But beware of slumbering; and every moment pray that you may be fully strengthened to escape from all these coming evils, and to take you stand in the presence of the Son of Man” (Weymouth New Testament).

An article by Jonathan Lieberman titled “It Is Fundamentally Wrong to Hold Israel and Hamas to the Same Moral Standards” was posted at jpost.com on April 6, 2024. Following is the article.

Since I began writing regularly in the columns of The Jerusalem Post, I have become somewhat accustomed to receiving feedback on the content, style, subject matter, and even the spelling of my offerings.

Some of the comments received are complimentary and supportive, some are less so and others are downright hostile and abusive.

One delightful lady from Santa Monica, California took the time and trouble to write a lengthy diatribe in which (amongst other choice phrases), she described me as a moral degenerate who supports the Nazi Israeli regime and its genocidal leaders – and adds no wonder the world hates Jews.

I guess this kind of response comes with the territory and one gets used to it.

But this week, I received a response which actually shocked me. It came from a friend of mine – a highly intelligent man with many years of experience in the professional and business world. He has spent tens if not hundreds of hours since the beginning of the war traveling up and down the country (covering thousands of kilometers) delivering goods to bases and generally doing wonderful things for the war effort.

I mention this to cement in the reader's mind that this person could never be thought to be anything but 100% behind our country.

This gentleman (we'll call him Avraham) commented on the article I wrote last week about kids dressing up as soldiers on Purim and the dichotomy of emotions that this brought about. Readers may remember that there was a photograph of three little children saluting in the uniform of the IDF.

Avraham said to me: "Ever since I read your article, I can't help thinking about young Palestinian children dressed in Hamas outfits with bandannas and brandishing guns."

It suddenly occurred to me that if Avraham made a connection, then it is likely that many others (especially those not supportive of our war) will do the same – but draw a very different conclusion and suggest a moral equivalence.

It dawned on me. That is exactly what has happened over the last six months.

- Much of the world now sees a clear moral equivalence between the horrific, barbaric acts of murder, rape, abuse, hostage taking and ransacking by the Hamas terrorists on October 7 and the IDF's response to the existential threat Israel faces.
- We need to recognize that when discussing such complex and sensitive matters (especially with those antagonistic towards Israel), it requires a nuanced understanding of the context, history, and the moral implications involved.

While much of the world attempts to draw a moral equivalence between the actions of Hamas and the responses of Israel in the context of the Israeli-Palestinian conflict, this inevitably leads to oversimplification and distortion of reality.

Context matters

The Israeli-Palestinian conflict is deeply rooted in historical, political and socio-economic factors – with both sides having legitimate grievances.

Attempting to equate the actions of one party with the other (without considering this context) ignores the power dynamics, asymmetry, and historical injustices involved. This is a euphemism for “Israel the aggressor against the poor downtrodden Palestinians – context matters.”

Proportionality of response

Another sound bite proffered goes like this: While every nation has the right to defend its citizens and borders, the principle of proportionality dictates that the response should be commensurate with the threat posed.

- The notion of equivalence breaks down when considering the vast difference in scale and intent between terrorist acts and military responses.

Another euphemism for the same idea that we are the wicked Goliath and the enemy is poor little David.

What we must point out (no, not point out) – we must shout from the rooftops. We must use every possible forum we have available to us (social media, old-fashioned print media, personal conversation and advocacy) to make the following points.

Intent and tactics

Hamas has been designated as a terrorist organization by numerous countries and entities – due to its indiscriminate violence (including suicide bombings, rocket attacks targeting civilians and the use of human shields).

Such tactics deliberately target civilians and violate international humanitarian law.

Civilian casualties

The Israeli response involves military operations aimed at targeting militants and infrastructures used for launching attacks. However, due to the densely populated nature of Gaza, civilian casualties can occur despite efforts to minimize them.

Hamas's tactics (including storing weapons in civilian areas and launching attacks from populated areas, hospitals, schools and UN facilities) exacerbate this issue and constitute a moral bankruptcy for which there is no equivalence.

Intentions for peace

Israel (as a recognized state) has repeatedly expressed its willingness to engage in negotiations and pursue a peaceful resolution to the conflict.

Hamas, on the other hand, has rejected the existence of Israel and continues to advocate for its destruction with horrible violence – thus scuppering any chance of lasting peace in the region.

Responsibility and accountability

- Holding both parties to the same moral standard disregards the fundamental difference between self-defense and terrorism.
- While Israel faces scrutiny for its military actions, Hamas evades accountability for its crimes against humanity – including the holding of hostages who have never received a Red Cross visit in six full months.

Historical reminders

The use of the argument of moral equivalence has many precedent in past history. Here are a few examples.

- World War II

During World War II, some individuals attempted to draw moral equivalence between the actions of Nazi Germany and the Allied powers. They argued that the bombing of civilian populations by both sides (such as the Allied bombing of Dresden and the Axis bombing of London) demonstrated a lack of moral superiority on the part of the Allies.

However, such arguments ignore the context of the war, the genocidal policies of the Nazis, and the Allies' efforts to defeat fascism and restore peace.

- The Cold War

During the Cold War, proponents of detente and appeasement often equated the actions of the United States and the Soviet Union. They argued that both superpowers engaged in imperialistic behavior, supported dictatorships, and violated human rights.

However, this moral equivalence failed to acknowledge the fundamental differences between the two systems with the Soviet Union suppressing dissent and denying basic freedoms to its citizens – witness the 70-year plight of Soviet Jewry (of which we are all too aware).

- The Genocide in Rwanda

Some individuals attempted to draw moral equivalence between the Hutu perpetrators of the Rwandan genocide and the Tutsi victims. They argued that both ethnic groups were equally responsible for the violence and atrocities committed during the genocide.

However, this false equivalence ignored the systemic targeting of Tutsis for extermination, and the role of Hutu extremists in orchestrating the genocide.

Beware of the tactics

These examples demonstrate how moral equivalence arguments can be used to distort reality, justify oppression, and hinder efforts to achieve justice and peace.

They are all spurious and used by bad men to justify bad things.

We must be aware of these tactics and not allowing ourselves and others to be lulled into this web of deceit and lies.

An article by Ned Cosby titled “Mirror, Mirror on the Wall, Who Threatens Democracy the Most This Fall?” was posted at americanthinker.com on April 8, 2024. Following are excerpts of the article.

A funny thing happened on the way to the fall election last week. Another presidential candidate, Robert F. Kennedy, Junior, was interviewed by Erin Burnett on CNN’s show OUTFRONT. Burnett’s mission was to get Kennedy to agree with all the king’s horses and all the king’s men that Trump was an existential threat to democracy. His response did not match her expectations.

RFK said: “Listen, I can make the argument that President Biden is a much worse threat to democracy. And the reason for that is President Biden is the first candidate in history, the first president in history that has used the federal agencies to censor political speech, so to censor his opponent. I can say that because I just won a case in the federal Court of Appeals and now before the Supreme Court that shows that he started censoring not just me – 37 hours after he took the oath of office, he was censoring me. No president in the country has ever done that.

“The greatest threat to democracy is not somebody who questions election returns, but a president of the United States who uses the power of his office to force the social media companies (Facebook, Instagram, Twitter) to open a portal and give access to that portal to the FBI, to the CIA, to the IRS, to CISA, to NIH to censor his political critics.

“President Biden, the first president in history, used the Secret – his power over the Secret Service to deny Secret Service protection to one of his political opponents for political reasons.

“He’s weaponizing the federal agencies. Those are really critical threats to democracy.”

Isaiah 55:6-11—“Seek you the Lord while He may be found, call upon Him while He is near. Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts; let him return to the Lord, and He will have mercy on him; and to our God, for He will abundantly pardon. ‘For My thoughts are not your thoughts, nor are your ways My ways,’ says the Lord. For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are My ways higher than your ways, and My thoughts than your thoughts. For as the rain comes down, and the snow from heaven, and do not return there, but water the earth, and make it bring forth and bud, that it may give seed to the sower and bread to the eater, so shall My word by that goes forth from My mouth; it shall not return to Me void, but it shall accomplish what I please, and it shall prosper in the thing for which I sent it.”
