Luke 21:34-36—“But take heed to yourselves, lest your souls be weighed down with self-indulgence, and drunkenness, or the anxieties of this life, and that day come on you suddenly, like a falling trap; for it will come on all dwellers on the face of the whole earth. But beware of slumbering; and every moment pray that you may be fully strengthened to escape from all these coming evils, and to take you stand in the presence of the Son of Man” (Weymouth New Testament).

An article by Joel Gehrke titled “Javier Milei Warns Davos: Social Justice Puts the West ‘in Danger’ ” was posted at washingtonexaminer.com on Jan. 17, 2024. Following is the article.

Argentine President Javier Milei warned a forum of international economic elites that their growing embrace of “collectivist” ideology in the name of social justice has endangered Western society.

“I’m here to tell you that the Western world is in danger,” Milei told the World Economic Forum in Davos, Switzerland. “Unfortunately, in recent decades, motivated by some well-meaning individuals willing to help others and others motivated by the wish to belong to a privileged caste, many leaders of the Western world have abandoned the model of freedom for different versions of what we call collectivism.”

It was a debut on the international diplomatic circuit befitting Milei’s background as a libertarian populist who admires Murray Rothbard and Ludwig von Mises. The newly-elected leader, who rose to power last year as Argentine voters rejected a center-left government that presided over a 143% inflation rate, used his address to spread the gospel of libertarianism and denounce the vision of “social justice” that he regards as a threat to justice and prosperity.

“The problem is that social justice is not just and it doesn’t contribute, either, to the general well-being,” he said through an interpreter. “Those who promote social justice, the advocates, start with the idea that the whole economy is a pie that can be shared differently. But that pie is not a given.”

His line or argument ran contrary to the organizing themes of the forum. The Davos planners set the stage by affirming the need for “government, business, and civil society [to] come together around a new economic framework to avoid a decade of low growth and put people at the center of a more prosperous trajectory.”

They emphasized the necessity of “a long-term systemic approach to achieve the objectives of a carbon-neutral and nature-positive world by 2050.”

Yet Milei, armed with a litany of statistics about the exponential economic growth that has unfolded since the Industrial Revolution, denounced such aspirations as a dream that can only empower “the bureaucrat in a luxury office” at the expense of the rest of society.

“Given the dismal failure of collectivist models and the undeniable advances in the free world, socialists were forced to change their agenda,” Milei said. “They left behind the class struggles based on the economic system, and replaced this with other supposed social conflicts, which are just as harmful to life as a community and to economic growth.”

Those substitutes, he said, include “the ridiculous and unnatural fight between man and woman,” the supposed struggle of “humans against nature,” and the “bloody abortion agenda,” which he implied has a link to environmentalist desires for population control. He proposed an update to the definition of socialism – “an economic system where the state owns the means of production” – to encompass a variety of contemporary government activity.

“Today’s states don’t have to directly control the means of production to control every aspect of the lives of individuals,” he said. “With tools such as printing money, debt, subsidies, controlling the interest rate, price controls, and regulations to correct the so-called market failures, they can control the lives and fates of millions of individuals.”

If Milei took aim mostly at left-wing policy priorities, he made clear his belief that the fundamental “collectivist” era is a widespread phenomenon in contemporary politics.

“A good deal of the generally accepted political offers in most Western countries, our collectivist variants – whether they proclaim to be openly communist, fascist, Nazis, socialists, social democrats, National Socialists, Democrat Christians, and Christian Democrats, Neo-Keynesians, progressive populists, nationalists, or globalists,” he said. “At bottom, there are no major differences.”

The new president ended with an adulatory message for “all the business people” in the room and around the world: “Do not surrender to a political class that only wants to stay in power and retain its privileges,” he said. “You are heroes. You’re the creators of the most extraordinary period of prosperity we’ve ever seen . . . And rest assured that, as from today, Argentina is your staunch, unconditional ally. Thank you very much. And long live freedom, damn it!”

An article by Tovah Lazaroff titled “Day-After Netanyahu There Will Be a PA-Run Palestinian State; PM Says” was posted at jpost.com on Jan. 19, 2024. Following are excerpts of the article.

Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu linked his political future with the prevention of a Palestinian Authority-run Palestinian state, precisely as the Biden administration has been pressuring Israel to return to a two-state diplomatic process.

Netanyahu said – that this conflict between Israelis and Palestinians is not about the absence of a Palestinian state, but about the existence of the Jewish state.

Netanyahu’s words put him at odds with the Biden administration, which has been Israel’s main ally in its war against Hamas.

He spoke amid speculation about increased tension between him and U.S. President Joe Biden about the day after plans for Gaza – with the U.S. renewing its drive for a Saudi normalization deal. This time around, the deal would more clearly include an Israeli agreement to Palestinian statehood.

Reporters have noted that it’s been several weeks since the two have spoken.

NBC reported on Wednesday that the Biden administration sought to circumvent Netanyahu by working to lay the groundwork for the day-after solutions through other Israeli politicians and civic society leaders.

According to NBC, Netanyahu rejected U.S. and Saudi plans that include Palestinian statehood.

In Tel Aviv, Netanyahu spoke with reporters about the problems connected to Israeli territorial withdrawal as a phenomenon and a strategic choice.

“Every territory that we withdraw from, terror is leveled against us,” Netanyahu said, explaining that this included southern Lebanon, Gaza, and the West Bank, which he referred to as Judea and Samaria.

This is why in any future arrangement (or even if there is not a future arrangement), “Israel must maintain security control over all the territory west of the Jordan River,” he said.

This conflicts with the idea of Palestinian sovereignty, but “there is nothing that can be done about that,” he said.

“I have explained this truth to the Americans,” he said, adding that he also prevented an attempt to impose on Israel a harmful reality.

“An Israeli Prime Minister has to be able to say ‘no’ even to our best friends. To say ‘no’ when it's necessary and to say 'yes' when it's possible," Netanyahu said.

Netanyahu emphasized that he was determined to continue the IDF military's campaign in Gaza until Hamas was defeated.

He also pledged that he was doing everything possible to prevent a nuclear Iran, and assured the Israeli public that Israel was already executing attacks against it.

"Who says we are not attacking Iran? We are attacking," Netanyahu said. "Iran is the head of the octopus and you see its tentacles all around, from the Houthis to Hezbollah to Hamas."

He described a situation in which Israel is battling the proxies of the Islamic Republic on three fronts – Israel's southern and northern borders, as well as in its waterways.

"Imagine, if this is what Iran is doing now (when it doesn't have nuclear weapons), how critical it is that we stop it from acquiring nuclear weapons," Netanyahu said.

Israel, under his leadership, has delayed Iran from producing nuclear weapons by at least 10 years, he claimed – adding that it could still do more but that he did not want to elaborate on what that was.

"I am obligated as the Prime Minister of Israel to prevent Iran from acquiring nuclear weapons (not just for our security and existence), but for the protection of the entire world."

An article by Yonah Jeremy Bob titled "How Hamas Set Up a Trap for IDF Soldiers in Gaza's Rafah" was posted at jpost.com on Jan. 18, 2024. Following are excerpts of the article.

Hamas has set a trap in Rafah for the IDF.

Initially, the IDF decided to mostly focus its initial invasion on northern Gaza – leaving not only Rafah, but also most of Khan Yunis and the rest of southern Gaza untouched.

The hope (or gamble) was that Hamas's leadership would see the dominance, power, and destruction in northern Gaza and make the call to cut a deal favorable to Israel to avoid the same fate for Khan Yunis.

The IDF also wanted to give as wide an area as possible for northern Gaza's 1.4 million Palestinian civilians to evacuate to the entire area of southern Gaza.

When Hamas broke the hostage deal in early December, the IDF decided to go after Khan Yunis – moving most of the Palestinian civilians in Khan Yunis even further south (to Rafah). Again, the civilians needed somewhere to go after Israel's strikes made living there impossible.

But an additional reason the IDF did not want to attack Rafah was that it borders Egypt. (Publicly, Egypt has been highly critical of Israel's war in Gaza. Yet at the same time, Cairo is a crucial part of negotiations for the hostages and will be essential to the day-after plans for rule in Gaza. Egypt not only wants to avoid border clashes, it wants to prevent even the possibility of a rush of thousands of Palestinians from Gaza into Egyptian territory.)

The Egyptians do not want to be accused of facilitating and endorsing Israeli control of Gaza, which could lead to them being seen as traitors to the Palestinians.

All of this means that the IDF cannot take significant action in Rafah, or take control of the Philadelphi Corridor, without very careful negotiations with Cairo.

Therefore, Rafah could serve as a sanctuary for firing rockets on Israel.

And Hamas leadership are probably hiding in Rafah.

If Hamas's leadership is not considering a deal until the IDF is close enough to "knock on its door" – and if some of them are in Rafah (which has gone mostly untouched) – then all of the power and pressure thrown at Khan Yunis will not achieve a decisive turning point any more than taking control of northern Gaza did.

If Israel finally decides to act in Rafah, it must consider the following.

1. It must end its delay and decide what day-after policy it will pursue (to gain Egypt cooperation.
2. Figure out how to act without killing Palestinian civilians (within the most crowded Gaza situation it has yet confronted) with little evacuation options.
3. Decide what it will do if and when it finds any of Hamas's leadership surrounded by hostages.

This is the trap that Hamas has set for the IDF. The military did show a stunning ability to walk a tightrope and escape another trap when it took control of Hamas's Shifa Hospital command center – without firing a shot indoors. The IDF will likely need to spring this trap as well and navigate a way through.

Isaiah 55:6-11–“Seek you the Lord while He may be found, call upon Him while He is near. Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts; let him return to the Lord, and He will have mercy on him; and to our God, for He will abundantly pardon. ‘For My thoughts are not your thoughts, nor are your ways My ways,’ says the Lord. For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are My ways higher than your ways, and My thoughts than your thoughts. For as the rain comes down, and the snow from heaven, and do not return there, but water the earth, and make it bring forth and bud, that it may give seed to the sower and bread to the eater, so shall My word by that goes forth from My mouth; it shall not return to Me void, but it shall accomplish what I please, and it shall prosper in the thing for which I sent it.”
