An article by Mat Staver titled “City [Los Angeles] Thinks Christianity Is a Mental Illness” was posted at lc.org (Liberty Counsel) on March 19, 2026. Following are excerpts of the article.

---

Liberty Counsel is suing the City of Los Angeles. When Eric Batman asked for a religious accommodation form mandatory LGBTQ “Pride” initiatives, the City of Los Angeles told him to get counseling, effectively declaring his Christian beliefs to be a mental illness.

For most of his adult life, Eric Batman went to work each day believing in three things.

- Doing his job well
- Respecting others
- Living according to his walk with Jesus

For 24 years, he served Los Angeles County as a civil engineer.

- He helped protect communities from flooding.
- He supervised vital public infrastructure.
- He earned promotions, responsibility and trust.
- By every measure, he was a model public servant.

Until he quietly asked for something the law had long promised to every American – A reasonable accommodation for his sincere religious beliefs.

Eric is a Christian. He does not mistreat others, deny anyone dignity, or interfere with his colleagues' lives. He simply believes that certain messages promoted by the government conflict with his faith.

Eric requested permission to work remotely during one month of the year – performing the same job he had successfully performed from home before. His work could be done remotely without difficulty. In fact, other employees were already doing the same thing. Los Angeles County said NO.

What makes this especially troubling is that the same accommodation was granted to employees of different faiths (namely Muslims) when their religious observances conflicted with workplace requirements. The door was open for some, but closed for a Christian like Jason.

Instead of offering equal treatment, Los Angeles County told him to seek counseling if his beliefs caused him distress. After decades of service, Eric's faith was not accommodated – it was effectively dismissed. Worse yet – in asking Eric to seek counseling over his religious beliefs, the city is effectively stating that Eric's Bible-based Christian beliefs are a mental illness.

An article by Kurt Schlichter titled “Trump’s Texas Deal Dilemma” was posted at townhall.com on March 12, 2026. Following are excerpts of the article.

The two guys in the Texas runoff are flawed, and their sub-optimization is either entirely or largely their own fault.

It's not fair to us as Republicans – either in Texas or in the USA as a whole.

Nor is it fair is it fair to Donald Trump, the guy we elected as the leader of our movement, who is now in a tough position. He doesn't want a runoff that spends a ton of money that could be better used winning an open seat. He also doesn't want the two Republicans to kneecap one another and give Democrats a chance to win in November.

Frankly, neither of these guys should be running . . . Instead of self-sacrifice, it's potentially sacrificing a seat, which means potentially sacrificing our country. Great work all around, guys.

Incumbent John Cornyn

We've got to vote for whichever one wins the primary, no matter what happens. But let's not fool ourselves. Incumbent John Cornyn is a disaster, one of those brain-dead stiff who thinks it's 2002 and finds us uppity voters annoying. We cramp his style, which consists of clinking glasses with his pals while savoring the unearned respect and sycophantic tongue-bathing he gets as one of the 100 of his fellow (mostly) mediocrities.

The only reason he can't sell out us conservatives is that he doesn't actually believe in conservatism. You're not selling out if you're acting consistently with you total lack of any coherent paradigm of political belief.

What's so bad about him?

Well, he's the same kind of deep Red State Republican we always seem to get – a Republican who's neither deep nor truly red.

Let's review some of his greatest hits, which are all misses.

- This guy worked with Democrats on a gun control bill. Now, you're probably asking yourself what would possess any Republican to work with Democrats on a gun control bill.
- Oh, and he also thinks amnesty is a good idea. He recently told Politico that he looks forward to helping pass comprehensive immigration reform. He'll tell you that's not amnesty. Of course, it's amnesty. It's always amnesty. And of course, he wants amnesty, because he's that kind of Chamber of Commerce Republican.

He has the same soft gooey center as Jiminy Lankford, Thom Tillis and all the other fuddocons who really, really hate Trump – because Trump makes them to things.

But, on the other hand, he will vote to organize under the Republicans and usually vote our way. That's vital. That's everything.

Ken Paxton

And then there's Kenny Paxton, the current attorney general. Between the two, I'd much rather have him in the Senate. The issue is the "getting in" part.

He's always going to vote our way. He's always going to support what we support. He's just got a problem. It's his zipper. It works too well.

His personal life is seedy and gross, and the good people of Texas don't appreciate it. There were charges of corruption against him (at least some of which were absolute baloney). I strongly opposed the unsuccessful campaign to impeach him, because that was obviously not based on anything he had actually done as far as misconduct – but because he actually stood for something politically.

Gulp down this hard to swallow pill – he's damaged good. That doesn't make me happy to say so, but it's true. He is a sub-optimal candidate, and that is largely of his own doing.

The problem is not that we will have yet another GOP senator who is no paragon of virtue. It is that we might not have a GOP senator at all. He gives Talarico a better chance to win.

Paxton's presence on the ballot might confuse well-meaning faithful folk who generally vote. They might just choose to sit it out.

Easy choice?

Now, our choice is easy. We need to support whoever wins the runoff in May.

But President Trump (who has to look at the big picture) has a much harder choice. He feels he needs to endorse soon to short-circuit an expensive and destructive runoff. He says he expects the guy not getting the nod to drop out. The candidates don't like that. They both want the gig.

Making a deal?

Paxton says he'll get out if the Senate passes the SAVE Act. (I would also demand that Trump be able to make recess appointments.)

Cornyn insists he supports the SAVE act, but, oh well, he can't do anything about it. So sorry. So, he basically admitting he has no heat in the Senate, and that he is functionally useless other than just showing up and being GOP. Kind of sums up his legacy.

But Trump likes the idea of a deal. He's a deal guy. Is there a deal to be had? Yeah, if Trump pushes it. John Thune and the establishment definitely want their pal Cornyn to win – because Paxton will be a huge pain in their collective tush by not being weak and soft.

Trump was reported to be leaning toward Cornyn due to massive lobbying by these guys and their media allies.

However, Trump felt the pushback and got irritated at the idea that it was a done deal.

Still, the deal is obvious.

- Trump gets the SAVE Act and recess appointments – They get Gornynholio.
- No SAVE Act and no recess – It’s Pax your bags, Johnboy.

If Trump picks Cornyn (which is not insane, just agonizing) and gets nothing for it, he’ll look like he got rolled by the goobers on Capitol Hill. Imagine being outplayed by the empty-suited likes of them!

- He needs the SAVE Act passed, not promised.
- He needs the recess commenced, not a deal where these wimps promise.

He needs to drag John Cornyn in front of the cameras. to promise on his honor.

- To promise on his honor that he will never, ever, ever support another gun control bill.
- To promise on his honor that he will never support any kind of “immigration reform.”
- Texans believe in honor.
- Cornyn has to believe that he will be held in contempt by his Lone Star peers if he lies.

Trump needs to do a deal – and it needs not to be one that forever wrecks his reputation as a master negotiator.

Isaiah 55:6-11—“Seek you the Lord while He may be found, call upon Him while He is near. Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts; let him return to the Lord, and He will have mercy on him; and to our God, for He will abundantly pardon. ‘For My thoughts are not your thoughts, nor are your ways My ways,’ says the Lord. For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are My ways higher than your ways, and My thoughts than your thoughts. For as the rain comes down, and the snow from heaven, and do not return there, but water the earth, and make it bring forth and bud, that it may give seed to the sower and bread to the eater, so shall My word by that goes forth from My mouth; it shall not return to Me void, but it shall accomplish what I please, and it shall prosper in the thing for which I sent it.”
