Luke 21:34-36—"But take heed to yourselves, lest your souls be weighed down with self-indulgence, and drunkenness, or the anxieties of this life, and that day come on you suddenly, like a falling trap; for it will come on all dwellers on the face of the whole earth. But beware of slumbering; and every moment pray that you may be fully strengthened to escape from all these coming evils, and to take your stand in the presence of the Son of Man" (Weymouth New Testament).

An article by Dave Lawler titled “Global Military Spending Tops $2 Trillion for First Time, Led by U.S.” was posted at axios.com on April 25, 2022. Following are excerpts of the article.

Global military spending topped $2 trillion in 2021 for the first time, with the U.S. accounting for 38% of that total, according to an annual report from the Stockholm International Peace Research Institute [SIPRI].

- The U.S. and its NATO allies together accounted for 55% of global military spending.

- That percentage jumps to 61% if you include the U.S. treaty allies in the Pacific: Australia, Japan, New Zealand and South Korea.
- On average, 6 cents of every dollar governments around the world spend go towards the military, though the average is considerably lower in Europe and South America.
- The U.S. spent more than the rest of the top 10 combined.
 1. U.S.—$801 billion—38% of global spending
 2. China—$293 billion—14%
 3. India—$76.6 billion—3.6%
 4. U.K.—$68.4 billion—3.2%
 5. Russia—$65.9 billion—3.1%
 6. France—$56.6 billion—2.7%
 7. Germany—$56 billion—2.7%
 8. Saudi Arabia—$55.6 billion (estimated)—2.6%
 9. Japan—$54.1 billion—2.6%
 10. South Korea—$50.2 billion—2.4%

An article by Adam Turner titled “China Lurks Behind Most Crises Facing America” was posted at americanthinker.com on April 22, 2022. Following is the article.

Since the disastrous U.S. withdrawal from Afghanistan last August and Russia’s invasion of Ukraine, it has felt like the world is on fire. But in the midst of these attention-grabbing crises, there is an even more pernicious threat facing the United States and the signs are all around us. Behind most major foreign policy issues lies China.

Take the Iran nuclear deal. Media reports indicate that Iran’s fleet of tankers has ferried at least $22 billion worth of illicit oil to the People’s Republic of China since 2021. This has provided the Iranian regime with a major source of revenue and raised questions about the Biden administration’s lax enforcement of sanctions.

It is as good an example of China’s duplicity as can be found today. But it is not an isolated incident.

Leading up to the invasion of Ukraine, the U.S. approached China numerous times to detail U.S. intelligence suggesting a likely invasion. The U.S. asked China to persuade Russia not to invade. Instead, China simply passed along the intel to Moscow.

What about the deadly and economically devastating global pandemic? China’s role in the origin of covid-19 continues to be an unanswered question deserving of serious inquiry. In fact, according to an internal memo from the State Department from April 2020, it appears more likely than not that the virus was released from a lab in or around Wuhan, China, such as the Wuhan Institute of Virology or the Wuhan Center for Disease Prevention and Control.

Certainly, China is not a friend of the United States. But is it the most hostile nation threatening our national security today?

China is—let’s not forget—a communist state that is conducting a “soft war” of propaganda and espionage against the U.S.

For example, China continues to sponsor the controversial Confucius Institutes, spending more than $158 million since 2006 to place them in U.S. schools. These institutes are placed on college campuses, but controlled, funded, and mostly staffed by the Chinese communist government. They are not the innocent cultural centers offering Chinese language instruction they pretend to be. In fact, their legacy is “an epidemic of self-censorship at U.S universities” that funnels students away from “topics likely to offend the Chinese Communist Party.”

Allegations of espionage have become quite common, prompting Congress to pass legislation barring universities with Confucius Institutes from also receiving money from the Defense Department. Additional efforts to limit foreign control over these Institutes achieved some success in the Senate but has stalled in the House.

Chinese espionage expands well beyond university grounds.

In July 2020, FBI Director Christopher Wray put China’s threat in stark terms: “The greatest long-term threat to our nation’s information and intellectual property and our economic vitality is the counterintelligence and economic espionage threats from China . . . Of the nearly 5,000 active counterintelligence cases currently under way across the country, almost half are related to China. It’s the people of the United States who are the victims of what amounts to Chinese theft on a scale so massive that it represents one of the largest transfers of wealth in human history.”

It would be nice if the Biden administration took Communist China’s soft war against the U.S. seriously. But other than a “diplomatic boycott” of the Beijing Winter Olympics—an ill-defined and novel tactic with little metrics to show for the effort—the administration has refused to demonstrate serious resolve when it comes to Chinese treachery, theft, and espionage. In fact, it did just the opposite by ending the “China Initiative,” a Justice Department Trump-era effort to combat the growing threat of Chinese espionage and trade secret theft.

But burying our heads in the sand is not going to make this threat go away. More likely, it will only serve to embolden the source of most of our most dangerous crises.

An article by Tim Meads titled “Is Federal Censorship Coming? Biden Admin Creating ‘Disinformation Governance Board’: Report” was posted at dailywire.com on April 27, 2022. Following is the article.

After Joe Biden was declared the winner of the 2020 presidential election, independent journalist Glenn Greenwald predicted that Democrats would use the force of the government to crack down on conservative reporting under the guise of combatting “national security” threats.

Now President Biden’s Department of Homeland Security is reportedly working to create a “disinformation governance board” to counter what they determine to be false information relating to national security.

On Wednesday, Politico reported that DHS is creating the board “to coordinate countering misinformation related to homeland security, focused specifically on irregular migration and Russia.”

Nina Jankowicz will now reportedly head the new DHS board as executive director. Jankowicz was one of the prominent liberals who appeared to believe that the device was Russian disinformation.

While Russia has certainly been guilty of putting out disinformation around the globe, American intelligence officials have also labeled factual information—like Hunter Biden’s “laptop from hell”—as Russian propaganda as well. Even the mainstream media now admits that the contents of that laptop were real.

In March 2021, Jankowicz tweeted that the intelligence community “has a high degree of confidence that the Kremlin used proxies to push influence narratives, including misleading or unsubstantiated claims about President Biden, to US media, officials, and influencers, some close to President Trump.”

“A clear nod to the alleged Hunter laptop,” she posited.

It is unclear what she was suggesting was misleading or unsubstantiated—with regard to the laptop—when she sent that tweet. Various media outlets at that time had not dug into the veracity of its contents. The media and Jankowicz, appeared to accept at face value the intelligence community’s false report that it was Russian disinformation. Twitter also infamously blocked the story from its site based on information from intelligence community members.

Consider also that on November 16, 2020, former President Barack Obama stated that a “combination of government regulations and corporate practices” was needed to control the internet.

“There is no question that Democrats are gearing up to use their new power to apply far more pressure than ever on Facebook, Google, Twitter, etc. to censor any views they deem ‘threatening,’” journalist Glenn Greenwald tweeted at the time, The Daily Caller noted.

“Please look at what is going here,” Greenwald added. “Democrats are defining whoever opposes them not as adversaries but as national security threats, fascist terrorists, etc.—all to justify blocking them from the Internet using their influence with Silicon Valley.”

Likewise, in late April of this year, Obama announced that believed that “some democratic oversight” is needed on the internet to supposedly-protect democracies from disinformation. “I believe we should use every tool at our disposal to secure our greatest gift—a government of, by, and for the people—for generations to come,” he added.

Considering that in 2020, Twitter took extra efforts to censor any mention of Hunter’s laptop story off its platform while citing national security concerns, it is not unreasonable to assume that in the future, Biden’s “disinformation governance board” could “use every tool” at the government’s disposal by working with big tech censor future stories that they incorrectly deem to be a threat to American democracy.

If the disinformation board is ever given actual teeth to enforce censorship to allegedly protect national security—or if companies willingly comply as Obama has called for to happen—Big Tech sites and our own federal government could prevent Americans from easing accurate stories that might affect how voters choose to cast their ballots.

An article by Anthony Matoria titled “Censorship, Misinformation and Democracy” was posted at americanthinker.com on April 18, 2022. Following is the article.

American society is in the midst of a vigorous meta-debate concerning censorship, free speech, and democracy. This debate is, at times, difficult to follow because of the apparent contradictions and double-speak that it produces. It may be useful to make some distinctions that are inherent in this discourse.

The first such distinction is in what different parties mean by the term “democracy.” There is a progressive faction that insists that, for example, social media suppression of certain views is essential to “our democracy.” Free speech is therefore a potential threat to democracy, a counter-intuitive claim.

Limited options

The progressive view of democracy is that people are granted the ability to choose among limited possibilities that are acceptable to globalist elites. The concept is familiar to parents who influence their children’s behavior by providing only acceptable choices: rather than asking if the child wants to brush his teeth, the parents ask if the child wants to use a blue or red toothbrush.

The progressive uses the same tactic.

- Do you want increased immigration from lax border enforcement or reform of legal immigration laws, or both?
- Do you want to eliminate fossil fuels with carbon taxes or subsidies for renewable energy or both? And so on.
- “Democracy” in this context is the illusion of choice provided by choosing among the options acceptable to elite opinion.

When progressives claim that free speech is a threat to “democracy,” they are not contradicting themselves; they are merely being selective about what they mean by “democracy.”

The classical liberal view is that democracy allows the people to choose among all available alternatives, not merely those preselected and acceptable to elite opinion.

- Dispute about this point is why progressives accommodate outright censorship.
- They do not want the people to be informed of possibilities and alternatives other than those favorable to a progressive agenda.

For example, elite opinion wants everyone to be vaccinated against covid, therefore any information that might raise questions that are inconvenient to this goal must be suppressed, whether it is legitimate questioning of vaccine efficacy and side effects, the availability of treatments, the virulence of variants, etc.

Facts versus truth

In order to understand the role of censorship and misinformation in public discourse, it may be useful to make a simple distinction between facts and truth. Notice the difference in simple terms.

- Facts are observed, and truths are inferred.
- Facts are evidence, and truth is the conclusion drawn from the evidence.

This relationship between facts and truth is found throughout science and human progress.

For example, Tycho Brahe made detailed observations of the motions of planets—i.e., recorded the facts—and Johannes Kepler used these data to derive the laws of planetary motion—i.e., the truth. The key characteristics of facts and truths in this simple model are that facts must be accurate descriptions of observations, and truths must represent the realities that facts illustrate.

This schematic distinction between facts and truths illustrates the difference in worldview between progressives and classical liberals.

- One practical example of this principle is that crime rates before and after the enactment of bail reform laws and the election of progressive prosecutors are facts, and the people are quite qualified to assess those facts and determine if the theories of experts and elite ideologues are valid.

One of the premises, as well as benefits, of true democracy is that the people possess collective wisdom, reason, and common sense to derive truths from facts if those facts are accurately presented, particularly with regard to political questions. The progressive view is that only experts or self-styled elites are qualified to do so. This latter view results in the claim that any proffered facts or inferences drawn from them are “misinformation” if they conflict with progressive opinion.

Seeking to control discourse

Progressives try to control discourse in various ways.

- One is by limiting dissemination of facts so that the people are not tempted to draw disfavored conclusions from them.

This tactic is commonly seen in crime reports, where the race of the suspect is known but not reported. It was also seen in Pfizer’s attempt to prohibit inspection of clinical data regarding covid vaccines for 75 years and social media companies squelching any covid-related discussion of ivermectin. The result of this tactic is the censorship found on Twitter and Facebook.

- Another progressive tactic is to explicitly limit analysis of facts to selected experts or to permit journalists to substitute subjective determinations of what they think is the truth for objective information.

The evening news was once fifteen minutes long and consisted mostly of facts, without the presumptuous need to have someone explain what those facts meant. The role of journalists was understood to be to report facts accurately and without bias, and opinions were clearly identified as such. "Fake but accurate" was an oxymoron. Favored opinions are now presented as truths, and anything that questions or contradicts them is derided as misinformation and "dangerous." The goal of this tactic is to create doubt in people's ability to evaluate, discuss, and draw conclusions from the facts so that the only opinions open for discussion are "approved" opinions.

■ A third tactic of progressive information management is to hinder popular evaluation and discussion of facts by resorting to euphemisms and neologisms.

Thus, "facts" are presented in language such as "birthing person," "mostly peaceful," "Putin's price hike," etc. The implication of such language is that it is irrefutable that men can give birth, that it is Putin to blame for inflation, etc. These are opinions presented as facts, with the intent to inhibit, by altering basic assumptions, people's ability to objectively analyze and draw independent conclusions from them.

The above observations permit understanding of the seemingly dystopian and surreal discussions around misinformation, censorship, and democracy.

Elite opinions are superior

In a nutshell, elite opinion believes that ordinary people should not be trusted to make an independent evaluation of facts in order to ascertain truths, nor make informed, independent decisions about their individual lives and the societies in which they live. Furthermore, the elites believe that if people are allowed to evaluate and discern among all possible alternatives regarding a particular issue, they might make the wrong decisions, and therefore the choices with which they are presented must be limited to a narrow, approved range. This is not democracy; it is paternalistic tyranny, and it is stupid and destructive.

This left-wing enterprise is currently vigorous and pernicious. It manifests in such things as the New York Times claiming that James O'Keefe is not a legitimate journalist, or social media platforms deciding among themselves what are "approved news sources" or "independent fact-checkers."

The validity of facts does not depend on who reports them. This leftist enterprise can and will do a significant amount of damage, but it is destined to fail in the long run, because the truth is not a matter of opinion, and the people are better judges of their own interests and welfare than are tech oligarchs and cherry-picked experts. The reality of the world, ignored at one's own peril, is that facts are stubborn things, and as Shakespeare observed in The Merchant of Venice, "the truth will out."

An article by Deroy Murdock titled "How Woke Disney Stepped on Easily Avoidable Mouse Trap" was posted at cnsnews.com on April 25, 2022. Following is the article.

Florida lawmakers voted Thursday to end the Walt Disney Co.'s special self-government privileges, which it never should have received. Since 1967, Disney has operated its own mini-state, surrounded by Florida—much as the Vatican is encircled by Rome.

The Reedy Creek Improvement District exempts Disney from certain taxes and regulations that burden other companies. This arrangement also empowers the Magic Kingdom to establish its own levies, ordinances, and emergency services in and around Disney World and its other theme parks.

Let's hope that Disney enjoyed this cushy 55-year ride. Too bad its rotten corporate citizenship cost it these precious goodies.

Disney lied about Florida's recently enacted Parental Rights in Education law. Disney and others called HB 1557 "the 'Don't Say Gay' bill," even though the measure does not say "gay."

"The word 'gay' is not in the legislation," Florida Gov. Ron DeSantis, a Republican, told Fox News Channel's Tucker Carlson. "It's a lie, but it's a lie because they have to lie, because if they admitted what they were really for—sexualizing kindergartners and first graders—they know that would not fly with the public."

Disney said it wants "this law to be repealed by the legislature or struck down in the courts." So, Disney thinks that it's an unacceptable burden to ask teachers to instruct their students on (as the law states) "sexual orientation" and "gender identity" no sooner than fourth grade.

Disney and its allies evidently cannot wait that long. Instead, they are desperate to discuss sexuality with kindergartners through third graders—ages 5 through 8.

Disney's hypocrisy is more towering than Space Mountain. While it fights this new law as an alleged cornerstone of "homophobia," Disney is delighted to conduct business in lethally homophobic countries.

■ Disney Cruise Lines' ships sail into Dominica and Antigua, where glamorous onshore activities await. These Caribbean islands punish gay sex with maximum 10- and 15-year prison terms, respectively.

■ Disney Vacation Club offers "private adventures" to Egypt. "You'll be awed by the storied history of the people, places, and cultures of this ancient country," Disney promises. How fun! Just remember that gay sex could cost you three years behind bars.

The Egyptian Bedayaa Organization's Legal Aid Project reported 25 anti-gay arrests in 2020 and 92 in 2019. In September 2017, authorities nabbed 66 people for waving a rainbow flag.

■ The Disney+ streaming service is expanding into Algeria, Egypt, Libya, Morocco, Oman, the Palestinian Authority, Qatar, Saudi Arabia, Tunisia, and Yemen. These places are not known for their Pride parades. In fact, they criminalize homosexuality.

“Don’t say gay?” Try “Don’t be gay.”

Disney’s most brutal new markets are Saudi Arabia, where homosexuality can trigger chemical castration and capital punishment, and Yemen, where same-sex intimacy can trigger execution.

As this controversy exploded, Team Disney sorely needed adult supervision. Rather than repeat lies, it should have presented facts to its ignorant, enraged employees.

CEO Bob Chapek should have stood up to the Wokistani children on his staff and said:

“We are a for-profit company, not a super PAC. Many of our customers—who pay your salaries—are parents who bring their kids to our movies and amusement parks, not expecting us to discuss sex with their children.

“We avoid political controversies, not least the promotion of sexually charged classroom lessons for boys and girls aged 5 through 8.

“If you can handle this, carry on. If this is more than you can manage, the front door is right there. You are welcome to quit, go home, and scream whatever slogans you wish. Otherwise, follow me and return to work. End of statement.”

But, rather than lead, Chapek waved a white banner and then whimpered beneath his desk.

The moral of this Disney epic?

The Maoist mobs’ assault on America’s executive suites will continue until CEOs resist the overpaid adolescents on their staffs, practice “in loco parentis,” and send their white flags to the nearest landfill.

An article by Allen West titled “The Maniacal Mask Crisis Tyrants” was posted at townhall.com on April 23, 2022. Following is the article.

Chances are if you say the word “Florida” to a progressive socialist leftist they will go into a frothing apoplectic rage. Now, I live in Texas and I wish that saying “Texas” would do the same, but perhaps that is the topic of another missive. Under the leadership of Governor Ron DeSantis, the State of Florida has truly become a thorn in the side of leftists. How dare anyone stand up to the left’s agenda, and not capitulate to some doggone woke corporate fascist oligarch, like a Disney.

But it is not just Gov. DeSantis. There is a new face of pain and anguish for the left in America, and that face is also out of Florida. That face, and judicial prowess, belongs to one US District Court Judge Kathryn Kimball Mizelle. Something tells me that Judge Mizelle has no issue defining what a woman is. Last week it was Judge Mizelle’s ruling against mask mandates that have thrown the left into a fit. Thankfully, we still have some judges who understand that their job is to interpret the law and not make laws.

Let's all have a mature discussion about this (that means delusional and deranged leftists you probably should not read any further). First, there was NEVER any law passed by elected representatives in our legislative branch that made wearing a face covering mandatory in America.

We live in a Constitutional Republic and operate based upon the rule of law, our Constitution. Neither the executive nor the judicial branches of our republican form of governance make law. Judge Mizelle has awakened us from this dangerous slumber of believing edicts, orders, mandates, and decrees are equal to law.

As well, this is not a constitutional monarchy nor do government agencies have enumerated power to rule over us and in turn, regulate away our freedoms and liberties. Government agencies do not rule over the American people, and that means the Center for Disease Control, and Dr. Fauci, have no authority over us. They can make all the recommendations they wish, enabling elected officials to make the best decisions in passing legislation, hence why we have congressional hearings. But they have no power granted to them via the Constitution of these United States of America to mandate or order We the People to do anything.

And the reaction of the left is very telling. If you wish to don a face diaper, go ahead, if I wish not to that is my decision. But what this issue has revealed is that the maniacal mask crisis tyrants are not concerned with "science"—they desire totalitarian control. This is a freedom issue.

And oh by the way, leftists, you are free to join me six days a week to run anywhere from 3-5 miles and do a calisthenics workout and maintain a healthy lifestyle. If you have specified comorbidities such as heart disease, diabetes, high blood pressure, and suffer from obesity, you are at a higher risk for the respiratory virus known as covid—take the requisite precautions. Do not ever mistakenly believe We the People will succumb anymore to mass hysteria and fear mongering by crisis tyrants seeking to usurp out liberties.

The Biden administration has asserted their intent to end Title 42 covid restrictions on illegal immigrants. In essence, the Biden administration is stating that covid is over for illegals. Yet, the hypocrisy is laughable in that the Biden Department of Justice is appealing Judge Mizelle's decision. So, covid is now only a threat for law abiding American citizens—not illegals. This insidious appeal is just a ruse, a facade, of appearing to fight back. Leftist politicians must know this is a politically toxic issue.

I flew out to Midland, Texas this weekend. It was great to be able to breathe, unconstrained, on the flight. It is great to know that toddlers who wish not to wear a mask will no longer cause their family to be expelled from the flight. If we are to Live Free in America, it is time to let the maniacs and crisis tyrants know there will be no repeat of this idiocy.

Steadfast and Loyal!

An article by Mary Mitchell titled "The First Black Man on the White House Secret Service Finally Gets Justice" was posted at chicago.suntimes.com on April 26, 2022. Following is the article.

Abraham Bolden didn't have hundreds of young protesters carrying banners demanding justice for him.

He didn't have the largest civil rights organizations advocating on his behalf or prestigious civil rights leaders pleading his case.

What he did have, however, was a strong family and friends who believed "no lie can live forever."

It took nearly six decades, but on Tuesday, Bolden finally got his taste of justice.

Bolden, a Chicagoan, was at the top of the list of pardons and commutations granted by President Biden.

His case was described as "offenses related to attempting to sell a copy of a Secret Service file."

But that narrative, according to Bolden, was based on trumped-up charges leveled against him for exposing unprofessional and racist behavior within the U.S. Secret Service.

A document outlining Bolden's case noted his first trial resulted in a hung jury, and at a second trial—even though key witnesses against him admitted to lying at the prosecutor's request—Bolden was denied a new trial and ultimately served several years in federal custody.

Bolden "has steadfastly maintained his innocence, arguing that he was targeted for prosecution in retaliation for exposing unprofessional and racist behavior within the U.S. Secret Service."

After failing to garner the support of three presidents—Richard Nixon, Bill Clinton and Barack Obama, Bolden, 87, finally got a taste of justice.

His journey from trailblazing to a disgraced Secret Service agent was swift.

In 1961, Bolden smashed a racial barrier when he became the first Black Secret Service Agent to serve on a White House detail.

But his good fortune turned into a curse when he arrived in D.C. and witnessed laxity among some agents guarding President John F. Kennedy.

When he threatened to reveal the shortcomings among agents, he was accused of being involved in a bribery and counterfeiting scheme. Bolden was tried twice, convicted and sentenced to six years in prison.

He had only served several months on the White House detail.

"When my attorney called me on Monday night and said Biden was going to grant me a pardon, I was elated," Bolden told me in a telephone interview. "It was so long coming. I'm overwhelmed."

Biden "pardoned three people, including Bolden, and commuted the sentences of 75 other people serving long sentences for nonviolent drug offenses, who under current guidelines would be serving less time," White House Bureau Chief Lynn Sweet reported.

"It's been nearly 60 years. I thought it would happen. I knew God was in the plan all along because I had faith that justice would be served. If it weren't served here, it would be served eventually. I would see it. That's faith," he said.

His son, Daaim Shabazz, Ph.D., associate professor of global business at Florida A&M University, was 2 years old when his father was imprisoned.

"He called me last night and told me, and I could hear a sigh of relief. But what he wants everyone to know is that he is innocent. Just because you are pardoned doesn't mean that you are innocent. He wants people to know that he is innocent. He wants to clear his name," Shabazz told me.

"A pardon is an expression of the President's forgiveness and ordinarily is granted in recognition of the applicant's acceptance of responsibility for the crime and established good conduct for a significant period of time after conviction or completion of sentence. It does not signify innocence," according to the Department of Justice.

Despite his ordeal, Bolden was able to return to Chicago and make a successful life for his family, his son pointed out.

"I want people to know his story, what he endured, what he went through, what he struggled to do, and how he maintained his dignity and stood on the truth until the end. If he was not pardoned, the lessons are still great lessons to learn," Shabazz said.

"He still succeeded in life. He was still able to maintain a marriage of 49 years and raise three children. Unfortunately, two of my siblings passed away in 2020 and my mother died 15 years ago. They certainly would have been proud that his name was cleared," he said.

An article by James Poplar titled "The Difference Between 'Equity' and 'Equality' " was posted at americanthinker.com on April 27, 2022. Following is the article.

As the proud parent of five adult children in a "blended family," I shake my head as I have recently seen equity being pushed by progressives as a the "new normal." Yes, no pun intended, but I do have skin in this game, as three of my children are biracial, while the other two were products of a single-parent home, yet all five are at the top of their respective professions despite overcoming major obstacles to include income disparity and racial discrimination in the South. I still remember to this day taking my oldest son and daughter for their school inoculations in the Deep South in 1979 and having the nurse ask what race are these “things.”

I attribute my children’s success to hard work, dedication, and a willingness to take responsibility for their own actions. None of them expected or was given a handout or preferential treatment. Several, like many young adults on their own for the first time, accumulated massive credit card debt and became “boomerang” kids allowed to move back home with the expectation that they would pay off their debt while living at home rent-free. Unfortunately, they did not take advantage of the opportunity, and consequently, their mother put their belongings on the curb, and they were on their own again. Years later, they stated that this was the best thing that ever happened to them, as it forced them to take accountability for their own actions.

In addition, all paid their own way through college or vocational training, not relying on the promise of government student debt relief. They incurred the expense and assumed the personal responsibility of paying it back without expecting a government handout. My family’s story typifies what many adults have experienced up until now. That is, equality meant equal treatment in both school and employment, fair competition, and impartially judged outcomes.

Unfortunately, progressives in the Biden administration are now pushing to have equality, the principle embraced by our Founding Fathers, replaced by the false and deceptive practice of “equity”—not only in our schools, but workplaces, and even the military.

- Equity, which is anathema to our Constitution, means equal outcomes, achieved, if necessary, by unequal treatment, biased competition, and preferential judging.
- Those who push for equity have hidden these crucial differences for a reason.
- They aren’t merely unpopular; they challenge America’s bedrock principle that all people should be treated equally and judged as individuals, not as members of special interest groups.
- As Dr. Martin Luther King stated, “not be judged by the color of their skin, but by the content of their character.”
- This should be the golden rule of how we treat humanity.

What we are seeing pushed hard now by the left is indeed different. It is the false claim that the unfair treatment of previous generations or perhaps a disadvantaged childhood entitles one to special consideration. One measure of how unpopular these unequal programs are is how often their proponents need to rename them. “Quotas” were restyled as “affirmative action.” However, the goal was still to give special benefits to some groups to achieve desired outcomes. Now “affirmative action” has also become toxic, hence the new name, “equity.”

Instead of making their case openly and honestly, advocates of equity deliberately distort their objective to avoid revealing their radical goal of re-engineering society through coercion. When the results fall short, as they inevitably will, the remedy is obvious: more government power, more regulations, and more indoctrination.

Isaiah 55:6-11—"Seek you the LORD while He may be found, call upon Him while He is near. Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts; let him return to the LORD, and He will have mercy on him; and to our God, for He will abundantly pardon. 'For My thoughts are not your thoughts, nor are your ways My ways,' says the LORD. For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are My ways higher than your ways, and My thoughts than your thoughts. For as the rain comes down, and the snow from heaven, and do not return there, but water the earth, and make it bring forth and bud, that it may give seed to the sower and bread to the eater, so shall My word be that goes forth from My mouth; it shall not return to Me void, but it shall accomplish what I please, and it shall prosper in the thing for which I sent it."
