nations; as international corporations and small businesses fear lawsuits and employees comply with the new mandatory acts of faith instead of forfeiting their jobs.

Allegiance, faith, worship

In truth, the financial elite, on behalf of The Collective, are demanding fealty and the people must choose to obey. Obedience, therefore, is, in fact, allegiance, or faith, or maybe even . . . stealth . . . worship.

- Consider how covid collectivism requires its believers to participate in the new sacraments of wearing masks, social distancing, and mandatory vaccination—all against an invisible killer; except this particular devil has a survival rate of 99.74%.

- Furthermore, The New Faith comes complete with own religious vestments (masks, gloves, face shields), liturgy (statements of faith like “Masks Up,” “Together Apart,” and “Build Back Better,” hand-washing, and needles/penetration), hierarchy (medical facilities, CDC, WHO), and collectivist theology (the young must be injected to protect the old).

- Modern physicians have become the new witch doctors. Doctor’s offices, pharmacies, and hospitals are the new churches, mosques, and synagogues. And political chieftains, along with the experts at the CDC and WHO, are the new bishops, imams, rabbis, priests, cardinals, and deacons who, by default, yield their authority to the royalty presiding over central banking.

- In other words: Although the human immune system has successfully protected populations against every virus since time began, the new faith requires people now be injected with experimental synthetic pharmaceuticals in order to protect from a virus that has the same mortality rate as the flu for those under 50.

The new religion, therefore, is false and facilitated by misplaced faith inculcated through deception.

Magic-hat trick

But, just as any deprogrammed cult member will attest: people believe because they want to believe. And this is the seduction of covid-19, the magic-hat trick, if you will, in establishing the new system.

1. The believers get to be the saviors of humankind through masking, social distancing, and the reception of pharmaceuticals into their bloodstream.
2. The believers get to believe they possess the power, through faith, to manage the unmanageable.
3. And, finally, perhaps most importantly, the believers get to pretend their cowardice is virtue.

The Believers will scold the unclean for being callous, for jeopardizing grandma in the nursing home, but they don’t care at all about the people who have died from the vaccine, or for little children getting stuck like pigs with experimental Messenger RNA.

This is because, in the minds of the New Disciples, the needs of the many surpass those of the few. Or, in the words of Karl Marx: "From each according to his ability, to each according to his needs."

The New Believers, like the past ones, seek their salvation on earth.

Consolidating power for financial elite

This is why, when attempting to deprogram the deceived, it is far easier to sway them by calling their attention to the avarice of the pharmaceutical companies instead of the covid vaccine manufacturer's complicity in consolidating power for the financial elite. After all, a technological dictatorship is beyond the understanding of those living in the media bubble.

Yet the religious aspect of the new system is merely one leg of the three-legged stool of global dominion. The other two legs include the economic and the political; and, toward these ends, covid-19 has accomplished many objectives.

As previously posted in the aforementioned "Coronation of the Cult" article: "The Coronavirus pinprick collapsed the Economic Everything Bubble and deflected blame away from the bankers who blew it up. At the same time, it turned martial law into self-quarantine and abolished the First Amendment rights of American citizens including the free exercise religion, the freedom of speech, and the right peaceably assemble . . . all under the arbitrary mandates of Social Distancing. Additionally, cash has been transitioned into a viral threat—thus paving the way to a new digital world order; and the end of privacy. . . The televised outbreak also inflamed the fear and survival instincts of people in order to turn on each other while it massaged Wall Street and murdered Main Street. To be sure, supply lines have been centralized via Walmart and Amazon as Mom & Pop businesses were suffocated . . . this sort of Hegelian change meets the end of goals of The Cult because their ultimate desire is to rule over a diminished global population. This is not conspiracy, however, because the Malthusian dreams of the Cult are well-documented."

Weakened immune system

Some in the medical field have speculated the covid vaccines could weaken immune systems over a period of time through what is called "Antibody Dependent Enhancement" (ADE). It's what happened in the previous animal studies for the SARS vaccines when the test subjects were re-exposed to mutations. And, should the same outcome occur with the most recent covid strains, don't expect the New Medical Authoritarians to let the greatly-enhanced crisis go to waste: They will use the covid variants to ramp up the hysteria even more and further lock down the world.

It calls to mind the words of Yeats:

- Things fall apart; the center cannot hold;
- Mere anarchy is loosed upon the world,
- The blood-dimmed tide is loosed, and everywhere
- The ceremony of innocence is drowned;
- The best lack all conviction, while the worst
- Are full of passionate intensity.

Replacing churches

In any burnt-out ghetto in a capitalist society, two types of buildings remain standing: Liquor stores and churches. Why? Because these both give people comfort and hope. But during communist revolutions, the churches are replaced by a headquarters—or, perhaps, in the age of covid, the county health office. Except covid is not a health crisis; at least not as these were previously defined.

The covid-19 pandemic has been politicized.

Fear of the virus was used to overturn the 2020 U.S. Presidential Election and install a president whose family is most certainly financially compromised by communist China, according to e-mail documentation and a credible source with documented connections to the specific overseas dealings.

And, yet, the Orwellian Media spins nightmares of rising covid cases while stoking the flames of racial agitation—as high-tech internet companies and social media giants engage in outright medical, and political, censorship.

The great reset

The social contract is history. The U.S. Constitution is in process of being made void. The republic is shaking in its final death rattles. But the True Believers still place their trust in those facilitating The Great Reset.

Now ask yourself why Washington D.C. is surrounded by razor wire and locked down tighter than North Korea as the nation's southern border remains wide open.

Because covid is being used to establish the old dream of one-world under Mankind, the communist vision of uniting the earth under one system to rule them all. And, as history has proven, the largest past societal purges have occurred under Marxism.

Think about it: Covid originated in communist China and the Director-General of the WHO, Tedros Ghebreyesus, is a communist. This is not hard to understand. It's easy if you try. The Great Reset is nothing new. It is the same worn-out delusion that has been continually repackaged and sold to populations throughout the world for thousands of years.

Because people want to believe—and advertising works.

Isaiah 55:6-11—“Seek you the LORD while He may be found, call upon Him while He is near. Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts; let him return to the LORD, and He will have mercy on him; and to our God, for He will abundantly pardon. ‘For My thoughts are not your thoughts, nor are your ways My ways,’ says the LORD. For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are My ways higher than your ways, and My thoughts than your thoughts. For as the rain comes down, and the snow from heaven, and do not return there, but water the earth, and make it bring forth and bud, that it may give seed to the sower and bread to the eater, so shall My word be that goes forth from My mouth; it shall not return to Me void, but it shall accomplish what I please, and it shall prosper in the thing for which I sent it.”
