But beware of slumbering; and every moment pray that you may be fully strengthened to escape from all these coming evils, and to take you stand in the presence of the Son of Man” (Weymouth New Testament).

Why is it easier to find lies in the media about "climate change" than truthful information?

Why is honest reporting on the environment an outlier instead of a rule?

Media parrots have said for decades that humans and our use of natural resources are killing the planet – and that oceans, species and forests are dying. They report on future predictions, but rarely on scientific facts. So I thought I would fill the vacuum.

We have been told that we are responsible for irredeemable destruction in the Great Barrier Reef, but that is not true. The reef is making a "comeback," yet we don't see that story. Why? Because it doesn't push the radical green agenda.

From a leading ocean-graphic institution: "In 2022, the Australian Institute of Marine Science (AIMS) reported the highest levels of coral cover across two-thirds of the Great Barrier Reef (GBR) in over 36 years. After recent massive bleaching events impacted nearly 90% of Australia's corals, it seems that anyone could see this news as a victory. So, why aren't scientists celebrating?"

It was thinning cyclically and naturally, and it has come back cyclically and naturally. Humans didn't cause the thinning, and government policies didn't cause the comeback – or we would see the green pushers claiming victory.

After an exponential increase over the last 160 years in natural resource consumption that is supposedly killing the oceans, an estimated three trillion fish survive.

We are told that we are killing the birds, yet because there are so many of these little creatures, the best guess that scientists have puts the total population somewhere between 200 billion and 400 billion.

Isn't it sad that the government thinks they know best how to manage nature?

An article written by Evan Bush titled “To Protect an Endangered Owl Species, Government Biologists Propose Killing Off Other Owls” was posted at nbcnews.com on Dec. 25, 2023.

Here is an excerpt: “That’s what the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service argues in its proposal to allow the agency to shoot hundreds of thousands of barred owls over the next 30 years in West Coast forests. The service says the barred owl (which is not native to the region) is crowding out the spotted owl, a close genetic relative.”

They are going to kill off hundreds of thousands of owls to protect a “cousin” owl. The article admits that the spotted owl is not dying because of humans or climate change, but rather because a cousin species is thriving and crowding out the former.

Various groups have for years been talking about the concern that mankind was killing off trees.

Notice an excerpt from an article titled “How Many Trees Are in the World 2024” that was posted at worldpopulationreview.com at the beginning of the year: “There are an estimated 3.04 trillion trees in the world. That’s about 400 for every human. This figure is way up from the estimate of 400 billion trees that was made just a few years ago.”

Why would anyone believe what these “scientists” say if their “lazy estimate” was off by over 700%?

I bet they can’t identify any trees that have died off because of a one- to two-degree temperature rise or an increase of CO<sub>2</sub> – which actually makes plants thrive.

Do you want to hear three of the dumbest and most expensive policies that have come from 100 years of false dire predictions?

- Carbon credits

Buying and selling worthless pieces of paper do nothing to reduce the carbon from planes, gas-guzzling trucks, or anything else.

- Carbon capture schemes

Why would anyone bury CO<sub>2</sub> (which is a clear, innocuous, non-pollutant gas that makes plants and trees thrive and allows the world to be fed)?

- Forced EV transitions

Why would anyone force people to buy expensive, inefficient, and impractical vehicles powered by a highly flammable pollutant that comes with serious environmental impact (rare earth mineral mining)?

We have clear choices in elections.

Vote for dictators who want to tell everyone what kind of vehicle to drive, what appliances they must use and how they heat and cool their homes. Or vote for leaders who believe in freedom of choice and don't care if you want to buy a battery-operated car or a more affordable and practical gas-powered car.

We have choices between politicians who are so arrogant that they think they can control the climate, and those who know they can't.

An article by William Levin titled “The Electric Car Con Explained” was posted at americanthinker.com on Jan. 11, 2024. Following are excerpts of the article.

- Is electricity a source of energy?

Most people will answer yes, which is incorrect. Electricity carries energy, but it is not itself a source of energy – which in the U.S. is supplied 60% by natural gas and coal, 18% nuclear and 22% renewables (hydro, solar and wind).

- Are cars are a major consumer of energy and hence a significant contributor of Co2 emissions?

Again, most people believe both statements are self-evidently true – hence the importance of moving to electric cars.

In fact, cars (light-duty transportation) account for less than 5% of global energy demand – with U.S. cars accounting for 19% of the global car fleet, declining to under 15% by 2050 as car demand grows faster outside the U.S.

Putting these facts together (and they are indisputable facts) provides a stunning insight.

The U.S. car fleet accounts for a mere 1.0% of global energy demand (5% x 19%) – declining to 0.8% by 2050.

So even if the U.S. shifts 100% to electric-powered cars, the maximum climate impact in 2050 is a meaningless 0.2% (22% x 0.8%) reduction in global Co2 emissions from the current electric grid – up to a maximum of 0.5% assuming solar, wind and hydro can (implausibly) power 60% of electric demand.

In other words, there is no factual basis to claim that the government mandate to switch to electric cars will have any material impact on global Co2 emissions.

This is not a debatable point. It is correct under any view of climate science. It remains true even if solar and wind magically grow sixfold over the next 25 years – which is highly unlikely given the need to build a new transmission network (estimated at more than 200,000 miles of wires crisscrossing the country) and likely impossible to achieve large-scale, economic battery storage.

Nor does the picture change materially if the entire world goes 100% electric for cars. In that were to occur, global Co2 emissions fall a mere 3.5% in 2050 versus a baseline of 24% electric adoption by 2035.

Put simply, cars are not a meaningful source of global emissions and electric cars do not and cannot curtail the continued reliance on fossil fuels in electric generation.

If going electric yields virtually no climate benefit, why bother buying a battery-powered car (with limited range, high purchase cost and low resale value and the death knell to affordable leasing costs)?

The new car sticker hides economic reality by featuring (in bold type) a hypothetical five-year operating saving versus an average conventional car – based on the cost of gas and electricity.

By sticker math, savings rise as gasoline prices increase, hence the perverse and persistent administration incentive to force high gas costs on Americans – except in an election year. And the savings disappear as electric costs increase.

Already there is not operating benefit when charging stations routinely cost $.40/kwh-$.50/kwh (a fact conveniently not mentioned in the sticker calculation).

Nor are consumers warned of the inevitable sharp increase in electric rates if the grid must absorb high-cost solar and wind (as in Germany where electric rates already are $.45/kwh) – removing any incentive for electric cars. At current gas prices, a typical hybrid costs less to run on gas once electric prices exceed $.24/kwh.

Taking the broader view, fossil fuels currently account for 80% of global energy supply. Even if the world aggressively grows solar and wind, fossil fuels in 2050 continue to supply 68% of all energy.

The continued dominance of fossil fuels explains what is otherwise inexplicable: Warren Buffet's multi-billion-dollar investment in oil companies (especially Occidental Petroleum) and the recent surge in oil acquisitions (notably ExxonMobil paying $58 billion for Pioneer Natural Resources and Chevron's purchase of Hess Corp. for $60 billion).

Those with the greatest knowledge (betting real money) know oil and gas are here to stay.

China, India, Asia and Africa are not buying what world elites are selling (as they self-righteously jet to exhilarating climate confabs. No one should.

The hard truth is that no set of actions can remotely meet the arbitrary IPCC requirement for a 70% reduction in global Co2 by 2050 – certainly not the puny contribution from electrified cars.

- By all means, purchase a battery-powered vehicle if it pleases you. But do not imagine for a moment that it saves money or is doing anything that matters for climate change.
- We are ruled by liars, fools and demons – too often all three in one.

An article by Allen West titled “Three Crucial Words for Our Constitutional Republic” was posted at townhall.com on Jan. 8, 2024. Following are excerpts of the article.

“This Constitution, and the Laws of the United States which shall be made in Pursuance thereof; and all Treaties made, or which shall be made, under the Authority of the United States, shall be the supreme Law of the Land; and the Judges in every State shall be bound thereby, any Thing in the Constitution or Laws of any State to the Contrary notwithstanding.” – Article VI, Clause 2, U.S. Constitution.

Recently there have been many pundits and incompetents who have been invoking Article VI, Section 2 of the United States Constitution, known as the Supremacy Clause.

No, progressive socialist leftists, it has nothing to do with white supremacy or racism.

Please share that with Claudine Gay, lest she use the Supremacy Clause to further her insidious victimization narrative.

These same leftists, Marxists, seem to use this clause to impose their ideological agenda when they have control of the federal government.

However, there are three very crucial words within the Supremacy Clause that leftists (and many others) seem to selectively and intentionally forget: “in Pursuance thereof.”

We must be reminded that the Constitution of the United States of America is a restraining document on the powers of the federal government. As a matter of fact, the Founding Fathers clearly articulated the limits of the federal government in the last constitutional amendment of our individual Bill of Rights (the 10th).

It states: “The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people.”

It is imperative to understand that when the writers of the Constitution (James Madison, John Jay and Alexander Hamilton) wrote the Constitution, their use of “the United States” refers to the entity of the federal government.

In other words, that which is not specifically enumerated as a power of the federal government is reserved to the States, and the individual people, citizens.

I am still searching for where the federal government has an enumerated power to decide who gets married, and no, that has nothing to do with the 14th Amendment “equal protection under the law” clause. That was intended for recently freed slaves who were just made citizens.

In keeping with the same understanding – if the federal government is not “in Pursuance thereof” our rule of law (the Constitution), it is not supreme over the States.

Let’s look at the issue of illegal immigration, an invasion of millions.

The Constitution in Article IV, Section 4 (known as the Guarantee Clause) clearly charges the federal government with the duty to protect every State in the Union from invasion. The Biden administration is clearly in violation of the Guarantee Clause – and please spare me the weak excuse about folks escaping climate change.

Hundreds of thousands of single military-age males ain’t running from the weather.

With that being said, it is disingenuous for the Biden administration to assert the Supremacy Clause against the State of Texas which seeks to protect itself in light of the federal government not acting “in Pursuance thereof” the Constitution.

As well, Article 1, Section 10, Clause 3 of the Constitution specifies exactly what States have the enumerated power to do when actually invaded, facing imminent danger, and they may take action without “admit of delay.”

Now, as evidence of this equal application of the rule of law, the Governor of Texas is empowered in the Texas Constitution, Article IV, Section 7 in his duty as Commander of the Texas Military Department to “repel invasions.”

It does not say anything about “busing invasions.” To confused leftist mayors, declaring their cities, or leftist governors declaring their states as “sanctuaries,” your actions are not “in Pursuance thereof” the laws of this sovereign Constitutional Republic.

- Governor Pritzker of Illinois seeks to allow illegal immigrants to become law enforcement officers.

- Pennsylvania Governor Shapiro wants illegals to get drivers licenses and picture IDs.
- New York Governor [Kathy] Hochul wants illegals to vote in elections.
- And the well-coiffed Governor of California [Gavin Newsom] is telling law-abiding citizens that they must pay for free healthcare for illegal immigrants.
- To top it all off, delusional Illinois Senator Dick Durbin wants to enlist illegal immigrants into our U.S. Armed Forces – since Biden’s policies are decimating our recruiting and retention.
- Not a single one of these “dead from the neck up” Marxists are taking actions that are “in Pursuance thereof” to our Constitution. States are allowed to enact “constitutional nullification,” and We the People are not bound to obey.

Such is the case we see already, again, in Illinois where they have supposedly “banned” what they call “assault weapons” – semi-automatic rifles they think are scary and do not like.

Spoiler alert: the mentally disturbed gender dysphoric school shooter in Iowa was armed with a shotgun and a handgun.

Anything used to assault an individual (meaning inflict bodily harm) is an assault weapon – hammer, nail gun (see Equalizer), knife, automobile (see Christmas parade in Wisconsin), fist, foot or pencil (see John Wick).

What the leftists are doing is taking an action that is not “in Pursuance thereof” our Second Amendment right, in our Bill of Rights, in our Constitution.

The future of America is dependent upon us restoring the rule of law in our Constitutional Republic. I have not seen anywhere that government (federal, state, or local) has the enumerated power to shut down private businesses. No emergency suspends the rule of law.

- It was Benjamin Franklin who told us: “Those who would give up essential Liberty, to purchase a little temporary Safety, deserve neither Liberty nor Safety.”
- The three most critical words for our Constitutional Republic (“in Pursuance thereof”) pertain to the pursuance of individual liberty and the adherence to the rule of law.
- It is not about replacing constitutional rights with deranged ideological rights – such as telling parents they might lose custody of their children if their kids are not allowed to mutilate their bodies.

Sadly, in America, we have such a dearth of principled men and women.

Replaced by those motivated by self and politicians fueled by special interests, enabled by useful idiots and mindless lemmings; we find ourselves at this critical moment.

It is time American citizens (not insidious ideologues) start asking themselves (and those seeking to be our representatives) some questions.

- Is what you are doing and your policies “in Pursuance thereof” in advancing my individual rights, freedoms, and liberties?
- Are these politicians, not statesmen, in pursuit of their own advancement and enrichment to the detriment of our own?

The Constitution of the United States of America is not a very long document, just like the Declaration of Independence. You could certainly read both in less time than it would take you to read the confused rhetoric spewed forth by Ibram X. Kendi or Nikole Hannah-Jones – which is only “in Pursuance thereof” appeasing the “stuck in stupid.”

The challenge for America in 2024 is for more citizens to live a life “in Pursuance thereof” restoring our Constitutional Republic – as opposed to those living in pursuance of a fundamental transformation of our America.

Steadfast and Loyal.

Isaiah 55:6-11–“Seek you the Lord while He may be found, call upon Him while He is near. Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts; let him return to the Lord, and He will have mercy on him; and to our God, for He will abundantly pardon. ‘For My thoughts are not your thoughts, nor are your ways My ways,’ says the Lord. For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are My ways higher than your ways, and My thoughts than your thoughts. For as the rain comes down, and the snow from heaven, and do not return there, but water the earth, and make it bring forth and bud, that it may give seed to the sower and bread to the eater, so shall My word by that goes forth from My mouth; it shall not return to Me void, but it shall accomplish what I please, and it shall prosper in the thing for which I sent it.”
