Luke 21:34-36—“But take heed to yourselves, lest your souls be weighed down with self-indulgence, and drunkenness, or the anxieties of this life, and that day come on you suddenly, like a falling trap; for it will come on all dwellers on the face of the whole earth. But beware of slumbering; and every moment pray that you may be fully strengthened to escape from all these coming evils, and to take your stand in the presence of the Son of Man” (Weymouth New Testament).

An article by Staff titled "Temple Mount Tensions: Hundreds Arrested, Palestinian Organizations Threaten Escalation" was posted at jpost.com on April 15, 2022. Following is the article.

Clashes broke out between Palestinian worshipers and Israeli security forces on the Temple Mount on Friday morning after a small group of protesters gathered stones and wood chunks to throw at Jewish worshipers and Israeli security forces.

According to the Red Crescent, 150 have been injured so far, as well as eight Israel Police officers. According to Palestinian reports, police used tear gas, stun grenades, and rubber bullets to break up the crowd that continued to protest after prayers ended. Some Palestinians waved Hamas flags and threw stones and fireworks towards Jewish worshipers at the Western Wall.

Over 300 protesters have been arrested so far.

"Rioters hoisted Hamas flags and threw stones at police," officer Eliyahu Levy told Army Radio. "In order not to infringe on the freedom of worship, we waited until the end of prayers and then went in to disperse the rioters." Israel Police later added that it will not allow rioters to disturb the public right to prayer.

He added that there are around 100 rioters out of approximately 12,000 worshipers.

"We are ready and prepared for any scenario," said Prime Minister Naftali Bennett.

"The violence levied at the Temple Mount this morning is unforgivable and stands against every religious belief in Israel," said Foreign Minister Yair Lapid. "We are committed to religious freedom."

"We did everything we could to avoid entering the Temple Mount," said Israel Police chief Kobi Shabtai. "We tried to leave the organization and management to the Waqf. When rioters threw fireworks and stones at Jewish worshippers down at the Western Wall, we intervened and arrested them."

"We will not stand for attacks against law enforcement and against law-abiding Muslims who are here to pray," he added.

United Nations Special Coordinator for the Middle East Peace Process Tor Wennesland wrote on Twitter that he was "Deeply concerned by the deteriorating security situation" on the temple Mount.

"Provocations on the Holy Esplanade must stop now. Allowing tensions to spiral further only risks another escalation."

The Jordanian foreign ministry reportedly harshly condemned the actions of Israeli security forces on the Mount, calling it a "serious violation" of Israel's responsibility to the site.

The office of Palestinian Authority head Mahmoud Abbas said that Israel is turning a political disagreement into a religious war, pinning the responsibility on Israeli action and police on the Mount.

Sheikh Omar Al-Kiswani from the al-Aqsa Mosque called on the Palestinian people to come to the Temple Mount on Friday and defend it, Palestinian media reported.

Hamas, PFLP and PIJ condemned the assault on Palestinian worshippers and called on Palestinians everywhere to support their "defense" of al-Aqsa.

Religious Zionist MK Itamar Ben-Gvir condemned Public Security Minister Omer Bar Lev for the riots, accusing him of not letting the police properly handle the situation.

"Even now, in the face of the videos and reports from the Temple Mount, it can be said that unfortunately, Minister Bar Lev is preventing the police from responding properly," Ben-Gvir said in a statement.

"When terrorists are throwing stones at the Western Wall and trying to kill [Jewish] worshippers and police officers, it is expected that the police will intervene and not just stand by," he added.

"Access to al-Aqsa is a religious Muslim right that keeps getting hampered by daily incursions into by Israeli security forces. They prompt angry responses," Ra'am said.

"The only solution to these clashes is to restrict access to anyone who isn't Muslim to the Temple Mount."

Joint List MK Ahmad Tibi arrived on the Mount after it was reopened to worshippers.

Ra'am head Mansour Abbas further told the Israeli-Arab A-Shams radio broadcast that he passed on the message to all relevant political and police figures that the Temple Mount is a red line for the party a weak thread in the stability of the coalition.

Ra'am MK Mazen Ghanaim warned Prime Minister Naftali Bennett in a letter that he would pull out of the coalition if police activity on the Temple Mount is not halted. The coalition is currently being held together by exactly 60 seats.

The Joint List released a statement after the larger clashes calmed down, saying: "The occupation is trying to escalate matters. Keep your hands off of al-Aqsa and off of Jerusalem," condemning the arrests and restriction of movement.

We have said time and again that our goal is to allow freedom of worship to everyone on the Temple Mount. That has not changed," said Public Security Minister Omer Bar Lev.

He added that police acted bravely, enduring risks to their own safety by blocking rioters who gathered stones and metalware to hurt other worshippers, and added: "We have no interest in the Mount becoming a center of violence. It will hurt everyone involved."

Bar Lev took to social media on Friday afternoon, stating that he had conducted a situational assessment with the Police Chief and Shin Bet (Israel Security Agency) regarding the incident on Temple Mount earlier in the day.

"I reiterate that we intend to work for freedom of worship at the Western Wall and Temple Mount," he said. "The police officers acted during the morning with no choice and only after it was clear that if they did not act then the prayers of tens and thousands of Muslims would not be able to end quietly."

"We are in a very complex time period, and it is important to us that despite great sensitivity, Muslims will be able to pray on the Temple Mount unhindered, certainly during Ramadan, as well as Jews at the Western Wall. We will continue to work for freedom of worship on the mount."

Rabbi Shmuel Rabinowitz, the rabbi of the Western Wall and the Holy Sites, called on Muslim religious authorities to work to stop the violence.

One of the reasons given for calls to arms seen on social media in recent days is that Jewish worshippers will try to perform a ritual sacrifice on a lamb ahead of Passover.

"Offering up an animal sacrifice on the Temple Mount is forbidden by the Israeli Rabbinate," added Rabinowitz.

Diaspora Affairs Minister Nachman Shai thanked Israeli security forces who "continue to do everything they can to fight terror and incitement," he wrote on Twitter.

In addition, three Jews were arrested by guards of the al-Aqsa Mosque on Thursday evening while attempting to sneak into the Temple Mount through the Council Gate while wearing Arab clothing, according to Palestinian reports.

Those arrests came as large crowds of Muslims were conducting evening prayers at the site.

Tensions have risen in recent days around the site amid warnings by Palestinian factions against plans by fringe groups to conduct the Passover sacrifice at the site this Friday. Israeli officials have stressed that doing so is forbidden and a number of Jews who were planning to do so have been arrested.

An article by Paul Bois titled “ ‘That’s Fraud’: Leftists Rage at Tony Dungy for Standing With Governor Ron DeSantis on Fatherhood Bill” was posted at breitbart.com on April 11, 2022. Following are excerpts of the article.

Left-wing Twitter went ballistic on Monday over coach Tony Dungy standing with Florida Gov. Ron DeSantis signing a pro-fatherhood bill into law.

DeSantis signed HB 7065 into law on Monday, a $70 million initiative that reportedly aims to “will provide resources for educational and mentorship programs to help children, fathers and families in the state through the Department of Juvenile Justice (DJJ) and the Department of Children and Families (DCF),” according to the Hill.

NFL Hall of Famer and sports broadcaster Tony Dungy attended the ceremony and hailed the bill as an important aid for fathers in the state.

“This is going to be tremendous and such a good help to fathers in Florida,” Dungy said. “This bill is so important. I want to thank all of the men and women that have been behind this. It is going to allow groups like All Pro Dad and people like those here today to do great things for our fathers here in Florida.”

Leftists on Twitter, however, believed that Tony Dungy had shown his true colors by standing alongside DeSantis, who they described as a homophobic bigot due to his anti-child grooming bill that will prevent school teachers from discussing sexuality with kindergarteners.

During media circus over the prospect of Michael Sam becoming the first openly gay player in the NFL, Tony Dungy inflamed LGBTQ activists when he said that he would not have drafted the player if he were coaching a team.

“I was asked whether I would have drafted Michael Sam and I answered that would not have drafted him,” he said. “I gave my honest answer, which is that I felt drafting him would bring much distraction to the team. At the time of my interview, the Oprah Winfrey reality show that was going to chronicle Michael’s first season had been announced.”

“I was not asked whether or not Michael Sam deserves an opportunity to play in the NFL. He absolutely does,” he added. “I was not asked whether his sexual orientation should play a part in the evaluation process. It should not. I was not asked whether I would have a problem having Michael Sam on my team. I would not.”

An article by Warner Todd Huston titled “[Tony] Dungy Doubles Down on Support for DeSantis’ Fatherhood Bill, Uses Obama’s Words Against Critics” was posted at breitbart.com on April 13, 2022. Following are excerpts of the article.

Ex-NFL coach Tony Dungy has doubled down on his support for fatherhood, using Barack Obama’s words against critics after leftists blasted him for standing with Florida’s Ron DeSantis as the governor signed a pro-fatherhood bill into law.

On Monday, Dungy attended the signing ceremony for Florida's HB 7065, a $70 million initiative that aims to "provide resources for educational and mentorship programs to help children, fathers and families in the state through the Department of Juvenile Justice (DJJ) and the Department of Children and Families (DCF)," Breitbart News reported.

The Hall of Fame football star praised the bill as an essential effort to help fathers in the Sunshine State.

"This is going to be tremendous and such a good help to fathers in Florida," Dungy said. "This bill is so important. I want to thank all of the men and women that have been behind this. It is going to allow groups like All Pro Dad and people like those here today to do great things for our fathers here in Florida."

Naturally, the left went on a rear against Dungy, calling him a "fraud," an "apologist" for racism, a "bigoted ahole, and more.

But on Wednesday, Dungy waved off the criticism and even used the left's favorite saint against them by posting a quote from Barack Obama in which the president cited statistics that proved how detrimental fatherlessness is for kids.

Dungy wrote, "2 days ago I spoke on behalf of a Florida bill that supports dads & families and it offended some people. 14 yrs ago President Obama said the same things almost verbatim. I'm assuming people were outraged at him too. I am serving the Lord so I'll keep supporting dads and families."

Dungy's point of the left's hypocrisy is on target.

An article by (Black conservative) Larry Elder titled "Justice Ketanji Brown Jackson—'Firsts' Only Matter If They're Liberal" was posted at townhall.com on April 14, 2022. Following is the article.

After the confirmation of Ketanji Brown Jackson as the first black female justice to the U.S. Supreme Court, liberal hypocrites parroted the same talking points.

MSNBC host Yasmin Vossoughian said: "Minority children across the board watching Judge Ketanji Brown Jackson gain this seat on the Supreme Court (were) inspired by what she's been able to achieve."

MSNBC host Tiffany Cross said: "This week we bore witness to history as we watched Judge Ketanji Brown Jackson become Justice Designate Ketanji Brown Jackson. It has taken over 230 years to get to this point, and for the first time in U.S. history, white men are not the dominant representation of what so many have called 'blind justice' on the Supreme Court."

PBS and NBC journalist Yamiche Alcindor said: "Well, this was a profound moment in history. And Judge Jackson, soon to be Justice Jackson, really leaned into the history that she is making . . . She talked about being an inheritor of America's promise of justice for all."

And the race-incendiary Rev. Al Sharpton took a shot at the obviously “racist” Republicans for not joining in the celebration of the historic event: “As great as it is today, for black women, for women, and for black people, we all couldn’t celebrate that together. (Republicans) didn’t even have enough humanity to say this is historic. And I think that that is very telling.”

No, what’s telling is the phoniness of the celebration.

Where was this desire for the “first black female” justice to the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia—arguably the second-highest court in the country—when then-Sen. Joe Biden and the Democrats, from 2003-2005, used the filibuster to attempt to block the nomination of black conservative female Judge Janice Rogers Brown? Worse, when she finally received confirmation, Biden publicly threatened to filibuster her again should President George W. Bush nominate her to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Rogers Brown, the daughter and granddaughter of sharecroppers, put herself through UCLA law school as a single mom. Appointed to the California Supreme Court by a Republican governor, she received 76% of the vote in this liberal state when she ran to keep her seat. Her winning percentage was higher than any other justice on the ballot that year. But who cares? After all, she’s a conservative.

When I ran to recall California Gov. Gavin Newsom, The New York Times wrote a negative article about my candidacy and never mentioned my race or that I would have become the first black governor of California. Fine with me. Isn’t it past time to consider one’s suitability for office without regard to race, ethnicity or gender? But on the same day, the same newspaper in another article gushed over the “first” female governor of New York, a Democrat.

After the election of Barack Obama, the first black president, isn’t virtually every other black “first” anticlimactic by comparison? Blacks have been, and are, CEOs of Fortune 500 companies; presidents of the American Bar Association and the American Medical Association; governor of Virginia, once the capitol state of the confederacy; president of an Ivy League university; and listed on the Forbes 400 Richest Americans. Blacks are 13% of the U.S. House of Representatives, mirroring the percentage of the black population in America.

As to the black females being “inspired” by Justice Brown Jackson, black females have long had higher self-esteem and more confidence than any other group of females, including whites. While on average, black women are heavier than white women, black females report greater satisfaction with their bodies than do white women.

Finally, it was the first black president who said: “My identity might begin with the fact of my race, but it didn’t, couldn’t end there. At least that’s what I would choose to believe.”

An article by Dennis Prager titled “What the Left Has Done to Women” was posted at townhall.com on April 12, 2022. Following is the article.

As I have documented on a number of occasions, the Left ruins everything it touches. There is no exception. From universities to high schools and now including even elementary schools, to late-night TV, to sports, to the arts and, increasingly, science, the Left is a destruction machine.

And nowhere is this damage more evident or tragic than with regard to women.

In fact, nothing demonstrates the power of left-wing ideology as much as what this ideology has done to women. So powerful is leftist ideology, it is more powerful than women's nature.

Here are five examples.

■ No. 1: The Desire to Bond with a Man

For all of recorded history, virtually all women sought a man with whom to bond. Of course, a progressive would argue that this was true only because all societies implanted this desire in women or because societal pressure gave women little choice about the matter. It is not, progressives would argue, innate to female nature to yearn for a man.

But whatever the reason—innate nature or societal expectation—it is a fact that women desiring a man was virtually universal.

Then along came modern left-wing feminism, which communicated to generations of young women through almost every influence in their lives—most especially teachers and the media—that a woman doesn't need a man. In the witty words of one feminist aphorism, "A woman without a man is like a fish without a bicycle."

Unfortunately, however, the reality is most women need a man just as most men need a woman. Most men don't fully grow up without a woman, and most women don't fully grow up without a man (I am, of course, referring to heterosexual women and men). If you need proof, ask almost any married person, man or woman, if marriage matured them.

■ No. 2: The Desire to Marry

Along with wanting a man, the vast majority of women wanted to marry. It was assumed that wanting that public commitment to and from a man was part of female nature. Yet the Left has successfully undone that part of women's nature too.

As a result of feminist and other left-wing indoctrination, the belief that a woman doesn't need a man led to the inevitable upshot: marriage isn't necessary. And it might even be a tool of oppression. And as a result of that, a smaller percentage of American women are marrying than ever before.

This has serious social consequences. We have long known that single men perpetrate most of the violent crime in society. Single men are a societal problem. What we have not acknowledged—and perhaps not even known—are the deleterious effects of women not marrying.

While single women don't commit nearly as much violent crime as single men do (though they may be starting to catch up), single women are increasingly a societal problem. The most obvious problem is that women who have children without ever marrying their children's father—or another man—produce a highly disproportionate percentage of social misfits. But many women who never give birth nor marry also constitute a societal problem. They are more likely to be angry and to express that anger in support of radical causes that undermine society. As Barron's reported, while overall a mere 14.2% of the population contributed to "racial justice causes" such as Black Lives Matter in 2020, "nearly half of single women in the U.S.—a larger percentage than single men or married couples—supported or were actively involved in racial justice protests."

As reported by one women's activist organization, Women's Voices Women Vote, already in the 2012 election, "the marriage gap dwarfed the gender gap . . ."

■ No. 3: The Desire to Have Children

At least as much as wanting to bond with a man and wanting to get married were deemed a part of women's nature, the desire to have children was regarded as even more embedded in female nature. Yet, incredibly, leftist ideology is even succeeding in eliminating that part of women's makeup. More women than ever before—abroad as well as in America—are choosing not to have children. See, for example, the article, "More women like me are choosing to be childfree. Is this the age of opting out?" published, appropriately, in The Guardian. The author ends her piece this way: "I'll say it plain: I don't want children, I never have, and it doesn't feel like any kind of lack. To me, it just feels like being alive." She speaks for an increasing number of women.

■ No. 4: The Desire to Have Sex with Commitment

Another part of women's nature that the Left has undermined is the desire of women to have sexual relations with a man who might commit to her. Or, at the very least, to have sex only with a man to whom she has some emotional attachment. Left-wing feminist ideology has even been able to undermine that. Three generations of American women have been indoctrinated into believing that their sexual nature is the same as that of a man. Therefore, she can have "hookups," i.e., non-emotional, non-committal sex, just like men can with no emotional fallout. And so, many young women do. But a far greater percentage of them experience regret or even depression than do young men who engage in "hookup" sex, a form of sex that is indeed part of male nature.

■ No. 5: The Desire to Protect Children's Innocence

Perhaps the most amazing thing progressive ideology has done to women is to subvert the innate female desire to protect children, specifically children's sexual innocence. The movement to teach very young children about sex, about "gender fluidity," expose them to "Drag Queen Story Hours," etc., is overwhelmingly led by and composed of women.

Leftism would appear to demonstrate that ideology can trump human nature. Such is the power of social indoctrination. One inevitable result is a generation of more depressed young women and more regretful middle-aged women than ever before in American history.

The Left ruins everything it touches. You can add women to the list.

An article by Cal Thomas titled "Parents Rights: Round 2" was posted at townhall.com on April 12, 2022. Following is the article.

The battle over whether parents, or public schools and elites should decide what goes into the minds and souls of students has entered a second stage.

The Washington Times reports LGBTQ activist groups are complaining about parents who object to children as young as five being taught gender issues and reading books that contain profanities and anti-police messages.

Deborah Caldwell-Stone, who directs the disingenuously named Office of Intellectual Freedom for the American Library Association (ALA), is quoted by the newspaper as saying, "A parent or group should not have the right to restrict through government action what another parent's child may choose to read." That will come as a surprise to many parents who have a right to believe their child's school lunch will not contain harmful substances, as well as the right to keep their kids from having a secular-progressive political agenda tainting their minds.

Caldwell-Stone has it backward. It is not the conservative and religious parents who have stirred up this hornet's nest. It's the left-wing secularists who are indoctrinating children and stealing their innocence. I suspect many parents want teachers to stick to traditional subjects. Parents can teach whatever they wish to their kids at home. The public schools should focus on catching up to China on subjects like science and math, as well as teach the full breadth of American history.

Caldwell-Stone apparently missed the significance of last November's election in Virginia, which saw Gov. Glenn Youngkin ride to victory, largely on the issue of parental rights. Last week, Youngkin signed into law a measure that requires the state's schools to notify parents if their children are assigned books or other materials with sexually explicit content.

In New Jersey, educators are taking the opposite approach. According to the New York Post, first graders will learn in sex education classes "gender, gender identity, and gender role stereotypes" from a film called "Pink, Blue and Purple." Let's see how long it will be before New Jersey parents follow those in Virginia and show up at school board meetings, demanding the right to protect their children from what the education establishment and left-wing activists want to impose on them.

How is it that parents are encouraged to exercise parental control over their child's computer and movie choices (there are apps and icons for this), but when it comes to their schooling they are told to butt-out?

I doubt cries of "censorship" from the ALA will have the impact it did in the 1980s when the organization made similar claims about intellectual freedom over sexually suggestive books some wanted banned from libraries.

Few, if any, issues rank higher for parents than the well-being of their children. It is why school choice is an option in growing numbers of states. According to the website edchoice.org, "There are 76 educational choice programs . . . in 32 states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico." The one thing elected officials fear most is when voters start paying attention to what they are doing.

For parents who live in states that don't offer the school choice option they should, if possible, pull their kids out and put them in private schools, or home school them.

If private or home schooling are not feasible, parents can start showing up at school board meetings and demand their rights to be the primary educators of their children and the ultimate determinators when it comes to what they learn. Showing up and protesting at school board meetings worked in Virginia.

Isaiah 55:6-11—“Seek you the LORD while He may be found, call upon Him while He is near. Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts; let him return to the LORD, and He will have mercy on him; and to our God, for He will abundantly pardon. ‘For My thoughts are not your thoughts, nor are your ways My ways,’ says the LORD. For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are My ways higher than your ways, and My thoughts than your thoughts. For as the rain comes down, and the snow from heaven, and do not return there, but water the earth, and make it bring forth and bud, that it may give seed to the sower and bread to the eater, so shall My word be that goes forth from My mouth; it shall not return to Me void, but it shall accomplish what I please, and it shall prosper in the thing for which I sent it.”
