Luke 21:34-36—“But take heed to yourselves, lest your souls be weighed down with self-indulgence, and drunkenness, or the anxieties of this life, and that day come on you suddenly, like a falling trap; for it will come on all dwellers on the face of the whole earth. But beware of slumbering; and every moment pray that you may be fully strengthened to escape from all these coming evils, and to take your stand in the presence of the Son of Man” (Weymouth New Testament).

An article by Matthew Levitt titled “Hezbollah’s Deadly Rockets Aren’t the Most Serious Threat to Israel’s Northern Border” was posted at latimes.com on Aug. 6, 2024. Following is the article.

After nearly 10 months of constant rocket and drone attacks across the Israel-Lebanon border, Israel and Hezbollah stand at the brink of full-scale war for the first time since 2006. But more dire than Hezbollah’s rocket arsenal is the threat that it will launch an October 7-style ground incursion into Israel.

The immediate crisis is a result of what Israel officials say was a Hezbollah rocket attack that killed 12 Israeli Druze youths. Since the day after Hamas’ October 7 massacre, Hezbollah has been firing rockets into Israel almost daily. While the majority of the strikes have used anti-tank guided missiles, the group has also used longer-range, more powerful munitions provided by Iran.

That was apparently the case on July 27, when Hezbollah is accused of firing an Iranian Falaq-1 rocket toward the Israeli-controlled Golan Heights and striking a soccer field and playground in the Druze community of Majdal Shams. (Though Israel released data on the rocket and its trajectory that tie it to Hezbollah, the group has issued a rare denial of responsibility for the attack.)

Three days later, an Israeli airstrike killed the Hezbollah military commander Fuad Shukur in Beirut. And the day after that, an explosion widely attributed to Israel killed the Hamas leader Ismail Haniyeh at a guesthouse in Tehran. The region is not on pins and needles awaiting reprisals from Iran, Hezbollah and perhaps other Iranian proxy groups – risking escalation and wider war.

And yet there is hope for de-escalation. The factors that have prevented Hezbollah from opening a full-fledged second front for Israel since October still hold true. Lebanon continues to suffer a devastating economic (and political) crisis, and most of its citizens don't want Hezbollah to drag the country into what would probably be a terribly destructive war. An while Iran is happy to fight to the last Arab proxy, its leaders don't want war to spill over their own borders.

But it's too early to count on cooler heads. The Hezbollah leader Hassan Nasrallah has pledged to continue firing rockets into Israel until the fighting stops in Gaza. And even if a cease-fire deal is reached and the rockets stop, more than 60,000 Israeli civilians displaced from their home along the border with Lebanon will not return until the threat posed by Hezbollah ground forces is dealt with.

My recent visit to Israel's evacuated northern border drove home the extent to which residents of the area fear an October 7-style raid, distrust their leaders' security guarantees and will resist returning to their homes without a more convincing answer to the threat.

- They have good reason for concern. The Hamas massacre came straight out of Hezbollah's playbook.
- The Israeli military has been actively training for years to counter a Hezbollah plot to overrun Israeli communities, kill and kidnap civilians, and undermine Israel's sense of security.
- Part of what was unexpected about October 7 was that it happened on the southern rather than the northern border.

Moreover, after its 2006 war with Israel, Hezbollah built an arsenal of some 150,000 rockets, deployed forces throughout southern Lebanon and otherwise violated a U.N. Security Council resolution meant to prevent further conflict.

Israelis displaced from the north are beginning to learn just how close to disaster they also came on October 7. As Hamas terrorists streamed across the southern border that day, only two Israeli battalions comprising about 600 personnel were covering the entire northern border. Today, some 40 battalions defend that border, but such a deployment is difficult to maintain over the long haul.

Israeli officials are under tremendous pressure to return their citizens to the sovereign territory Hezbollah has effectively depopulated for most of a year. They have indicated that if Hezbollah doesn't agree to retreat from the border, Israel will clear it by force.

U.S. diplomatic efforts have focused on getting Hezbollah to pull all its forces at least 10 kilometers from the border. This would put most of its missiles out of range and make an October 7-style surprise attack much less likely.

Some within the Israel Defense Forces advocate neutralizing the Hezbollah threat now, while the group has a relatively small share of its extensive forces sitting on the border, Israeli troops are fully deployed in the north and civilians are already displaced from the area.

- But most Israeli officials understand that a war with Hezbollah today would be like no war Israel has ever fought.
- They would prefer to let the current war end, send exhausted reservists home, allow displaced families to leave the hotel rooms they have lived in for many months and take a couple of years to restock munitions and plan for a war with Hezbollah.

But if Israel civilians are unable to return to their homes soon, the war may come much sooner than they would like.

- Across the country and its political spectrum, Israelis agree that they can no longer live with a gun to their heads, not from the south or from the north. The idea that enemies sworn to destroy them can be allowed to amass massive arsenals on their borders is no longer tenable.
- That means that Israel will ultimately have to address both Hezbollah's rocket stockpile and its 30,000-strong standing militia.
- And it's the latter that's more likely to drag Israel into a war that most Israelis and Lebanese don't want.

An article by Laura Hollis titled “The Deceived vs. the Indoctrinated” was posted at townhall.com on July 25, 2024. Following is the article.

The American public has been subjected to massive propaganda efforts by both our government and our media for years. It’s important to understand the impact this has on the current presidential campaign.

That starts with understanding the difference between deception and indoctrination.

- Those who have been merely deceived may be surprised when the deception is exposed. They may even be angry. But they will change their positions when confronted with facts that contradict them.
- The indoctrinated will not.

The Oxford English Dictionary defines “indoctrinated” as “accepting a set of beliefs without question, refusing to consider any others.” For the indoctrinated, those beliefs become a part of their identity; they will not let go of them, even when faced with contrary evidence or explicit falsehoods.

Million of Americans have been propagandized to believe that former President Donald Trump is “literally Hitler” and “a threat to our democracy” that he will “destroy this country” or “start World War III.”

You can provide all the proof to the contrary you want; it will not change their minds.

I’ve had conversations with friends and loved ones who profess to be terrified about the possible perils of another Trump presidency. In those [conversations], I point out just some of the actual conduct of the Biden administration.

- Imprisoning Americans and depriving them of their constitutional rights to due process.
- Collaborating with Big Tech companies to censor truthful information about the 2020 elections, the origins of Covid-19, the United States’ role in funding gain-of-function research at the international virology laboratory in Wuhan, China, the efficacy of drugs like ivermectin in treating Covid-19, and the illness and deaths caused by the mRNA vaccines that were forced upon Americans.
- Fabricating allegations of Trump’s “collusion” with Russia in the 2016 election, lying to federal court to obtain illegal surveillance warrants and spending upwards of $35 million to “investigate” allegations they already knew were false.
- Calling sexually explicit and criminal content on Hunter Biden’s laptop “Russian disinformation,” and keeping it from the American public when they knew it was truthful – in order to impact the 2020 presidential election.
- Prosecuting Trump for possession of allegedly classified documents, but refusing to prosecute President Joe Biden for the same conduct.
- Weaponizing the legal system against the administration’s political opponents.

- Actively preventing the enactment and enforcement of laws that protect election integrity (for example, requiring identification and proof of citizenship before voting).
- Botching the withdrawal from Afghanistan and leaving thousands of American citizens and Afghani allies behind – as well as billions of dollars in military material and ammunition left for the Taliban.
- Two major wars and $175 billion in taxpayer dollars given to Ukraine.
- Allowing approximately 10 million migrants to cross the border illegally in the past three and a half years, flying and busing them all over the country, housing them and giving them monthly stipends – all at taxpayer expense.
- Choking off our own energy production, sending the costs of fuel (and thus, everything else) skyrocketing, and creating the worst inflation we've had in more than 40 years.

What reaction do I get?

Blink . . . Blink . . . “But Donald Trump . . .”

That's indoctrination.

I've heard other attempted explanations.

The argument goes: “Well, maybe people don't care because these events primarily affect those with whom they disagree politically.”

But if that were true, they would be irate when confronted with the negative impact on populations they do purport to care about. For example, the illegal importation of millions of migrants has diverted resources away from America's poor, our homeless, veterans and those dealing with substance abuse and mental illness. The presence of millions of illegal immigrants also inflates housing costs and depresses the job prospects for America's working poor – including Blacks and single parents. And inflation affects everyone.

It doesn't matter.

More compelling proof can be found in Democrat voters' reactions to the events of the past three weeks that uniquely affected them.

- First – Biden's disastrous performance at the first presidential debate on June 27 exposed the ugly reality that their own party and the press had been lying about the president's declining mental faculties for years. Had Democrat voters known about Biden's condition in 2020, they could have chosen a different candidate.

It doesn't matter.

- Second – Despite Biden's adamant insistence that he was staying in the race, the Democratic Party forced him out in a de facto palace coup, had him issue a bland statement on X/Twitter and kept him in seclusion for almost a week.

It doesn't matter.

- Third – They just unilaterally substituted a new presidential candidate (Vice President Kamala Harris) without any participation by the party's voters at all.

(And by the way, this is the third time the Democratic Party has played fast and loose with the internal electoral processes to install a candidate over the wishes of their voters – who wanted Senator Bernie Sanders in 2016 and favored a different vice presidential running mate in 2020.

With few notable exceptions (Black Lives Matter and some donors), none of this seems to matter to Democrat voters.

Harris is already out on the stump and we're being treated to glowing press coverage featuring cheering crowds, and puff pieces promoting the many "firsts" associated with her impending victory.

- The first woman president.
- The first Indian American president.
- The first Jamaican American president.
- The first African American president.

(Okay, Jamaica is not in Africa, but that doesn't matter, either.)

Republicans need to understand that they are dealing with a population in which a substantial number are completely unreachable – even by the most unassailable arguments.

To reach the rest, the focus of Trump's campaign must be not irrelevancies like Harris's former love life or her lack of children – but on her lack of qualifications, her incompetence and the disastrous policies she favors.

The proof of that – at least for those who aren't indoctrinated – is ample.

Isaiah 55:6-11—“Seek you the Lord while He may be found, call upon Him while He is near. Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts; let him return to the Lord, and He will have mercy on him; and to our God, for He will abundantly pardon. ‘For My thoughts are not your thoughts, nor are your ways My ways,’ says the Lord. For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are My ways higher than your ways, and My thoughts than your thoughts. For as the rain comes down, and the snow from heaven, and do not return there, but water the earth, and make it bring forth and bud, that it may give seed to the sower and bread to the eater, so shall My word by that goes forth from My mouth; it shall not return to Me void, but it shall accomplish what I please, and it shall prosper in the thing for which I sent it.”
