Compiled by Dave Havir

Luke 21:34-36—“But take heed to yourselves, lest your souls be weighed down with self-indulgence, and drunkenness, or the anxieties of this life, and that day come on you suddenly, like a falling trap; for it will come on all dwellers on the face of the whole earth. But beware of slumbering; and every moment pray that you may be fully strengthened to escape from all these coming evils, and to take your stand in the presence of the Son of Man” (Weymouth New Testament).

“Eye on the World” comments: For many people, the biggest losers of the 2024 election were (1) the reputation of corporate media and (2) the reputation of many elite Hollywood entertainers and many wealthy professional athletes.

An article by John Nolte titled “Signs of the Collapse of Corporate Media Influence Are Everywhere” was posted at breitbart.com on Nov. 12, 2024. Following are excerpts of the article.

Within hours of the 2024 election being called for Donald Trump, I published this piece declaring the end of the era of corporate media dominance.

I wrote: “The Road to the White House no longer goes through 60 Minutes, CNN, Fox News, Meet the Press, the New York Times editorial board, or the cover of Time Magazine. That road now runs through the Joe Rogan Experience, Breitbart News, New Media, podcasts, talk radio and social media.”

However, I also wrote that we will never be rid of the corporate media. The propaganda value is worth too much for the massive multinational corporations and billionaires who own these outlets to ever give them up.

Nevertheless, once the affirmative action of carriage fees through pay TV comes to an end

(where you are forced to subscribe to a cable/satellite package that includes channels yo never watch and those channels still receive an unearned piece of your monthly payment) CNN and MSNBC will no longer be profitable. They cannot survive on merit (advertising fees based on viewers), but they will always be around because soulless liars like Joy Reid, Jake Tapper, Brian Stelter, Nicole Wallace, Rachel Maddow, and Dana Bash do and say what their corporate and Deep State masters tell them to do and say.

Well so what? Let them talk to each other in their velvet-lined echo chamber of serial hoaxes and intolerance. In the only arena that matters to the corporate media (the arena of influencing, shaping, and manipulating public opinion), they have already lost.

Don't misunderstand. Far-left outlets like CNN, MSNBC, the Washington Post, the Atlantic, the New York Times, etc., will always control the thinking of thin-skinned leftists intolerant of outside ideas who seek only comfort and affirmation.

But us Normal People? No, no more, and the closing days of the 2024 presidential election proved that.

The corporate media sprung four October Surprises on the public to win a close race for Kamala Harris, and none of them worked.

- Trump's Madison Square Garden Nazi Rally
- The Puerto Rico Joke
- Trump Called for Liz Cheney's Execution Hoax
- Iowa Poll Hoax

A decade ago, that would have likely done it. This year, no one was listening.

- The rigged CNN panels (where the Republican is outnumbered 5-to-1).
- The even worse MSNBC panel with zero Republicans.
- The emotional blackmail.
- The word policing.
- The shaming, the scolding, the lying, the "joy," the "vibes," the "brat" . . .
- No one was listening.

Instead, they were listening to Donald Trump in long-form interviews with podcasters. They were scrolling social media for facts and then making up their own minds.

And now the signs are everywhere that the corporate media have turned the corner into irrelevance.

The far-left Los Angeles Times just fired its editorial board. This failing newspaper is already losing [an expletive] of money every month, and now the owner is looking to attract Republicans with a "fair and balanced" reboot.

The disgraced Chris Wallace exits CNN. That loser was making seven figures. With the affirmative action of pay TV carriage fees coming to an end, CNNLOL can no longer afford the yearly lease for Wallace's soul. Wallace sounds like he will now try being a podcaster.

Following is a report about CNN: "With the election in the rearview, CEO Mark Thompson will finally implement his true transformation plan at the network – including the culling of hundreds of jobs. Many of CNN's own journalists (plenty of whom were blinded by Trump's significant victory) have evinced similar naivete about their own fates . . . In the next few months, I'm told, CNN will implement another round of layoffs that will impact hundreds of employees across the organization – including those whose TV production talents won't necessarily be needed in the new digital-first landscape."

Comcast is looking to sell off MSNBC so it doesn't drag down the stock price and the Comcast brand.

The far-left Washington Post is imploding due to two things.

1. Alienating everyone to the right of Fidel Castro.
2. Which gave its residual far-left subscribers the power to finish the paper off.

MSNBC and CNN have suffered a crippling post-election ratings drop – probably due to viewers who have been assured for 10 years the walls were closing in on Trump, only to see him and the MAGA movement triumph on Tuesday night.

The left-wing fascists at the Bulwark have been reduced to demanding Joe Biden go full-fascist to stop Donald Trump.

Then there were those who evaporated. Politico was a non-player. Time and Newsweek never hit anyone's radar. The Atlantic disgraced itself with a hoax that only resulted in pointing and laughing. ABC and CBS News shamelessly rigged their respective presidential and vice presidential debates to no effect.

The best news is that the corporate media will never reform, never change, and fade even more into the echo chamber of irrelevance at the hands of a few million hard-left subscribers who keep them alive – but only if they remain irrelevant by comforting and affirming those subscribers.

An article by Kirsten Fleming titled "How Kamala Harris Killed the Celebrity Endorsement – Parading A-Listers Over Policies Was Always a Recipe for Disaster" was posted at nypost.com on Nov. 6, 2024. Following are excerpts of the article.

Kamala Harris' candidacy is dead and so is the Hollywood celebrity endorsement. She officially killed that too.

She turned her failed presidential effort into a three-month-long variety show with splashy performances, boldface speakers and a carefully rolled-out succession of endorsements from La La Land's most coddled citizens.

Why not? It worked so well for Hillary Clinton and her "Fight Song" of 2016.

When a majority of the electorate overwhelmingly says the country is moving in a the wrong direction and they're being financially crushed by inflation, don't bother with policy.

- Offer them a song.
- Sung by a rich person.
- Preferably a very rich person with a mansion – who can also lecture them on how to vote.

Some of the people were: Ricky Martin, Lady Gaga, Christina Aguilera, Katy Perry, Bruce Springsteen, Megan Thee Stallion, Beyonce (who showed up, but didn't sing), Cardi B, Jennifer Lopez, Fat Joe, Taylor Swift, Jon Bon Jovi and actors from Marvel's "The Avengers."

Then came the Al Smith Dinner – a traditional stop for presidential candidates to share a moment of bipartisanship and self-deprecating humor.

Instead of showing up, Harris sent in a pathetic video with Molly Shannon as her "SNL" character Mary Katherine Gallagher flitting about.

It was a perfect summation of her campaign: She said a few words and then let the famous person do the heavy lifting. And it landed flat.

Yes, every person who ever attended the Vanity Fairs Oscars afterparty came out for her.

- They stumped.
- They knocked on doors.
- They posted all about it on social media for virtue points.
- And voters saw right through it.

Even though Harris's slogan was "We are not going back," the campaign was firmly in reverse – taking the DeLorean to 2008.

That was back when Hollywood A-listers meant something around here. Barack Obama was on top, and rolling out a Julia Roberts or a George Clooney for a campaign meant dazzling an important constituency – People magazine readers in Middle America.

- Before the Democratic Party completely abandoned the working class.
- Talked down to them.
- Told them they were racist or bigoted for not putting their pronouns in their bio.

But it's 2024 and the post-Covid cultural shift has come into focus. The power of glossy mags, movie studios and other institutions has crumbled under the weight of an internet that has democratized entertainment and the flow of information.

Influence is in the hands of people like Joe Rogan and other streamers and podcasters who came after him – the so-called ‘manosphere.’”

At Donald Trump's victory party last night, UFC honcho Dana White got up on stage to acknowledge the podcasters who interviewed Trump and running mate JD Vance.

He said: “I want to thank NELK Boys, Adin Ross, Theo Von, Bussin’ With the Boys. And last but not least, the mighty and powerful Joe Rogan” (he said of his friend who endorsed the Republican).

Not that Trump (himself a celebrity) is without his small stable of boldfacers. However, his are more ripped from another era and a little less elitist.

People like Hulk Hogan and “God Bless the USA” singer Lee Greenwood are more decor in his carefully curated MAGA universe – not meant to convince voters but to create an image.

And other powerful backers like White and Elon Musk are businessmen who became cultural figures revered for building a meaningful product, not for reading lines.

Team Trump has managed to see this shift and tap into it, while still speaking to regular voters and addressing their actual needs.

Meanwhile, Harris will always have the fall of 2024 to look back on, when she got to see a few decent concerts.

An article by Mark Lewis titled “Why the Democrats Really Lost” was posted at townhall.com on Nov. 9, 2024. Following are excerpts of the article.

1. “It was the economy, stupid.”
 2. The Democratic elites (the tyrants who now control the party) have become radical, far-left ideologues – and they pushed the country too far towards left-wing extremism in their lust to destroy traditional America and have the power they crave.

3. “Not Trump” was not a feasible campaign strategy and the people saw through it.

The country is further left now than it’s ever been. Mr. Trump will bring it back to the right somewhat, but he probably won’t be able to undo all the damage Democrats did. And the Democrats, ideological to the end, will regroup and try again. They’ll never give up. Power and control are all they live for. The fight is far from over.

An article by David Propper titled “CNN Host Fareed Zakaria Argues Democrats Made 3 Major Errors in Loss to Trump in Scathing Takedown” was posted at nypost.com on Nov. 10, 2024. Following are excerpts from the article.

1. “Blindness to the collapse of the immigration system and the chaos at the border.”
 2. “Overzealous misuse of law to punish Trump.”
 3. “Dominance of identity politics on the left.”

An article by Scott Hogenson titled “How Trump Can Start Draining the Swamp” was posted at townhall.com on Nov. 9, 2024. Following are excerpts of the article.

It took less than a day following Donald Trump’s decisive victory November 5 for Democrats to start talking about their plans to hamstring his incoming administration. There’s little Trump can do about third parties seeking to undermine his presidency aside from vigorously responding to them, and we can rest assured that he and his team will do just that.

But efforts to derail Trump’s mandate aren’t limited to politicians in Albany or Sacramento. There are thousands of Biden administration appointees currently working in the Executive Branch, and Trump can and should get rid of every single one of them on January 20.

These Biden loyalists are working in jobs laid out in a book entitled Policy and Supporting

Positions, colloquially known as “The Plum Book.”

From the White House to the Department of State to obscure agencies like the Marine Mammal Commission, presidents have the authority to appoint people to work on their behalf in more than 7,000 positions across scores of Executive Branch departments.

The standard protocol for these appointees includes submitting a formal letter of resignation as an administration prepares to change hands. This has been happening for decades. These letters are held in abeyance until such time that the new administration decides whether to accept or not accept these resignations.

All presidents accept and reject them to varying degrees. And Trump should accept every last resignation by every last Biden appointee, and remove them from their jobs on Day One. Some of these appointees are good and decent people but they were hired for one reason – to implement the Biden agenda.

- Commentators on CNN, MSNBC and elsewhere will doubtlessly characterize the acceptance of these resignations as a purge – proof that Trump wants to punish his opponents. It is a lie of galactic proportions. Every president has the authority to appoint people to help his administration, and to accept the resignation of any Plum Book appointee, at any time. That’s how government works.
- The mass resignation of 7,000-plus people sounds pretty startling, and some observers fret that such an exodus would paralyze the government. This is another claim that is utter nonsense. The actual work of government that helps taxpayers is not performed by presidential appointees. That’s done by approximately 2.1 million career federal employees.

Plum Book appointees only comprise about three-tenths of one-percent of the federal workforce. They are there to implement a president’s policies and priorities by dictating and supervising the means of doing so. Again, that’s how government works.

As Donald Trump is sworn in, his team will have a stack of thousands of letters of resignation from Biden’s Plum Book appointees. If Trump is serious about draining the swamp, he should accept every one of them, effective immediately.

Isaiah 55:6-11—“Seek you the Lord while He may be found, call upon Him while He is near. Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts; let him return to the Lord, and He will have mercy on him; and to our God, for He will abundantly pardon. ‘For My thoughts are not your thoughts, nor are your ways My ways,’ says the Lord. For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are My ways higher than your ways, and My thoughts than your thoughts. For as the rain comes down, and the snow from heaven, and do not return there, but water the earth, and make it bring forth and bud, that it may give seed to the sower and bread to the eater, so shall My word by that goes forth from My mouth; it shall not return to Me void, but it shall accomplish what I please, and it shall prosper in the thing for which I sent it.”
