Luke 21:34-36–“But take heed to yourselves, lest your souls be weighed down with self-indulgence, and drunkenness, or the anxieties of this life, and that day come on you suddenly, like a falling trap; for it will come on all dwellers on the face of the whole earth. But beware of slumbering; and every moment pray that you may be fully strengthened to escape from all these coming evils, and to take you stand in the presence of the Son of Man” (Weymouth New Testament).

1. Electric systems are awfully wasteful.
 2. Weather makes electrical transmission even more inefficient.
 3. Coal-powered electricity isn’t leaving quickly enough, elevating the carbon intensity of the grid.
 4. Electricity simply isn’t practical for all energy needs.
 5. Common “clean electricity” sources (such as biomass) carry environmental questions of their own.
 6. Rural and disadvantaged populations have specific reliability needs electricity can’t meet.
 7. The grid isn’t equipped to handle full-blown electrification.
 8. Individual buildings need energy resilience.
 9. All-electric homes, on average, have greater carbon footprints.
 10. Customer preference doesn’t lie with electricity for many appliances.

An article by Michel Dorstewitz titled “Democrats Challenged High Court to a Battle of Wits; They Lost” was posted at newsmax.com on Dec. 18, 2023. Following is the article.

The U.S. Supreme Court appeared to have caved to congressional Democrats’ demands to establish a code of ethics for the justices.

But in the end Democrats were outsmarted – both by the court and the U.S. Constitution.

Over the summer Rep. Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez (D-N.Y.) suggested that if the court failed to set a written standard of ethics, they should be hauled before Congress to explain why.

She told CNN: “If Chief Justice [John] Roberts will not come before Congress for an investigation voluntarily, I believe that we should be considering subpoenas.”

A few weeks later Justice Samuel Alito told Congress in a Wall Street Journal column to mind their own business.

“I know this a controversial view, but I’m willing to say it. No provision in the Constitution gives them the authority to regulate the Supreme Court – period,” Alito told the Wall Street Journal.

Zach Smith, a Heritage Foundation legal fellow, confirmed that Alito was spot-on.

“The U.S. Supreme Court . . . is explicitly set out in the Constitution as a co-equal branch of government,” he told Newsmax. “And so if Congress were to try to legislate a code of ethics for the Supreme Court, that would be very problematic.”

Besides, Congress has its own ethics issues – including insider trading, lying to America and a California Democrat who allegedly slept with a Chinese spy.

Nonetheless, Ocasio-Cortez wasn’t satisfied, and responded: “Alito’s next opinion piece in the WSJ is about to be ‘I am a little king, actually. The Constitution doesn’t explicitly say I’m not.’”

The following month she wanted the Justice Department to investigate Justice Department to investigate Justice Clarence Thomas for alleged ethics violations.

“Today, we asked DOJ to investigate Thomas for violating the Ethics of Government Act of 1978,” Ocasio-Cortez said on social media. “We are joined by Ranking Members [Jerrold] Nadler [of New York] & [Jamie] Raskin [of Maryland], and Judiciary Members [Ted] Lieu [of California] & Hank Johnson [of Georgia].”

There wasn't a single lawmaker among the five of them who understood that the Justice Department is a function of the executive branch, which is also co-equal to the Supreme Court.

The court nonetheless released a nine-page document in mid-November that purported to be a code of ethics. But in reality it changed neither how the court conducts its business nor how individual justices perform their constitutional duties.

“We should put this ‘code of ethics’ in context,” said Smith, who also manages The Heritage Foundation's the Supreme Court and Appellate Advocacy Program at their Edwin Meese III Center for Legal and Judicial Studies.

He added: “Many on the left would have us believe that the Supreme Court hasn't been following any ethical rules before this code was adopted. But that's just no the case. The Judicial Conference of the United States, which is the governing body for the lower federal courts, has long had a code of ethics for federal judges that the U.S. Supreme Court justices have long been voluntarily following. So, this idea that there isn't a code of ethics and there hasn't been one just isn't true.”

Smith said the court simply spelled out how it's always been operating.

He said: “All that the Supreme Court has really done is just formalize in some sense what they've been previously doing. Unfortunately, a lot of attacks on the court, I think, and calls for a code of ethics, isn't really a concern about ‘good government,’ or ‘full disclosure,’ or anything like that.”

Still congressional Democrats weren't satisfied. Senator Sheldon Whitehouse (D-R.I.), who has been a frequent court critic, claimed that the newly-adopted rules lack any real teeth – saying: “This is a long-overdue step by the justices, but a code of ethics is not binding unless there is a mechanism to investigate possible violations and enforce the rules.”

Smith explained, however, that the Constitution provides that mechanism. It's called impeachment.

But realistically their complaints have nothing to do with ethics; they're about ideology. Ever since former President Trump changed the court's ideological makeup, it's been under attack by Democrats. Senator Chuck Schumer (D-N.Y.), for example, joined a crowd of protesters in front of the Supreme Court Building in March of 2020 and made what can only be called threats at Trump's appointees to the high court. Schumer shouted over a PA system as the justices heard oral arguments on the pending abortion case: “I want to tell you, Gorsuch, and want to tell you, Kavanaugh, you have unleashed a whirlwind, and you will pay the price. You won't know what hit you if you go forward with these awful decisions.”

Democrats challenged the Supreme Court to a battle of wits, but failed to arm themselves for battle. They were outwitted by the court, and ultimately by America's Founders.

“Eye on the World” comment: The following two articles are by Ann Coulter who is a conservative who gives her opinion about the 2024 presidential election. These two articles are NOT presented to influence you about your voting choice – but rather to help you to recognize what is occurring on the political scene. In the first article, Coulter presents her view that the Democrats are trying to help Nikki Haley to capture the Republican nomination and her view that Ron DeSantis is the candidate that Democrats fear the most. (For the record, there are people who believe that all the legal attacks by Democrats against Donald Trump reveal that he is the candidate that Democrats fear the most.) In the second article, Coulter presents her view that if Donald Trump is the Republican candidate, he will lose.

An article by Ann Coulter titled “All I Want for Christmas Is to Be Treated Like Nikki Haley” was posted at anncoulter.com on Dec. 13, 2023. Following are excerpts of the article.

The media are trying to pick the GOP nominee for us just like they did with John McCain. (How did that work out?) Once again, their pick is the whiny warmonger – this time, Nikki Haley.

This week, headlines hyped the results of a Wall Street Journal poll showing Haley beating Biden by 17 points. Does anyone think that Haley will beat Biden by 17 points? The only presidential election decided by anything close to that in the last half-century was in 1984, when Ronald Reagan smashed Walter Mondale – winning by 18 points and 525 to 13 in the Electoral College.

- Haley flips out at a debate and calls Vivek Ramaswamy “scum” after he makes a completely legitimate point against her. Media in unison: “He is scum. How dare he make a devastating point against a female candidate?”
- Haley petulantly refuses to answer a question from Ramaswamy at another debate. Media in unison: “Yay, Nikki. She refused to take the bait.”
- Haley becomes the favorite of the donor class (hated by actual Republicans). Media in unison: “That’s it. DeSantis is done. (Remember everybody, do NOT mention that he’s still beating her in the polls.)”

Of course Haley is a hit with megadonors. She wants to start wars on three continents and keep the illegals flowing. So do billionaires. And for that matter, so do the media.

I know it’s hard to believe that the journalists (who are 99.9999% Democratic) wouldn’t have your best interests at heart, Republicans – but keep in mind that the fawning over this or that Republican ends sharply the moment the primaries are over.

Before McCain sewed up the nomination, the press’s flattery knew no bounds. Precisely 12 days after Mitt Romney dropped out, The New York Times launched a major front-page expose, suggesting that McCain was embroiled in a long-term affair with a lobbyist. (Do you think that this had just come to the Times’ attention?)

Right now, Haley’s getting the McCain treatment – not to be confused with the Michelle Obama treatment, which lasts forever.

Republicans, do you want the candidate the media fears? It’s manifestly obvious that the one man the media do not want Biden to face is DeSantis. Please let that be your guide, Republicans.

An article by Ann Coulter titled “Biden’s Three Paths to Victory” was posted at anncoulter.com on Dec. 20, 2023. Following are excerpts of the article.

1. Plan A: Enrage Republicans by bringing a string of ludicrous indictments, civil suits and ballot disqualifications against Donald Trump, thus tricking the GOP into making him the nominee. Result: Joe Biden easily wins a second term. If Trump behaves as we know he will, Biden wins even if he’s dead.
 2. Plan B: Keep telling the public that Trump is the prohibitive front-runner. Talk about him as if he were already the nominee. This will discourage sane Republicans from voting. What’s the point? It’s going to be Trump anyway. The media say so. Result: Trump’s the nominee, landslide for Biden. (It’s very similar to Plan A.)
 3. Plan C: Get Republicans to nominate Nikki Haley. Result: Either way, a Democrat wins.

Isaiah 55:6-11—“Seek you the Lord while He may be found, call upon Him while He is near. Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts; let him return to the Lord, and He will have mercy on him; and to our God, for He will abundantly pardon. ‘For My thoughts are not your thoughts, nor are your ways My ways,’ says the Lord. For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are My ways higher than your ways, and My thoughts than your thoughts. For as the rain comes down, and the snow from heaven, and do not return there, but water the earth, and make it bring forth and bud, that it may give seed to the sower and bread to the eater, so shall My word by that goes forth from My mouth; it shall not return to Me void, but it shall accomplish what I please, and it shall prosper in the thing for which I sent it.”
