Luke 21:34-36—“But take heed to yourselves, lest your souls be weighed down with self-indulgence, and drunkenness, or the anxieties of this life, and that day come on you suddenly, like a falling trap; for it will come on all dwellers on the face of the whole earth. But beware of slumbering; and every moment pray that you may be fully strengthened to escape from all these coming evils, and to take your stand in the presence of the Son of Man” (Weymouth New Testament).

An article by Cameron Joseph titled “Harris Baiting Trump Over and Over at Presidential Debate [and He Fell for Much of It]” was posted at csmonitor.com on Sept. 11, 2024. Following are excerpts of the article.

Vice President Kamala Harris met former President Donald Trump for the first time on Tuesday night – and promptly goaded him into a number of missteps. Ms. Harris repeatedly tweaked Mr. Trump’s ego and seemed to get under his skin.

Ms. Harris’ team clearly felt she’d won. Mr. Trump himself seemed to know things hadn’t gone great – he came to the spin room afterwards to speak to reporters, a very unusual move for a presidential candidate and the first time he has done so after a general-election debate.

Mr. Trump has had bad debates before and rallied.

Here are five takeaways from the debate.

1. “They’re eating the pets of the people that live there.”
2. Trump kept taking Harris’ bait.
3. Trump was all about immigration.
4. A shaky start for Harris on the economy.
5. Harris passionate on abortion.

[Although the following two statements were not highlighted by the writer as part of the five takeaways, he made mention of them.]

- “The best moments in a rough night for Mr. Trump came at the start and end of the debate. Mr. Trump spent the first few minutes on stage pushing hard on the economy.”
- “Mr. Trump took the bait each time, wasting valuable debate time litigating those issues rather than zeroing in on the economy and criticizing Ms. Harris for her numerous flip-flops on issues.”

An article by Editorial Board titled “Here’s the Fact Check That ABC Didn’t Give Kamala Harris” was posted at nypost.com on Sept. 11, 2024. Following are excerpts of the article.

During Tuesday night’s debate, ABC News moderators David Muir and Linsey Davis interrupted Donald Trump five times to “fact-check” his answers.

They did the same to Kamala Harris – never.

The vice president was allowed to skate through the debate without substantive follow-up questions or push back on some of her obviously false claims. So since ABC didn’t do its job, here are some of the fact checks they should have made. [This excerpted article will only mention three of the five.]

Kamala claim: “What you’re going to hear tonight is a detailed and dangerous plan called Project 2025 that the former president intends on implementing if he were elected again.”

Fact check: The Heritage Foundation, an independent think tank, produced Project 2025, not the Trump campaign. Trump has repeatedly said he wasn’t involved in its writing, does not believe in its policies and won’t implement it.

Kamala claim: “Let’s remember, this is the same individual who took out a full-page ad in the New York Times calling for the execution of five young black and Latino boys who were innocent, the Central Park Five. Took out a full-page ad calling for their execution.”

Fact check: Trump’s 1989 advertisement did not call for the execution of the Central Park Five. He talked about a woman raped in the park, but did not mention the names of suspects or who they were. Titled “Bring Back the Death Penalty. Bring Back the Police,” Trump simply bemoaned how generally unsafe New York City had become, and that criminals needed to be held accountable. His cri de coeur preceded what would become a general backlash against disorder in Gotham that led to the election of Rudy Giuliani as mayor and more proactive policing.

Kamala claim: “I have not banned fracking as vice president of the United States, and in fact, I was the tie-breaking vote on the Inflation Reduction Act, which opened new leases for fracking.”

Fact check: Harris passed the bill because it was packed with left-wing giveaways. Those new leases were not the point of the bill, and only begrudgingly included to assuage Sen. Joe Manchin. Later, Manchin would accuse President Biden and Harris of going back on their word, saying new regulations were undermining the lease promises. “This is bull-t,” he told Politico. “So they’re gonna basically starve us out of energy that we have a tremendous, abundant supply of because of their aspirational thoughts?”

An article by Daniela Avila titled “Andrea Bocelli Remembers Soccer Accident That Left Him Blind: ‘That’s When Darkness Fell’ ” was posted at people.com on Sept. 7, 2024. Following are excerpts of the article.

Andrea Bocelli is opening up about a turning point in his vision impairment.

In Andrea Bocelli: Because I Believe (which premiered at the Toronto International Film Festival on Saturday, Sept. 7), the Italian tenor revealed that a soccer accident as a young boy left him blind after he was living with glaucoma.

“As a child, I was considered extremely short-sighted,” Andreas, 65, says in the documentary. “I could see everything but only from up close. I remember extremely well the world I saw. Colors, everything. How could I forget those memories?”

Then, Andrea’s brother Alberto appears on the screen and speaks on the star’s journey.

“My brother Andrea, aged 3½, due to congenital glaucoma, had been operated on 13 times in Turin,” he explains. “It was torture.”

By age 7, Andrea was sent to a boarding school for “the visually impaired” since “no local school would take him,” Alberto says. “He would come home only in the holidays. We’d go visit him once a month.”

At age 12, Andrea had an incident in boarding school that left him permanently blind.

He recalls: “One day, playing [soccer], I was the goalkeeper. No idea why, as I had never been the goalie before. And I never would be goalie again. A ball hit me right in the face. From that blow, a hemorrhage, and the rest is history.”

In an old interview with his mother, she explained that she never accepted the narrative of the “poor boy” after the accident – and he didn’t either.

She said: “Above all, Andrea never accepted any form of pity. He’d say, ‘What’s the point of pity?’ We’ve raised him on these principles. With courage. With a lot of courage.”

Andrea added: “My mother feared I wouldn’t be able to fend for myself. She worked really hard to provide he with tranquility and stability.”

The documentary tracks Bocelli’s path to success and ongoing dedication to his craft through interview, archival performance footage and informal gatherings.

Looking back to August 2024, an article by Emma-Jo Morris titled “How Harris Uses a Fake Persona and Cultural Appropriation to Advance Her Career” was posted at Breitbart.com on Aug. 3, 2024.

Kamala Harris has crafted a contrived persona and a phony identity to advance her career – portraying herself as part of a “marginalized group.” The logic is something like this: If she is perceived as part of a victim class (spoiler: she’s not) based on her race, few (if any) will press her on her politics.

A left-wing journalist taking a deep dive into where Harris really came from would amount to career suicide.

In 2020, during the “racial reckoning” following the death of George Floyd, Harris ran for president telling anyone who would listen that police should be defunded and felons should be granted the right to vote.

And just a decade before? Harris was padding her resume by locking people up in California for pot charges. That was, of course, when it was still fashionable in the Democratic Party to be tough on crime.

It was also during her short White House run that she made up a personal anecdote about participating in civil rights protests as a child – which was plagiarized from Martin Luther King Jr. – claiming she (at an age where she could barely speak) demanded ‘freedom.’”

She proceeded to beat her then-rival Joe Biden over the head with his previous stance on busin, not-so-subtly implying he was a racist – only to then join his ticket as veep.

Now, with less than 100 days before this election [as calculated in early August], Kamala Harris has found her window of opportunity in a moment where race politics are the beginning and the end of any national debate. So, as she tends to do, Harris has warped her story and beliefs for her own advancement.

But Kamala Harris was never “out here in these streets,” as she claims.

- I know that because I grew up on the exact same “streets” she grew up on.

I actually lived up the street from where she went to school, and she lived down the street from where I went to school – during the seldom discussed childhood and adolescence she actually spent living in an upperclass enclave in Montreal, Canada.

When Harris was 12, she left Berkeley after her mother got hired to work with McGill University, doing breast cancer research at Montreal’s Jewish General Hospital – the hospital I was born in. Her mother is described by local doctors as a “pioneer.”

The neighborhood Harris grew up in is called Westmount, a majority English neighborhood in the French province of Quebec.

She would have definitely experienced segregation living there – but not the kind she has claimed in the last few years to have lived through.

There is no racial hostility in Montreal. Some racial political discourse has been imported from America in more recent years, but that would not really be a part of the cultural awareness or experience of someone who stopped living there before 2020.

Canada does not have history of tension with Natives. However, this story isn't about Elizabeth Warren, so I won't go there.

Montreal is actually a "melting pot" in terms of racial and ethnic diversity, and has always had a unique ability to accept immigrants of all backgrounds, races and religions – while maintaining its French culture, due to a series of language and culture laws it began implementing in the 1970s until today.

In a story about Kamala Harris' roots and personal experience, the only segregation she would have experienced would be economic segregation, as Montreal is the most economically segregated city in Canada – according to a study by the University of Toronto.

And in that city, Kamala Harris grew up in the most upscale neighborhood, which, at the time she lived there, was not only the nicest neighborhood in Montreal, but was the richest one in all of Canada. Far from the struggle of "the streets" Harris now purports to have been down with.

According to an op-ed penned by her best friend from her time at Westmount High School, Harris lived with her mother and sister Maya on Grosvener Avenue, in a Victorian home. As her friend explains, Harris enjoyed "family dinners and a stable life."

That tracks with most people's lifestyles in that neighborhood – a beautiful, safe, quiet, child-friendly community, with parks, a red brick library with a greenhouse attached to it, an indoor skating rink just across the street from where she went to high school, synagogues, churches.

If you take a walk around the community (which requires some level of fitness), you'll see kids (of all races and ethnicities) in their uniform suits and ties walking their dogs after school, playing on local sports teams, pairs of moms out jogging together, nannies pushing toddlers in carriages.

It's one of the luckiest places someone could live. Harris implying that it's the "streets" is like an ironic joke many who grow up there make.

Watching her, as someone who grew up the same way, in the same place, with the same culture, I am stunned at the person she portrays herself to be.

If anyone reading this column listens to my radio interviews on Breitbart News Daily, they know I pronounce the current year as "twenty-twenty-four" (with trademark Canadian hard T's and R's). Kamala Harris, who grew up literally 8 blocks west of me, now pronounces the current year "tweny-twenty-fow." She would never have even heard someone speaking that way growing up, let alone lived among people with that accent, let alone somehow adopted that accent organically.

This isn't "code switching." This is lying, deceit, and the kind of shameless fabrication and flouting of facts that Harris and Democrats constantly accuse Donald Trump of doing. I'd be more likely to buy her "code switching" is she said, "deux mille vingt-quatre."

Watching Harris, as someone who grew up in the same way, in the same place, with the same culture, I am stunned at her alluding to coming from a place of marginalization, oppression, or strife, even remotely. It can't be overstated how preposterous that claim is. It's actually laughable, ridiculous – completely made up.

Kamala Harris has created a chameleon-like persona and has heralded policies base on what is politically convenient at any given moment, for the purpose of exploiting opportunity for herself to get ahead.

And it's worked (so far). She has found herself running for president in a moment where the media and elites are too dumb (or too lazy, or both) to analyze policy, and instead focus solely on physical traits, like race.

"Her multiple identities is [sic] actually her superpower in this moment," Glynda Carr, the CEO of Higher Heights for America, told CNN in an article titled, "Her extraordinary origin story could help expand the base': Diverse donors race to help Harris make history."

What "extraordinary origin story"?

That her mom was a doctor who brought her up on Grosvener?

Do I also have an "extraordinary origin story" from Redfern?

Neither of my parents even have university degrees! Am I even more "extraordinary"? I never thought of my "origin story" (which apparently means the way one grew up, and where they came from to get where they are) that way, but maybe I should.

Unfortunately, due to the media-driven obsession with things that don't matter but require zero thought, Kamala Harris is a person of immense privilege, who is now appropriating actually oppressed people's culture to get ahead.

And with a multi-billion-dollar media and billion-dollar donors setting her up to wave away conversation about her insane policy agenda, who could blame her?

Isaiah 55:6-11—“Seek you the Lord while He may be found, call upon Him while He is near. Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts; let him return to the Lord, and He will have mercy on him; and to our God, for He will abundantly pardon. ‘For My thoughts are not your thoughts, nor are your ways My ways,’ says the Lord. For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are My ways higher than your ways, and My thoughts than your thoughts. For as the rain comes down, and the snow from heaven, and do not return there, but water the earth, and make it bring forth and bud, that it may give seed to the sower and bread to the eater, so shall My word by that goes forth from My mouth; it shall not return to Me void, but it shall accomplish what I please, and it shall prosper in the thing for which I sent it.”
