Luke 21:34-36—“But take heed to yourselves, lest your souls be weighed down with self-indulgence, and drunkenness, or the anxieties of this life, and that day come on you suddenly, like a falling trap; for it will come on all dwellers on the face of the whole earth. But beware of slumbering; and every moment pray that you may be fully strengthened to escape from all these coming evils, and to take your stand in the presence of the Son of Man” (Weymouth New Testament).

An article by Allen West titled “America’s Unique Freedom” was posted at townhall.com on May 30, 2022. Following is the article.

I pray you took time to honor Memorial Day, which is not a “happy” time, but rather a time for remembrance and reflection. This weekend, I joined veterans and active duty service members at The Committee to Support and Defend’s first Memorial Day Muster, which recognized and commemorated those who gave the last full measure of devotion for this nation. We honored those who gave their lives to preserve this great endeavor that has resulted in the longest running constitutional Republic that the world has ever known. America is the grandest experiment in self-governance and individual rights, freedoms, and liberties.

Consider the events of April 19, 1775 at a place called Lexington Green in Massachusetts. As the British landed and were marching inland towards Concord for the purpose of destroying a weapons and armaments factory, men of valor prepared and answered the call to arms. The British military was the most powerful land force the world knew. Yet, those Sons of Liberty knew there was something at stake: liberty from tyranny. And so, they took the field of Lexington Green and fired the shot that was heard around the world.

- There was no Army. That came later on June 14, 1775.
- There was no Navy, or Marines. They would come later in October and November.
- There was not even a declared nation. That would come the following year on July 4, 1776.

All that stood on that field were committed, armed individuals who knew the price of freedom. They knew that if the British were successful in destroying the armaments factory the Sons of Liberty would not be supplied weapons. They knew that as long as they were armed individuals they could be free citizens. If disarmed, they would only be subjects.

And so it was that, after defeating the British in our Revolutionary War, the business of constructing the rule of law for this new constitutional Republic took place. The initial Articles of Confederation had proven to be too weak for the young Nation, America. The founders gathered and created a document called the Constitution of the United States of America. And the first amendments to that Constitution were called our individual Bill of Rights, because the freedom of the individual was deemed preeminent.

The lessons of the fight against the British taught the framers an important point, the passive rights of the First Amendment had to be backed by a unique freedom, an active freedom—the Second Amendment.

In a free society, our individual rights demand a high degree of responsibility. Sadly, we are witnessing a breakdown in individual responsibility. The progressive socialist left attack the weapon, while not engaging the individual. Those who attack gun manufacturers are no different from the British who sought to destroy the factory in Concord, Massachusetts. Do we seek punitive damages against car manufacturers or alcohol beverage producers when there is a loss of life related to DUIs? Of course, we do not. We hold the individual responsible...so why is that not the case when it comes to the right to keep and bear arms?

There are countless shootings in America's urban centers, yet no outrage. Our children are exposed to violent video games, no outrage there. We fail to treat mental illnesses and update the records of disturbed individuals in our ATF background system. This is because there are those who wish to undermine individual freedom. There are those who prefer subjects rather than citizens.

History shows disarming law-abiding legal firearms owners has never ended well. Two prevalent examples are Adolf Hitler in Germany and Hugo Chavez in Venezuela, where gun registration and the elimination of private gun ownership occurred. We know the result.

We can implement real solutions to the issue of shootings. America heavily secures our sporting and entertainment venues.

Why can we not provide better security for our children?

What if we enlisted the hundreds of thousands of veterans to once again stand guard and protect our children?

What if Uvalde parents had been armed and trained gun owners?

What if instead of being held back, detained, tased and handcuffed by local law enforcement, they were able to defend their children?

- A simple man and friend, Stephen Willeford, an NRA trained firearms instructor, used his own AR-15 to neutralize the shooter of his church in Sutherland Springs, Texas.

- It was another friend and a trained, responsible gun owner, Jack Wilson, who neutralized the gunman at his church in White Settlement, Texas with one shot from 15 yards.

- These were just ordinary citizens...who were armed.

So, tell me why we want to disarm legal, law abiding, trained, and responsible gun owner citizens? If we wish to continue to Live Free, we must continue to do as those who we commemorate this Memorial Day have done — we must protect and defend our right to keep and bear arms.

Steadfast and Loyal.

An article by Awr Hawkins titled "Joe Biden Admitted in 1985 Criminals Will Get Firearms 'With or Without Gun Control' " was posted at breitbart.com on June 3, 2022. Following is the article.

On July 9, 1985, during debate over the Firearm Owners Protection Act (FOPA), Senate Judiciary Committee member Joe Biden (D-DE) sided with the NRA and argued criminals can get guns "with or without gun control."

NBC News notes the Judiciary Committee concurred with the Republican majority in support of FOPA, then it passed on the Senate floor "by a lopsided 79-15."

Biden voted for FOPA, which NBC News describes as a piece of legislation that "allowed dealers to sell rifles, shotguns and ammunition through the mail, and, eventually, the internet."

They noted that FOPA also "limited federal inspections of firearms dealers while allowing them to sell guns at gun shows, which helped them grow in size and popularity. And it made it easier for private collectors to sell guns without obtaining a federal dealers' license, which would play a role in what later became known as the 'gun show loophole.'"

And prior to voting for voting for FOPA, Biden actually argued in defense of it.

The Congressional Record for the Senate on July 9, 1985, quotes Biden describing FOPA as a "balanced piece of legislation that protects the rights of private gun owners while not infringing on law enforcement's ability to deal with those who misuse guns or violate laws."

He added, "During my 12 and a half years as a member of this body, I have never believed that additional gun control or federal registration of guns would reduce crime. I am convinced that a criminal who wants a firearm can get one through illegal, nontraceable, unregistered sources, with or without gun control."

On June 2, 2022, President Biden pushed eight different gun controls, including an entire ban on a politically-defined category of firearms which Democrats call "assault weapons."

An article by Terence P. Jeffrey titled "Will America Remain Virtuous Enough to Be Free?" was posted at cnsnews.com on June 1, 2022. Following is the article.

John Adams, who would soon surrender the presidency to Thomas Jefferson, ventured up to Capitol Hill on Nov. 22, 1800, to deliver the first-ever in-person presidential address in the not-yet-finished home of the United States Congress.

It was noon on a Saturday. What message did he deliver?

First, Adams congratulated the American people for building the Capitol itself.

"I congratulate the people of the United States on the assembling of Congress at the permanent seat of their government, and I congratulate you, gentlemen, on the prospect of a residence not to be changed," he said. "Although there is cause to apprehend that accommodations are not now so complete as might be wished, yet there is great reason to believe that this inconvenience will cease with the present session."

Then Adams pointed to morality, religion and God.

"It would be unbecoming the representatives of this nation to assemble for the first time in this solemn temple without looking up to the Supreme Ruler of the universe and imploring His blessing," he said.

"May this territory be the residence of virtue and happiness!" said Adams. "In this city may that piety and virtue, that wisdom and magnanimity, that constancy and self-government, which adorned the great character whose name it bears be forever held in veneration! Here and throughout our country may simple manners, pure morals, and true religion flourish forever!"

This was not a new theme for the nation's second president or for his contemporaries.

Depravity of French monarchy

In 1778, while serving the newly independent United States as a commissioner to France, Adams passed by a mansion called Bellevue that King Louis XV had built as a residence for his mistress, Madame de Pompadour.

Adams came to view this estate as a symbol of the depravity of the French monarchy.

■ "I asked some questions about this place," Adams wrote in his diary on June 2, 1778, "and was informed that it was called Bellevue and was the residence of the Kings Aunts Adelaide and (Victoire), two of the surviving daughters of Louis the fifteenth. That this palace had been built and this establishment made by that monarch for Madame Pompadour, whom he visited here, almost every night for twenty years, leaving a worthy woman his virtuous Queen alone at Versailles . . ."

■ "The foundations of national morality must be laid in private families," Adams went on to say in this same diary entry.

■ "In vain are schools, accademies, and universities instituted, if loose principles and licentious habits are impressed upon children in their earliest years," he said. "The mothers are the earliest and most important instructors of youth . . . The vices and examples of the parents cannot be concealed from the children. How is it possible that children can have any just sense of the sacred obligations of morality and religion if, from their earliest infancy, they learn that their mothers live in habitual infidelity to their fathers, and their fathers in as constant infidelity to their mothers."

Letter to his cousin

On June 21, 1776, while serving in the Second Continental Congress, which would soon pass the Declaration of Independence, Adams responded to a letter from his cousin Zabdiel Adams, who, according to the Massachusetts Historical Society, was a Christian clergyman.

■ "Statesmen my dear sir, may plan and speculate for liberty, but it is religion and morality alone, which can establish the principles upon which freedom can securely stand," wrote Adams.

■ "The only foundation of a free constitution, is pure virtue, and if this cannot be inspired into our people, in a greater measure, than they have it now, they may change their rulers, and the forms of government, but they will not obtain a lasting liberty. They will only exchange tyrants and tyrannies," he said.

■ "You cannot therefore be more pleasantly, or usefully employed than in the way of your profession, pulling down the strong holds of Satan," Adams told his cousin. "This is not cant, but the real sentiment of my heart."

Letter to Massachusetts militia

Twenty-two years later, when he was president of the United States, Adams delivered the same message to the Massachusetts militia.

■ "We have no government armed with power capable of contending with human passions unbridled by . . . morality and religion," said President

Adams. "Avarice, ambition (and) revenge or galantry, would break the strongest cords of our Constitution as a whale goes through a net.

■ "Our Constitution was made only for a moral and religious people," he said. "It is wholly inadequate to the government of any other."

Moral and religious foundations

What would John Adams think if he were told about the recent mass murders in Buffalo, New York, and Uvalde, Texas? Would he think they were manifestations of a gun problem in America or a moral problem?

To pass the American tradition of freedom down to future generations we must also pass down the moral and religious foundations needed to sustain it.

An article by Jon N. Hall titled "Helping the Greenies Understand Fossil Fuels" was posted at americanthinker.com on May 25, 2022. Following is the article.

Climate-change environmentalists worry that the Earth is too warm. They seem to think they know what the temperature of the planet should be. Those who do not share their certitude about what the correct temperature of the Earth is, call these folks "warmists" or "greenies."

The big bane of the greenies, their bête noire (excuse my French), is fossil fuels. The greenies are especially vexed by ICE, the internal combustion engine. That's because ICE vehicles run on fossil fuels, the petroleum products petrol (gasoline) and diesel. That such engines have been used in virtually all vehicles for a century is of no concern to the greenies; ICE vehicles have gotta go, lest the world end in twelve years.

Greenies disapprove of carbon and fret about carbon footprints, even though they themselves are carbon-based lifeforms, one assumes. Fossil fuels consist of hydrocarbons.

The problem with burning hydrocarbons in ICE vehicles, according to the greenies, is the release of carbon into the atmosphere. But ICE vehicles can get around the carbon problem by using the other element in hydrocarbons. Hydrogen is the fuel in a HICE, a hydrogen internal combustion engine. The only exhaust from HICE vehicles is water.

ICE vehicles designed to run on fossil fuel can be retrofitted or adapted to run on hydrogen. This writer first learned of this when a local newspaper reported on Roger E. Billings, who converted a Model A to work on hydrogen. Fuel cells can also use hydrogen to produce power for electric cars.

But although hydrogen is the most abundant element in the universe, hydrogen production on Earth can entail fossil fuels. So, whether one burns it in an ICE or uses it to produce electricity for fuel cells, how green can hydrogen really be?

And how green are the Tesla and the other new electric cars?

It has often been noted, at least on Fox News, that electric cars aren't really green and eco-friendly when their batteries are recharged with electricity from power plants that burn fossil fuels. But even in areas where batteries are recharged from windmills or solar farms or nuclear power, they're still not all that green. You see, the materials and energy used to manufacture windmills and solar panels involve fossil fuels.

The prospect of ending our reliance on fossil fuels is daunting for more reasons than replacing an energy source. Some of a barrel of crude oil is used for non-energy products, like plastics. Everywhere one looks in today's world, one sees plastics. This keyboard I'm typing on sure looks like it's plastic to me.

How do the greenies propose to replace all the other products, even food, like cattle feed, that come out of a barrel of oil? Because of the war in Ukraine, American farmers are short on fertilizers, which are made from petroleum. Petrochemicals are used throughout today's economy.

Personal transportation, that the greenies think so monstrous, may be the least technological problem in getting off of oil. It's all the petrochemicals that aren't destined for energy that seem to form more formidable problems. And if they can't come up with replacements for petrochemicals, then they'll need to keep drilling.

One wonders if your average greenie understands that one can't use a barrel for just anything; we can't turn an entire barrel just into plastics or whatever one likes. The distillates that go into petrol and diesel must be used for those products; they can't be used to make plastic, fertilizer, cattle feed, asphalt, etc.

In "How to take the 'petro' out of the petrochemicals industry," one reads of "electrosynthesis," a replacement process which aims to get us the chemicals we need without having to drill for oil. However, in "Can the world make the chemicals it needs without oil?" one reads:

Harry Gray, a chemist at the California Institute of Technology... has analyzed what's needed to displace fossil fuels with electrosynthesis. Of making commodities [i.e. replacements for petrochemicals] by electrosynthesis, he says, "I think we'll be there within 10 years."

So science is not yet able to replace the myriad petrochemicals the world needs. And we've only just begun to replace the world's fleet of cars with electric versions. But folks are suffering now. They need relief ASAP. Inflation is raging.

Unfortunately, the greenies like inflation. They think high prices will get folks to go green, even though their green businesses are subsidized by the government and aren't very green, as they depend on fossil fuels.

There's a way to take the edge off the crisis we're currently enduring, and that's to consume less, to drive less, to conserve, to not be so damn wasteful. And if Americans were to do these things, the dreadful inflation they're enduring should begin to abate. This should be the year that Americans don't take a summer vacation. Take a "staycation" this summer.

An article by Frederick Hink titled "Forget the Marxists: Here's the Real Enemy of America" was posted at americanthinker.com on May 25, 2022. Following are excerpts of the article.

To win any fight, we must first know our enemy. There are those who argue we are in a struggle with Marxism, though in reality, we battle the organizational and operational tenets of the Marxist tree, not the ideology itself. We know that this is not a Marxist movement because it ignores Marxism's core clientele: the workers. In fact, these people despise the Marxist's traditional constituents. Instead, they toil for a small minority of the "marginalized" in society whom middle Americans find to be fringe and anathema to their core values.

Even then, their movement doesn't seek a revolution of the marginalized. They define the ills of society so that governments can unilaterally impose retributive "justice": defunding law enforcement and prosecution, promoting violence and riots, and forcing curriculum indoctrination throughout the educational system. They seek power through chaos.

If there is a power that wishes to usurp a democratic and free market society, then to attack with the chaos of a Marxist "revolution" will drive those most affected to willingly surrender freedom for security—You will own nothing and be happy!—and into the warm arms of the promise of a new civilization dedicated to the progress of mankind. Italy once succumbed to the promises and adopted fascism upon the bourgeoisie's and governing elites' fears from the encroaching evils of socialism, as had been witnessed in Soviet Russia.

Don't be fooled by rhetoric. Fascism is an evolution of socialism. The difference is how the economy is managed. Ludwig von Mises summarized the primary differences between socialism (the Russian pattern) and fascism (the German pattern).

- Socialism owns everything, and the individual is simply a serf to the state.
- Fascism "preserves private ownership of the means of production and keeps the appearance of ordinary markets," though these markets are highly controlled by the state.

The German pattern, Nazism, introduced, through its barbarity, the dark specter of fascism, but fascism's evil birth was in Italy. Disillusionment following WWI was the catalyst for fascism. Benito Mussolini, an avowed socialist, too became disillusioned and, with the partnership of neo-Hegelian philosopher Giovanni Gentile (who stated, "Fascism is a form of socialism; in fact, it is its most viable form") developed a system and philosophy that nationalized the will of the people and integrated limited markets into the state.

- Socialism enslaves the soul.
- Fascism enslaves the illusion of freedom.

Fascism has been described as Corporatism. Many mistakenly believe that it was centered on capitalism and nationalism and was thus a right-wing movement. It was not. Mussolini termed Corporatism (the state) as a means of economic and societal organization and control within the confines of fascism; the state is the corporation, and the individual silos of the economy, which he termed syndicates, are the means to collectivize society.

In a 1926 speech, Mussolini laid out the role of markets within the state: “The Ministry of Corporations is not a bureaucratic organ, nor does it wish to exercise the functions of syndical organizations which are necessarily independent, since they aim at organizing, selecting and improving the members of syndicates[.] . . . [I]n the centre and outside, [the] integral corporation becomes an accomplished fact, where balance is achieved between interests and forces of the economic world . . . The achievement of these aims is speeded up by the fact that all economic organizations, acknowledged, safeguarded and supported by the Corporative State, exist within the orbit of Fascism; in other terms they accept the conception of Fascism in theory and in practice.”

It is the actual structure of Mussolini’s fascism—the partnership between governmental authority and economic syndical cooperation—that is the model for current attempts at using fascism to infiltrate and control global economic, political, and cultural institutions.

In a 2022 letter to CEOs of BlackRock, Larry Fink wrote: “Capitalism has the power to shape society and act as a powerful catalyst for change . . . When we harness the power of both the public and private sectors, we can achieve truly incredible things.”

No, Larry Fink, Bill Gates, George Soros, nor any of the other Davos creeps is a Mussolini lurking in the weeds. Each of them is a steward of individual syndicates, but the power rests in the corporation: the World Economic Forum.

Today, we see the WEF as the binding strap on the fascio, or syndicates. It acts as both an ideological center and an organizing force for universally stated goals for the management of mankind. A brief listing of these WEF U.S.-based partner corporations (below) demonstrates the syndicates organized under the umbrella of the corporation.

Organizers of the “World Economic Forum, the Great Reset” wrote: “As we enter a unique window of opportunity to shape the recovery, this initiative will offer insights to help inform all those determining the future state of global relations, the direction of national economies, the priorities of societies, the nature of business models and the management of a global commons. Drawing from the vision and vast expertise of the leaders engaged across the Forum’s communities, the Great Reset initiative has a set of dimensions to build a new social contract that honors the dignity of every human being.”

The implementation of ESG (Environmental, Social and Governance), as an example, has been ordered from the WEF to the world financial syndicates, and Mr. Fink is taking his orders seriously by aggressively pushing ESG. ESG is fast becoming the great culling of industry. While there has been recent pushback, Davos and the WEF are not deterred. ESG uses metrics to provide social responsibility scores for corporate commitment to woke management and the war against climate change. ESG will be a requirement for Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) filings in the near future. It is already having deleterious effects on the oil and gas industry and is one of the origins of our current energy crisis. The energy syndicate, too, has followed its orders.

Following is an excerpt from "Fascism Doctrine and Institutions" by Benito Mussolini in 1932: "The Fascist conception of the State is all embracing; outside of it no human or spiritual values can exist, much less have value. Thus understood, Fascism, is totalitarian, and the Fascist State - a synthesis and a unit inclusive of all values - interprets, develops, and potentates the whole life of a people."

Those outside fascism hold no value. We must fight back against the tirades of these infantile intellectual dwarfs; fight back against woke capitalism; fight back against the indoctrination of your children; fight back against their unleashing of chaos upon our streets. Use your two votes, at the ballot box and in your wallet, to push back as much as you can, but there will be more for us to do.

We are not fighting Marxism, socialism, or communism. This is a top-down revolution. We are fighting a fascism that surpasses Mussolini's and Hitler's dreams of complete power over the people, for this is global in nature. The sooner we can develop the strategy to stave off these attacks and possibly even beat them back, the sooner we can start the long march toward freedom once again. Without defining and understanding the enemy, we will lose.

An article by J.B. Shurk titled "The True Evil of the World Economic Forum" was posted at americanthinker.com on May 26, 2022. Following are excerpts of the article.

Whenever I listen to Klaus Schwab and his Davos Death Cult buddies openly discuss their plans for world domination, I always think, "Are we really going to let another power-hungry German walk us into global conflagration?"

For a while there, I believed that Western allies had endured enough death and slaughter from the first two world wars to forge an informal understanding among themselves that uncontrolled German megalomania invariably leads to malignant outcomes for all.

Then came German reunification, and the nation's inevitable economic dominance over all of Europe assured its status as the most powerful member of the European Union.

All that effort to constrain the German empire's influence went up in smoke. It turns out that it is far easier to conquer the European continent with flowery promises of "peace," "economic integration," and "international cooperation" than it is to send jackbooted shock troops marching past the Arc de Triomphe and down the Champs-Élysées.

Still, the Americans, Canadians, and Brits would never sit idly by while German powerbrokers remake the world in their image, right? Wrong!

Just listen to Joe Biden, Justin Trudeau, and Boris Johnson all parroting that same Build Back Better Boobery in unison, as if they operated under the influence of some nefarious hive mind.

At first, hearing world leaders squawk identical World Economic Forum talking points was disconcerting. Then it was nauseating. Now it just makes them sound like walking, talking robots all under the WEF's control.

■ That's where we are today, as the world's 1% of the 1% celebrate their own magnificence in Davos and plot mankind's future without even the pretense of seeking mankind's consultation, let alone permission.

"The future is not just happening," Schwab proclaimed to his SPECTRE-like cabal in Switzerland. "The future is built by us, by a powerful community such as you here in this room."

So now the world waits in trepidation to discover just what Kaiser Klaus and his new nobility have in store for the rest of us.

■ Will another paralyzing round of viral pandemics bring a return of economic lockdowns, rigid population control, and injection mandates?

■ Will a global cyber-attack cut off the internet for billions and plunge the world into darkness?

■ Will Green New Steal Socialism exacerbate global poverty, unleash famine, and trigger mass population die-offs?

■ Whatever happens next, the WEF has already gamed the situation and is ready to profit from the world's pain.

In another era, World Economic Forum attendees would be rounded up and put on trial for undermining the health and security of sovereign nations. Heck, if people properly understood the WEF as an evil engine for driving Marxist totalitarianism around the planet, they might skip the trials and go straight to the sentencing. When so many of today's leaders have already handed over their nation states' keys to the aspiring dictators in Davos, however, ordinary people around the world have a real problem.

Schwab does not hide his master plan to destroy national self-determination. It's a simple two-step process.

■ First, you capture political and economic leadership by bringing them into the WEF Club.

■ Then, by hook or by crook, you train those global leaders to "collaborate" for the benefit of the WEF's members, rather than the national populations they ostensibly represent.

There's an important lesson here for those who properly object to a bunch of unelected oligarchs manipulating world events for their own purposes. When the wealthy and powerful sing the praises of "international cooperation," they are almost always sticking it to ordinary people. Rigorous competition, not cooperation, is the key to keeping power in check and providing ample opportunity for all.

Since World War II, the West has been brainwashed into accepting the opposite falsehood.

■ Competition leads to tragedy and that only forced cooperation can foster long-term peace.

- Nationalism is equated with racism.
- Patriotism is derided as another civic opiate for the masses.
- Free markets were long ago buried with byzantine domestic regulations and international trade agreements that protect multinational monopolies at the expense of aspiring start-ups lacking the resources to overtake companies with heavy political clout.

Just as American workers can't compete against Chinese slave labor, and oppressively regulated American factories can't compete against scarcely regulated foreign enterprises, American voters can't find representation in Washington, D.C., when that town's bureaucratic army works not for Americans, but rather for the interests of foreign governments, multinational corporate boards, international financial heavyweights, and Western military alliances.

As Biden hands the Chinese-aligned World Health Organization power over Americans' health and delivers to the United Nations control over Americans' future use of hydrocarbon energy, an ever-smaller group of global elites assumes greater control over everyone else. As they do so, they glorify their efforts as a victory for a "rules-based international order."

In reality, a "rules-based international order" is antithetical to American liberty and independence.

- It undermines the power and self-determination of ordinary Americans and empowers the technocratic assembly of self-identified "experts."
- It disregards the democratic interests of Americans generally and imposes the will of the über-1% upon everyone else.
- It sacrifices American law for international agreements.
- It substitutes government-approved speech for free speech.
- It destroys privacy while justifying mass surveillance.
- It transfers Americans' control over their personal wealth to the intermediary machinations of money-printing central banks.
- It elevates the power of global governing bodies over the statutory authority of local jurisdictions.
- It fortifies the intrusive reach of an unelected bureaucracy while weakening protections for individual rights.
- It resurrects, in other words, a feudal system where a small number of lords and ladies hoard power over a borderless economic zone whose surviving serfs are expected to "own nothing and be happy" or else.

When "elites" cooperate among themselves, they take what they can, regulate what they can't, and shiv everyone else. That's the World Economic Forum in a nutshell.

An article by Simon Kent titled "Global Elites Converge on Washington DC for Bilderberg Group Meeting" was posted at breitbart.com on June 3, 2022. Following is the article.

Global elites representing business, politics, big tech, media, and academia are now in Washington, DC, for the 68th annual meeting of the Bilderberg Group.

Among the 120 invitees this year publicly acknowledged by Bilderberg are Pfizer CEO Albert Bourla, Henry Kissinger, former CIA head David Petraeus, former Google CEO Eric Schmidt, Sen. Kyrsten Sinema (D-AZ), and CIA Director William J. Burns.

UK Member of Parliament Tom Tugendhat, chair of the Foreign Affairs Committee in the House of Commons is also present.

So too Canada Deputy Prime Minister Chrystia Freeland and Mark Carney, vice chair of Brookfield Asset Management who served as the governor of the Bank of Canada from 2008 to 2013 and the governor of the Bank of England from 2013 to 2020.

The conference, initially started by the Dutch royal family in 1954, is seen as the genesis for ideas ranging from free trade agreements like NAFTA to the creation of the European Union, as Fox Metro reports. Key topics acknowledged for discussion in D.C. include the following.

- Geopolitical Realignment
- NATO Challenges
- China
- Indo-Pacific Realignment
- Sino-US Tech Competition
- Russia
- Continuity of Government and the Economy
- Disruption of the Global Financial System
- Disinformation
- Energy Security and Sustainability
- Post Pandemic Health
- Fragmentation of Democratic Societies
- Trade and Deglobalisation
- Ukraine

About two thirds of the participants come from Europe and the rest from North America; approximately a quarter are from politics and government and the rest from other fields.

The group describes itself and its activities thus: "The Bilderberg Meeting is a forum for informal discussions about major issues. The meetings are held under the Chatham House Rule, which states that participants are free to use the information received, but neither the identity nor the affiliation of the speaker(s) nor any other participant may be revealed. Thanks to the private nature of the Meeting, the participants take part as individuals rather than in any official capacity, and hence are not bound by the conventions of their office or by pre-agreed positions. As such, they can take time to listen, reflect and gather insights. There is no detailed agenda, no resolutions are proposed, no votes are taken and no policy statements are issued.”

The Bilderberg Group initially met in 1954 as Europe looked to rebuild from the ruins left by the Second World War.

The event, convened under the leadership of Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands, was first held in the Bilderberg hotel in Oosterbeek.

The known list of past attendees is vast. A number of them have gone on to lead nations shortly afterward: Angela Merkel attended in 2005, only months before becoming the German chancellor, while Bill Clinton attended in 1991 when he was still governor of Arkansas. Netherlands Prime Minister Mark Rutte is attending this year.

Anyone hoping for a day-by-day account of events is bound to be disappointed. The group does not release any notes or summaries of discussions held. Journalists are not allowed to report on the event, though some attend as participants. This year’s meeting began on Thursday and will end Sunday.

Isaiah 55:6-11—"Seek you the LORD while He may be found, call upon Him while He is near. Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts; let him return to the LORD, and He will have mercy on him; and to our God, for He will abundantly pardon. 'For My thoughts are not your thoughts, nor are your ways My ways,' says the LORD. For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are My ways higher than your ways, and My thoughts than your thoughts. For as the rain comes down, and the snow from heaven, and do not return there, but water the earth, and make it bring forth and bud, that it may give seed to the sower and bread to the eater, so shall My word be that goes forth from My mouth; it shall not return to Me void, but it shall accomplish what I please, and it shall prosper in the thing for which I sent it."
